JOTTINGS.

BREEDING HORSES is but a side issue of the big business carried on by the Meek Estate on its three thousand acres of as good land as ever laid out of doors. This princely domain is located at Haywards in Alameda county and a visit to it on Sunday, May 11th, was most enjoyable, a partially cloudy sky, with the air just the proper temperature for comfort making the day an ideal one. Messrs. H. W. and W. E. Meek have the active management of this vast tract, and, ably assisted by George Gray as Superintendent, keep it in perfect cultivation. The greater portion of the big farm is planted to orchards and berry vineyards, though there are hundreds of acres on which asparagus, rhubarb and other vegetables are grown. Cherries, apricots and pears are the principal fruits, the first named being a very light crop this year owing to frost. The "cots," however, are such a heavy crop that about a thousand are being taken from each tree in the thinning process just completed. Eight cents per pound expressage is paid on asparagus and rhubarb sent to Boston and New York markets, but as twenty-five cents is received for them, there is a big margin of profit.

Every foot of the 3000 acres can be irrigated by a gravity system of ditches, the water being taken from a creek that flows through the place. Alfalfa grows to perfection and the fat, round bodies of the colts and broodmares are testimony to its value. A large dairy herd of Holsteins feed on this nutritive forage, and the shipping of milk to San Francisco daily is another of the profit producing industries of the farm.

The horses bred on the Meek Estate are standard bred and draft horses. As I remarked in the opening paragraph it is but a side issue, but is conducted in the same manner as the culture of fruit and vegetables—that is, it is run with the idea of making it profitable if possible. There are four stallions on the farm, William Harold 2:13½ by Sidney, Welcome 2:10½ by Arthur Wilkes and two massive Percherons, one the prize horse Fresno, a four year old, the other a three year old black that is also a prize winner. These stallions are bred to the farm mares, and also stand for public service and are all well patronized. The Meek Estate has sent out such horses as Clipper 2:06, Cricket 2:10 (now a broodmare), Welcome 2:10½, William Harold 2:13½ and his daughter Janice 2:13½, besides many others. There is a three-quarter mile training track on the property and commodious barns and box stalls for the horses in training.

Barney Simpson has charge of the training department, and there is probably not a man in California who turns out better mannered trotters and pacers than he. The colts all act well under his tutelage and have no vices. He understands speed making too as the record horses trained by him give evidence.

At present there are a half dozen young horses being worked by Barney. Among them is Enoch, the bay gelding by Sidmore that started oncelast year and won second money in the green pace at Sacramento, the race being won by Tags. Enoch was a close second in 2:16½ in this race. He will be raced this year and should get a low record.

Mr. H. W. Meek's pet is Izobel, a three year old filly by McKinney 2:11½, out of Cricket 2:10. She is a trotter and a very promising one. The favorite of Mr. W. E. Meek is Iloilo, a three year old gelding by Welcome 2:10½, dam by Nutwood Wilkes; second dam by Director, third dam by Chieftain and fourth dam the old thoroughbred mare Bonnie Bell by Williamson's Belmont. Iloilo is also a trotter and has worked some fast quarters already.

There is a four year old by Direct 2:05½, out of Cricket, that was sold to T. E. Keating for $1100 last year, and after that famous reinsman's death, Mr. Meek bought him back from the executors of his estate and will put him into the list this year, together with one or two more of Crickets' foals.

The stallion Welcome is bound to make a sire of extreme and early speed if his colts and fillies are raced. They nearly all trot and are of good size and have a generous amount of good looks. He is a large, handsome horse, with great muscular development—a quality that is absolutely necessary in a sire of speed. His picture on the front page does not do him justice as it was taken when clouds obscured the sun, but it shows his handsome proportions.

William Harold 2:13½, will also produce speed. He is a small horse but his get have size and speed. The only one of them to start in a race is Janice 2:13½, whose campaign last year stamped her one of the best green ones in the United States. There are not a half dozen foals all told by William Harold that are old enough to train, and there is not one of these but has speed enough to enter the standard list.

It is the policy of the Estate to train the colts bred on the farm, enter them in a few races and sell at a price that will bring a profit and represent a fair valuation. Clipper and Janice were both sold at a reasonable price, and it gave no one greater pleasure to see them get low marks and increase in value than Messrs. H. W. and W. E. Meek.

The training track on the Meek farm is one of the best in California. The soil is just about perfection for training on and the climate of Haywards cannot be excelled. There are seven or eight more stalls than are required by the farm's string and these are rented to outside parties who desire to train there. Among the horses being worked there at present are Lady Falrose 2:23½, Sandow by Dietatus, Oakland Maid, Goldy and others.

Directors Recommended.

[Woodland Mail, May 19.]

Those interested in the reorganization of Agricultural District No. 40 held a meeting in the office of J. Reith, Jr., yesterday for the purpose of taking necessary steps towards effecting a reorganization. The necessary petition to that effect containing fifty signatures, thirty-five of residents of Yolo county and fifteen of Sacramento county, was read.

T. S. Spaulding, acting as chairman, called the meeting to order, and A. C. Huston acted as secretary. A majority of the signers of the petition were either present or represented by proxy. On motion the following gentleman of both counties were recommended to the Governor for appointment as Directors of the new district:

Fred Prentiss and W. A. Bowers of Sacramento county and A. C. Stevens, T. B. Gibson, A. M. Britt, C. R. Hoppin, J. Reith, Jr., and T. S. Spaulding of Yolo county.

After the Directors are appointed by the Governor a meeting will be called and a permanent organization effected.

Good Prices for California Horses.

No word has come from the Cleveland sales yet except the sale of Eula Mae 2:17½ for $2700. According to a dispatch received in this city Wednesday this fast four year old filly by McKinney was purchased that day by Louis Streuber of Erie, Pennsylvania, for that sum. Mr. Streuber is the real owner of the roan pacer Funston by Dictatus, that was bought by Sandy Smith for $2000 and went East this week.

Word comes from Cleveland that Mr. C. A. Winship last Monday sold at private sale to Mr. J. C. McKinney of Terrace Farm, Titusville, Pa., the three year old filly Zephyr by Zombro and the five year old green pacing mare Velvet Rose. Before shipping them East Zephyr trotted a trial in 2:18 and Velvet Rose paced a trial in 2:20. The dispatches say that Zephyr brought the larger part of the sum paid for the two and is the highest priced three year old filly that has changed hands this year. Mr. J. C. McKinney is a very wealthy gentleman who is a splendid judge of a horse. He owns the pacing stallion Beusant that paced a trial in 2:07½ last year as a three year old and is well entered through the Grand Circuit.

Off for Denver.

There was a small swarm of B's at the Oakland mole last Thursday morning when the well known trainers, Blue, Bigelow and Boucher started for Denver with their horses. Blue had Geo. T. Bennett, the fast green pacer by Alex Button, a three year old by Chas. Derby, a three year old Diablo and a couple of others. Bigelow had Tags 2:13 and another by Diablo, while Boucher was in charge of his four year old colt Harry Logan by Harry Gear—Miss Logan 2:06½. Sandy Smith, who had been detained at Pleasanton for two weeks with his roan pacer Funston, was also on the car. The horses were all in good shape and will be raced at the Denver meeting with the exception of Funston. He will go through to Cleveland. John Blue will enter the employ of Mr. Ed Gaylord of Denver, who has several good horses to place in his hands as soon as he arrives. Among them is Yarrum 2:19½, a horse that is expected to be fast this year.

Racing on Butchers' Day.

While the racing which is part of the program of the annual picnic of the Butchers Association held at Oakland race track, is far from high class, it draws about twice as many people to see it as can be induced to visit the track at any other time. There must have been fifteen thousand people at the Emeryville course on Wednesday of this week, as there was not standing room in the immenso grand stand, while the betting ring and the space between it and the track were packed with people. A long program of twelve races was begun shortly after the noon hour and finished at six o'clock. The harness races were decided on the inside track—which had been prepared especially for the occasion, but was a very poor track at that. The races were two heats of a mile each, the winner of the first to take first money and go to the barn, while the others were driven another heat for second money. The best time made was 2:23½, which was made by Orilla J. in the second heat of the free-for-all pace and trot. Orilla J. is a bay trotting mare and a sister to Jeffe 2:16½. She broke badly in the first heat, which was won by King Cadenza in 2:27½. Orilla J. also won the two mile dash, beating Mattie B., King Cadenza, Miss Goldie, Localeer and Kitty W. The time was 5:00 flat. The summaries of the harness events are as follows:

Succeeds Dobbins as Tammany's Idol.

The admirers of that characteristic and notable American product, the fast trotter, are rejoicing over the prospect that the trotting meetings and matches this year will be of exceptional interest. It may not be possible to reach the two-minute mark this season, but The Abbot, Cresceus, Charley Herr and Boralma are expected to do better than ever before, and many an exciting contest will be decided. Every Tammany man who likes sport is delighted that The Abbot, the world's trotting champion and the holder of the record, is owned by a Tammany leader of large wealth.

The unfettered Democrats, to whom the Fourteenth Street Wigwam is a revered joss house and the venerated shrine of Tammany worship, are almost as proud of The Abbot as they would be if he were owned by Richard Croker himself. Fire Commissioner Scannell, who now owns The Abbot, is close to Mr. Croker, even closer than a brother, and the Tammany sports declare with extreme emphasis that Mr. Scannell is almost as true a sport as the supreme boss himself. Could the force of unlimited eulogy go further? Tammany expects great things of Mr. Scannell and The Abbot this year, and its high hopes are not likely to fall short of fulfillment.

With his fortune, his grit and sporting blood Mr. Scannell may sweep everything before him on the trotting tracks this summer. Then The Abbot, champion of trotters, may be set up in bronze on a Fourteenth street pedestal by the side of Mr. Croker's running horse Dobbins. Bellerophon never loved Pegasus as Mr. Croker loved Dobbins. Mr. Croker's affection for Dobbins was so intense as to be almost pathetic. Dobbins was a handsome horse, and he won handsome races for the Tammany ruler. It was a case of "Love me, love my horse," and therefore all Tammany loved Dobbins. And Tammany now loves Commissioner Scannell and his horse The Abbot.—New York Tribune.

Expert Care of the Horse.

Dr. A. H. Baker, of the Chicago Veterinary College, says: The idea of feeding a horse only twice a day, to prevent indigestion, is nonsense. At work, he requires three meals. To secure the best nutritious results, give the horse a few swallows of water and let him eat hay half an hour before giving oats or corn. The horse should be watered again before giving the grain, and then not again until an hour afterwards. Don't let your horse eat too fast—a handful or two of bran in the feed will usually prevent it, and incidentally put a gloss on his coat—and a few large stones in the box will prevent him from bolting his food, as he will have to nibble around them to get his oats. Nose-bags are to be highly commended, in feeding outdoors. Every horse should have a Sunday of rest.

Memphis has one of the best Street Railway Systems in the United States and the New Memphis Trotting Track, which is but a twelve minutes' ride from the business center of the city, will be specially favored in the matter of transportation facilities.

Horses Once Sold Cheaply.

PORTLAND (Ind.), May 13.—Dell Palmer, the veteran horse and animal trainer, who knows horseflesh from ears to hoof, was in a loquacious mood the other evening and started in to talk of the animals which have been picked up for a song as practically worthless, and afterward developed into good animals, with waydown records and worth thousands of dollars to their lucky owners. Among the instances of this kind mentioned by Mr. Palmer were:

"I hid $130 at the Lackey sale, March, 1900, on Sophia; she sold for $135. She won every race she started in that year, going into winter quarters with a record of 2:09½. I have an idea her owner would want $135 with two ciphers attached for her now. Charles Hayt 2:07½ sold at auction for $450; he afterward sold for $5000 before he got his record. Mr. Lattimer informed me at the Fort Wayne races that he considered him very cheap at that price. Joe Watts 2:10½ once sold for $28. Early Reaper 2:09½ sold for $225. John T. 2:09½ for $137. Bird's Eye 2:14½ for $30. Tommy Wilton 2:12½ for $120. Wild Wind 2:16½ for $120. Rustler 2:15½ for $30. Mr. Phil Bergman of our city sold Ruby Hughes 2:18½ for $110; she won nearly every race she started in. John Hussey, one of the greatest drivers, sold Milton 2:12½ for $50 as a colt, as he was very small. Ethlyn C. 2:12½ I saw sell for $25; you could now add $2000 to it and you probably would not get her. Annie Burns, in 1899, was considered almost worthless, yet in 1900 she got a record of 2:10½, and won over $10,000 in purses. The horse Wilton once sold for $60; later he sold for $14,000. Billy Cline 2:19½ was bought by J. W. Lucas, a Macon, Mo., blacksmith, for $27.50 as a colt, and as he began to drive him he saw that he had speed and sent him to the track. He many times paid for himself in races. He is considered good for a 2:10 mark.

"Dan Westland 2:08 was traded for a load of oats when a colt, and he turned out to be the fastest horse in Maine. Mr. Ed Gould of Fullerton, Neb., bought Angelus for a saddle mare to drive cattle on his ranch. She and her colt at her side looked so hard that when he got them home he sneaked them in the back way to his barn. The colt turned out to be Antonian 2:07½, her next Online 2:04, her next Annaline 2:17½. She also had five more colts, all fast. She made a fortune for Mr. Gould. Cresceus 2:04, the greatest and fastest stallion in the world, is from a dam bought by Mr. George H. Ketcham for $150, and he kicked himself for buying her. It is common talk among the 'rail birds' that when Cresceus was foaled he was the ugliest, crookedest looking colt imaginable, and Ketcham wanted his foreman to destroy it. Yet to-day Cresceus could be sold for $50,000. That wonderful trotting mare Mahel 2:14 sold, with her dam, for $80. Her next dam was Black Robert 2:13, trotting. Marie C. sold for $70. She afterwards took a record of 2:16½. Stambold sold at auction for $205, and afterwards took a mark of 2:16½, and sold for $2500. Wyreka was another that sold cheap at $185, and two months later stepped to a record of 2:18½. Senator L. 2:11 once sold for $100, and afterwards brought $5000. Orphan Girl 2:19½ was once almost given away. Milo S. 2:18½ and his mother, with a foal by Prince Nutwood 2:26, we bought so cheap that Milo paid it all back in one afternoon in what to him was an easy race. Charley Herr is another. David Cahill picked up the mare Bessie Huntington, then in foal to Alfred G., for $25 at a Lexington, Ky., horse sale. The foal proved to be Charley Herr."

News From the North.

[Portland Rural Spirit.]

Pat Barry's McKinnoy colt, Pat Durfeo, who is nearly 22 months old, tips the scale at 1020 pounds.

There will be summer races at Everett on July 4 to 6 inclusive, entries to same close June 1st.

The Washington State Fair is offering two $1000 stakes. One for 2:30 trotters and the other one for 2:20 pacers. June 3d was selected as the closing day of the entries.

Billy Eaton is driving Road Boy 2:16½ and Nows Boy a green horse. They are the handsomest team in this section and they can step along fast enough to suit the fastest.

Thos. Thompson, Pendleton, sold a three year old Clydesdale stallion to A. J. Sullivan, Starkey Prairie, for $500. He weighed 1420.

One of the principal horse journals in the East, credits California with the production of Chehalis 2:04½. Chehalis was bred by Jay Beach at Vancouver, Wash., and was developed by Frank Frazier, of Pendleton, Or.

L. C. McCormick sold Aldone to E. Bellinger, of Knapp's Landing, Wash. She is by Adirondack-Bolle by Rockwood, second dam by Pathfinder. Mr. Bellinger is a firm believer in Harry McC.

Ten thousand dollars is offered by the Idaho Inter-Mountain fair. There are three $1000 stakes, one each for 2:20 trotters, 2:15 pacers and one for the runners. Entries to these stakes close June 1st.

An auction sale of standard bred horses was held at Hillsboro, Or., May 11th. They were the property of Thos. H. Tongue. The attendance was not large, but all who attended went with the idea of buying. The prices which ranged from $40 to $90, were not large, but the buying was spirited from start to finish. There were about 16 head disposed of at these prices. Among the buyers we mention John W. Kerr, two head; Frazier & McLean, two head; L. Zimmerman, two head; J. Clossett, one head. John Connoll sold two head of horses to Frazier & McLean after the auction.

Horsemen who contemplate entering at Lexington and Memphis will be glad to learn that arrangements have been made to carry men, horses and traps from Lexington to Memphis on a special express train that will only touch the high spots on the way over.*

Memphis a Prosperous City.

Any one who is familiar with the facts concerning the city of Memphis and the winter climate enjoyed by the inhabitants of that section will understand just why Mr. C. K. G. Billings, Mr. F. G. Jones and other promoters of the Memphis Trotting Association decided that Memphis was the ideal spot of the country in which to build and equip a magnificent trotting track.

Memphis is a phenomenal city, as a city of exchange solely or nearly so, it ranks in business actually done with any city in the United States of equal or even double its population. For nearly a half a century, despite now and then accumulating hut, happily, temporary disasters, its record shows the smallest percentage of failures, whether considering capital or population as a basis, of any city in America.

Facts patent, figures available, unite in the statement that more fortunes have been made in legitimate business in Memphis, within the past thirty-five years at least, than in any other city of double its population in this or any other country.

Memphis has between five and six hundred manufacturing enterprises which do an annual value of business reaching nearly three hundred million, the largest business per capita of any city in America.

Memphis is the largest market for hardwood lumber on the globe, and stands second as a market for all classes of lumber. The city is considered one of the best theatrical towns in the country, and is what is generally known as a "wide open" sporting town. Baseball, racing, boxing and all manner of athletic sports are encouraged and patronized by the best people of the city. Last winter the people of Memphis did not see a snow flake and only a very little frost. There was not ten days during the winter when the weather would have prevented repeating a trotter.

Breeding Chunks for Profit.

[Breeding Gazette.]

A visit to the auction sales of horses in Chicago some Thursday afternoon will pay big dividends to the farmer who is aiming to breed the horses that will bring paying prices. Last week export chunks bred in Illinois brought as high as $190, and one whole consignment shipped from Rockford sold for prices ranging from $140 to $150. The heaviest of those horses weighed right at 1500 pounds; the lightest around 1350 pounds. It is not so long ago that such horses were well sold at $85 or even less. Now there is the most active demand for the high class ones of this sort. The export chunk is always a saleable horse. He is in effect a miniature drafter, modeled on the plan of the truck horse, but smaller and more active. He is invariably got by the draft horse and usually foaled by a fair sized mare. Some farmers there are who claim that it pays them better to breed chunks than drafters, for the reason that there are more prizes and fewer blanks in the lottery and that it is easier to keep the young ones going forward well and sound than it is with the weightier ones. With such we can hardly agree, but with chunks selling at such remunerative prices it is certainly worth the breeder's while to try to produce them. They are more easily bred for than are drafters, for there are far more mares capable of producing chunks than draft horses. A word of caution is, however, necessary in this connection. If a farmer starts in to breed chunks he must be very careful to choose his mares just right. A chunk that is not very shapely and thick in his conformation sells for a very small price. If he has not the good looks as well as the chunky build he degenerates into a farm worker and sells accordingly. To breed such horses as the exporters will buy a mare must have a good neck, plenty of bone, abundant style and quite a good deal of size and substance. A lanky mare will not bring chunks, no matter to what horse she may be mated. The fact is that any farmer can make it pay to visit the auction of horses at any of the sale centers and learn just exactly what sort of horses are bringing these prices. He cannot spend his money to better advantage. With the pattern fully in view he can mate his mares to proper advantage.

Another Diving Horse.

An American has made a great deal of money by training two beautiful white horses to dive into the water from a great height. He travels and exhibits his horses, and people gladly pay to see them. This is all very wonderful, but on Puget Sound there is a plain, homely, bony brown horse who never was trained to do anything in his life, but who does just as wonderful things and thinks nothing of it.

Bony's owner is a rancher, who lives on one of the wooded islands where the boats stop once a week for vegetables to be taken to the city. The rancher can make more money by taking his own produce to the city and peddling it on the streets than by shipping it to the wholesale men, so he keeps his wagon in the city and when the boat stops at his island loads on Bony and his vegetables. When the boat reaches the city dock Bony shows of what he is made. While the gangplank is all right for the passengers and the vegetables, Bony cannot go ashore that way. He is led to the edge of the boat, his master speaks to him and into the deep cold water of Puget Sound he plunges. He is entirely out of sight for so long you begin to wonder if he will ever come up; but presently his head appears above the water and he swims in a straight line for the shore. There he stands till his master comes up to him, hitches him to the cart, packs in his load and drives off to make his deliveries.—Chicago Record-Herald.

Extreme Speed Combinations.

[Trotter and Pacer.]

Bessie Bonohill 2:05½, ex-queen of five-year-old pacing mares, has a fine black colt with star and two white hind ankles, by Director's Jug 2:29½, at East Lynne Farm, Flemington, N. J. The youngster has over $45,000 worth of Stake engagements and is her second foal by this grandly bred little stallion. Her oldest foal is a filly by Alatus 2:09½, a son of Alecyone, and it was after raising this filly that she took the world's record for a five year old pacing mare. If bred again this season, she will be mated with Lynne Bel 2:10½.

The Year Book shows that up to the close of 1900 there were just 24,467 trotters and pacers with records from 1:59½ to 2:30, and out of this number Bessie Bonehill 2:05½, is the fastest pacing mare to raise more than one foal; and the ex-queen of trotters, Nancy Hanks 2:04, that Mr. Forhes paid $33,000 for, is the fastest trotting mare to raise more than one.

The queen of trotters, Alix 2:03½, is now in her thirteenth year, and she has one foal only, a filly by Sable Wilkes (3) 2:18. The queen of trotters, Lady of the Manor 2:04½, is now in her seventh year and has at foot her first foal, a chestnut colt by Direct Hal, and has been bred back to him again. The ex-queen of trotters, Nancy Hanks 2:04, is now in her fifteenth year. She has raised four foals and will soon be due to foal again to Peter the Great 2:07½. Her first three foals have the fastest speed inheritance of any trotting bred foals yet born. The ex-queen of five year old pacing mares, Bessie Bonehill 2:05½, is now in her ninth year and has raised three foals. Her first foal has the greatest speed inheritance of any filly of its age. Lottie Loraine 2:05½, is the only other pacing mare with as low a record to raise a foal and she has at foot a filly by Star Pointer 1:59½. The speed inheritance of this filly is 2:02½, so far the fastest in the world.

These five extremely low record mares have in all ten foals, seven of which are the produce of Nancy Hanks 2:04, and Bessie Bonehill 2:05½, and but two of the ten are from mares with lower records. Seven of these foals carry the blood of Dictator. This strain of blood is found in fifty-nine of the world's champion harness horses that have made their records during the past 35 years, or since the days of Dexter 2:17½. No strain of blood has so persistently clung to championship honors for so many years, as this Dexter strain; almost all of it tracing through his brother Dictator, and no family has ever produced better race horses.

A Great Broodmare.

One of the most wonderful of all broodmares was Primrose, the daughter of Alexander's Abdallah and old Black Rose. She was foaled in 1865, lived to the extreme age of twenty-eight, and died in foaling her last colt. She was first bred in 1869, and her first foal, the great sire Princeps, came in 1870. In twenty consecutive years she produced nineteen living foals. Then for three years she was barren, and it was supposed that she ceased breeding until she brought forth, in her twenty-eighth year, her twentieth foal, which cost her life.

Primrose was a marvel of fecundity. She lived to be twenty-eight and produced twenty living foals. Five other matrons may be mentioned with her as the six greatest of trotting broodmares. Of these Waterwitch lived to be twenty-eight and produced nineteen living foals and two dead ones. Miss Russell lived to be thirty-three and produced eighteen living foals; Beautiful Bells is still living at twenty-nine and has produced eighteen living foals, her last four years ago, when she ceased breeding; Green Mountain Maid lived to be twenty-six, produced sixteen living foals and was again heavy in foal when she died; Alma Mater lived to be twenty-five and produced sixteen living foals.

Primrose was the most fruitful of these, the true Belgravian dames of the trotting stud book. However, while she had the greatest number of foals, she has not the greatest number of 2:30 performers. Six of her twenty foals made standard trotting records, against nine of Green Mountain Maid's sixteen, eight of Alma Mater's sixteen and seven of Miss Russell's eighteen. Of Waterwitch's nineteen foals, six—the same number as Primrose's—beat 2:30.

But in one particular Primrose stands unequalled as a broodmare. She is the dam of no less than ten sires of standard speed—three more than the number credited to any of the five other mares above named. Alma Mater and Beautiful Bells each have seven producing sons, Miss Russell has six, Waterwitch five and Green Mountain Maid four. A further remarkable fact is, that of Primrose's ten producing sons, seven are sires of better than 2:20 speed and four in 2:13 or better speed. These are: Rodwald, sire of Redinda 2:07½, pacing; Binderton, sire of Maud C. 2:10½; Princeps, sire of Greenlander 2:12 and Maxim, sire of Mikado 2:13, pacing.—"Volunteer" in Horse Review.

It is reported in the East that Frank Frazier has been engaged to take charge of Chehalis 2:04½ again and drive him in his races this year. One thing is certain—Chehalis has never done as well since Frazier sold him and it may be that once successful combination will again work all right. There are many who think that Chehalis can pace three heats better than 2:04 and his owner is one of them.

Giles Noyes (p) 2:05½, one of the Splan consignment sold in New York last week for $1650, will be driven by his new owner A. C. Fiske on the New York Speedway.

The New Memphis Trotting Track will get an abundance of pure water from a 10-inch Artesian Well.

NEARLY FIFTEEN THOUSAND DOLLARS is guaranteed the harness horse owners who enter and race at Los Angeles at the big thirteen days' meeting to be given by Agricultural District No. 6, commencing Saturday, September 28th and closing Saturday, October 12th. To be exact the sum of money hung up for harness races is $14,300, and it is divided among eighteen classes. There are four stakes of $1000 each for the free-for-all and 2:10 trotters and free-for-all and 2:09 pacers. Then there are six stakes of $800 each for trotters of the 2:12, 2:14 and 2:15 classes, and pacers of the 2:11, 2:13 and 2:15 classes. $750 is offered the 2:19 class trotters and the same amount goes to pacers of the 2:17 class. The 2:23 class trotters get $700, the 2:20 class pacers the same, and the three year old trotters and pacers get $600 each to contest for. The foregoing classes all close July 1st, when horses must be named and eligible. In addition to these stakes there are two nomination stakes of $700 each for 2:30 trotters and 2:25 pacers. These stakes close at the same time as the others—July 1st, but the horses are not to be named until September 1st, at which date they must be eligible to these classes. Owners will notice that where the same horse is entered in two races, the events will be put at least four days apart, thus giving every one a chance to start a horse three or four times during the thirteen days on which racing will be held. The fast classes have been especially well taken care of by the Los Angeles association, and there is no reason why every horse that will be campaigned in California this year should not be entered at this meeting as every possible class has been provided for. It is the desire and the intention of the Directors at Los Angeles to make this meeting a little better than any yet held in Southern California and the program has been especially arranged to draw all the best horses in the State. The local trotters and pacers will not have to compete with the crackerjacks of the East at this meeting as the date has been advanced about three weeks ahead of the usual time and racing will not be over on the Eastern grand circuit until after the Los Angeles meeting closes. The Los Angeles track is one of the best and most picturesque in the country. Harness racing is very popular in that city, which has long been famous for the crowds that turn out to witness it. The officers of the association will do everything within their power to make the visit of horsemen pleasant and profitable and it is to be hoped that their efforts will be rewarded by a big list of entries in each and every class. Remember that entries close July 1st. The full condition of the races will be found in our advertising columns.

IT IS PROBABLY BEST for all concerned that the Board of Review of the National Trotting Association reversed its former decision in the John A. McKerron case, and placed the actual record of Mr. Devereux's stallion back to 2:12, and it is to be hoped that the recommendation made that the next Congress "frame and report rules governing matinee performances" will be carried out. It has been the expressed conviction of this journal that the mile in 2:10 made by John A. McKerron in his race for the Boston cup constituted a record the same as if he had raced for money, and we are still inclined to that opinion. But we are also cognizant of the fact that many, very many ableer than we hold a different view and we respect every person's opinion that is honestly formed. We believe there is a vast difference in matinee races held at stated or other intervals where no prizes but blue ribbons are hung up, and largely advertised events in which valuable cups or other trophies are contested for. The point of the Board's decision hangs on the statement that "the evidence shows that the owner of the horse was not, nor by any possible means could be, a beneficiary to the value of a penny in the winning of this event." As John A. McKerron is a stallion and was bred to a large number of high class mares this season, we think his winning the cup race must have benefitted his owner materially. Had he lost the race, or had he failed to come up to his former record, he certainly would have been a less valuable horse than he is today. But now that the case has been decided there is nothing to be gained by a further discussion of it. It is the duty of the National Association Congress, however, to make rules at its next session that will leave no doubt as to what constitutes a record in the future. The full text of the decision is as follows:

In the case of the application of Harry Devereux, of Cleveland, for a rehearing in case 3806, the additional evidence filed seems to prove that the race in which the horse John A. McKerron participated at Readville, Mass., in September, 1900, wherein he won the challenge trophy for the Gentleman's Driving Club of Cleveland, does not constitute a public race when the letter and the spirit of the rules are construed jointly on this occasion. No entrance fee was charged, no gate money collected and no privileges were sold. The race was never advertised nor was the public admitted to the grounds. Those present were admitted only on presentation of cards of invitation.

The competitors in this event were limited to members of five amateur driving clubs. The inscription upon the cup states that it is a challenge trophy. While by the letter of the rule this might be considered by casual observers as a premium, the evidence shows that the owner of the horse was not nor by any means could be a beneficiary to the value of a penny in winning this event. His sole reward, therefore, consisted in the pardonable pride following success and whatever honors were attached thereto.

In the case of the mare Elloree, which is almost identical with this case, and the only like one of recent years, when brought before the rules committee of the National Trotting Association the committee, with only two dissenting votes, held that such matinee performances did not constitute a record, and the fact was so self-evident that they refused to submit the case to the Congress for decision.

Holding in the light of the evidence submitted that winning the trophy did not constitute a record, and that in so finding no one is injured either in person or property, while a contrary decision would operate to the serious injury of multitudinous owners, breeders, trainers and trotting associations, it is ordered that the record made by John A. McKerron at Readville, Mass., in September, 1900, be considered a matinee record only, the same as made by other performers at matinee meetings. It is recommended that the rules committee of the next Congress frame and report rules applicable to and governing matinee performances.

EIGHT OR TEN WEEKS of harness racing will be held in California this season, and the purses will be liberal. The Breeders, State Fair and Los Angeles will each give purses ranging from $500 to $1000, and at the other places they will range from $300 to $750. It will be readily seen that a horse that can win will have a good earning capacity in this State this season and owners and trainers need have no fear but there will be plenty of opportunity to race. There will be classes for all the horses in California.

The center field of the New Memphis Trotting Track has been graded so that the horses feet will be visible all the way round. *

BUYERS are "from Missouri" now and long drawn out stories of speed and other good qualities have but little effect, no matter how eloquent and earnest sellers may be. "Show me" is the edict when the claim of 2:20 speed is made, and if a green horse can make a quarter in 35 seconds and is sound there need be no long delay at trading. The editor of this journal is often importuned to find a buyer for horses whose owners relate wonderful stories of miles in 2:20, halves in 1:07 and quarters even as fast as 31 seconds. We will say to all these owners that "hot air" will not sell a horse nowadays. The speed must be shown. A gentleman showed us a handsome and well bred mare recently that he said could trot "a mile in 2:15 sure." He wanted to sell and named a thousand dollars as the price. Our advice to him was to have the mare trained and when she was able to step a nice mile in 2:20 if he would let us know we would send two or three buyers to see the performance and the thousand dollars would be paid by one of them and the others might outbid him. We know of quite a number of buyers who want green trotters that can show a mile in 2:20 and pacers that can go in 2:15. They will pay good but not fancy prices. A thousand dollars is a fair price. But the speed must be shown. They will not go across the street to look at a horse that cannot show the speed they want. Stories of miles in 2:18 with three weeks' work or tales of quarters at two minute speed to a cart, "pass them as the idle wind which they respect not." They must see the speed themselves and hold the watch that catches it. In the slang of the horse traders "they are all from Missouri."

THE STANFORD STAKE for foals of last year, to be trotted in 1903, will close June 1st, one week from to-day. Colts well entered in stakes have a value far in excess of the cost of entering. Show a buyer a three year old in May, 1903, and after telling of his speed and calling attention to his good looks, add the information that he is entered and all paid up to date in the Stanford Stake. Is there any doubt but the fifty dollars entrance money will add at the very least calculation two hundred dollars to the price that a buyer will be willing to pay? In other words, a likely colt entered and paid up on in this Stake will more readily sell for a thousand dollars than for eight hundred were he not entered. There is a good profit in entering well bred colts in stakes, keeping the payments up and having the colts trained. Try it this year with your colt. It only costs five dollars to enter him June 1st.

THE CALIFORNIANS who will race across the mountains this year must not forget to enter in those six rich events that are advertised by the Oakley Park, Cincinnati. There is the big sum of nineteen thousand dollars offered in six purses, three of them for trotters and three for pacers. The 2:30 trotters are offered the biggest sum, $5000 and we would like to see some California owner bring the first money in this race home with him. The 2:14 class trotters are given $3000, and the three year old trotters $2000. There are three purses of $3000 each for pacers of the 2:24, 2:14 and 2:09 classes. Some of our California horses ought to win a good part of this money. The entries will close next Saturday, June 1st. Send your entries to P. J. Campbell, Secretary, Station O., Cincinnati.

A GOOD CIRCUIT will be the result if Santa Rosa, Vallejo, Woodland, Sacramento, Stockton, Salinas and Los Angeles all hold meetings and it looks now as if all will be in line.

Good Horses for Sale.

Mr. R. Scott, of Bishop Inyo county, will offer for sale at auction at the Alameda track next Wednesday, May 29th, a car lot of trotting bred horses that are said by those who have seen them to have more substance and quality than any lot of horses that have been offered for sale in this vicinity for some time. They are by Mount Vernon Prince, Gibraltar Jr. and Ben Benton, out of mares by a son of Bismark. Mount Vernon Prince is a grandson of the great Nutwood, Gibraltar Jr. is a son of Gibraltar, sire of Our Dick 2:10, and others, and Ben Benton is a son of Gen. Benton, the famous Palo Alto sire. There are two trotters by Gibraltar Jr. in this sale that showed speed enough to train, and although they have had no track work are already to begin hard work on and to enter in the races this year. All these horses have been driven and are broken. Having been raised in the mountains they have the best of feet and legs and are an extra good lot. The sale is next Wednesday at 11 A. M. at Alameda track.

The Readville trainers are commencing to enthuse over Admiral Dewey, the three year old son of Bingen 2:06, and Nancy Hanks 2:04. Henry Titer is giving him slow work only as yet, but Jack Wall says that he got his head for a little way the other morning, and stepped faster than he has seen any horse show this season.

How Cunard Won the Stallion Stakes.

On perfectly even terms, with equal weights by the scale and rules, no favor and a fair field, fair in the sense that the deep mud was as much to the disadvantage of one horse as of another, the pick of the two-year-olds in training raced for the fourth National Stallion Stakes at the Morris Park track last Saturday. A crowd of more than 10,000 spectators tiptoed to see the contest, and hurrahed encouragement to the runners and riders from every possible point of vantage, between the coaching park in the paddock and the last line of the fence separating the field stand from the stable enclosure, with an enthusiasm befitting the running of the first great race of the season for the best of the two-year-olds. When the public favorite, and the best horse in point of fact, on the performance from every standpoint, Green B. Morris' Cunard got to the winning post first by two lengths, winner in handy style at the end, the cheer that rose in greeting rang loud and true, and hearty enough to do credit to the greatest race of this or any other season. The race was a remarkably pretty one as a spectacle, and, better than that, was an accurate test of the merits of the horses under the weights and conditions that ran for the big prize, the gross value of which was $15,015, divided into eight shares under the terms of the race.

From the opening of the betting to the close Cunard and Golden Cottage were supported most consistently, chiefly on account of the fast public trial on Thursday, when the colts, working together, covered the last five furlongs of the Eclipse course, down the straightaway; the same course over which they were to run for the stallion stakes, in a fraction better than one minute, the best work done for the race, and a most convincing performance aside from the form the colts had showed in San Francisco, before they were brought to the East. The G. B. Morris entry went to the post at an average price of about 13 to 10, while 6 to 1 was obtainable against the next choices.

The start was one of Starter Fitzgerald's best efforts, the field going away lined out all abreast, with no horse having any appreciable disadvantage. McDowell was the first to show from the crowd, with Saturday second Golden Cottage third, Cunard fourth and Carroll D. fifth, the others so close together that it was next to impossible to say what were their positions. In the first furlong Cunard, well in hand, went up to the lead with a neck the advantage over Golden Cottage, led at a fast pace to the dip in the straight course, McDowell third to that point, Carroll D. fourth and Saturday fifth, while the others had already begun to straggle, Firing Line and Enright being the closest of the field to the leaders. Coming out of the hollow, Golden Cottage began to swerve and fell back, while Cunard led McDowell by a neck, with Carroll D. then a length away. In the ascent of the grade coming to the winning post McDowell and Carroll D. made their run after the leader, in the meantime slipping away from Saturday and Firing Line, while Enright moved forward from seventh place, but too late to have a chance to win, he then being so far back that it was beyond reason to hope for him to get to the leaders.

The last half furlong brought about a mighty fight, the three horses in the front rank then were spread out on even terms, Cunard still having a shade the best of it, while McDowell and Carroll D., both under the whip, clung with him long enough to compel O'Connor on the leader to draw his whip. Cunard instantly responded and came away with O'Connor at work on him, while the next two flogged home in vain, Cunard admirably ridden and remarkably well handled throughout, getting further away as they approached the end, and eased up on the post, winning rather handily by a length and a half, with Carroll D., who got up in the last stride and was second by a head, from McDowell third. Saturday was fourth and Enright fifth, Firing Line, Blanche Hermann, Golden Cottage, Dean Swift, Whiskey King, Gold Seeker, Peninsula and Byrne of Roscrea following in the order named. The time was 1:01, an excellent performance, considering the condition of the track. The gross value of the stakes was $15,015, of which $11,015 went to the winner and $1000 to the nominator of the winner, J. B. Haggin, who also gets $600 more as the nominator of the sire of the winner, the imported horse Goldfinch. The second horse gets $1000, while his sire's owner, August Belmont, will get $360. The third horse gets $500 and the nominator of his sire, W. M. Field, gets $240. Cunard pulled up very sore, and it is said will not race again for some time.

Commando Wins the Belmont.

NEW YORK, May 23.—Commando, the son of Domino, won the classic Belmont stake at Morris Park to-day and stamped himself the best three year old of recent years. He was a strong favorite in the betting at 7 to 10, made all the running and won galloping by two lengths in 2:21, the track record for the distance. It was the last day of the Westchester Racing Association's spring meeting, and a crowd of at least 15,000 people was in attendance. Only three horses went to the post for the Belmont. Commando and The Parader both opened at even money, the former being backed to 7 to 10, while The Parader went up to 7 to 5. All Green went begging at 15 to 1. They were sent off on the first break to a good start, and Spencer took Commando to the front and led by two lengths up the backstretch. Going up the hill The Parader moved up to him, and they ran neck and neck around the far turn. For a few jumps The Parader showed in front, but it was only on sufferance, and when Spencer called on Commando at the head of the stretch he came away and won easily. The Parader was under the whip through the last furlong in a fruitless effort to get up. All Green was a bad third. Commando got an ovation when he returned to the scales. Summary:

The Belmont, mile and three-eighths—Commando, 126 (Spencer), 7 to 10, won; The Parader, 126 (Landry), 7 to 5 and out, second; All Green, 126 (Shaw), 15 to 1, and 8 to 5, third. Time 2:21.

Judges of Live Stock in Demand.

[Chicago Inter-Ocean.]

Good judges of live stock are a scarce article and are in constant demand. The prosperity of the firms engaged in the tremendous live-stock business of the country depends almost absolutely upon the ability of their buyers accurately to determine the correct value of the animals they buy. A mistake, an error of judgment, may mean a difference of thousands of dollars on the wrong side of the ledger, and if long continued means ultimate bankruptcy. Hence it follows that live stock firms are always in the market for competent men, and are only too glad and willing to pay them handsome salaries for their services.

In order to stimulate the interest of young men in this subject John A. Spoor, general manager of the Union stock yards of Chicago, a short time ago offered a handsome trophy to be awarded to the college whose students should make the best record in judging cattle in competition at the Union stock yards. The big firms at the yards also became interested in the competition and offered money prizes as well. Most of the great agricultural colleges of the country have in the past few years added departments the special purpose of which is the teaching of just such knowledge concerning the judging of animals as the stock-yards men require.

The first contest for the Spoor trophy and the money prizes took place at the stock yards last December and the students of the University of Illinois simply swept the field. They not only captured the Spoor trophy, but they also got nearly all the money offered as prizes. The trophy has just been received by the animal husbandry department of the university. It is a bronze bull on a marble pedestal, and was modeled by Isador Bonheur at Paris. Its cost was $700. The trophy is to be competed for annually, and will be awarded to the institution making the highest standing in all classes, three men to be entered in each event.

The showing of Illinois at the December contests was considered most remarkable by the professional judges employed at the show. Eight universities, whose representatives aggregated fifty-one men, entered the contest, and out of the $1135 offered as prizes Illinois won $846.65, which is three times as much as all the other institutions combined. The money prizes awarded to the contesting college teams were as follows:

Competitors.	Money won.
University of Illinois.....	$846.65
University of Wisconsin.....	87.50
Ontario Agricultural College.....	73.00
University of Iowa.....	49.32
University of Indiana.....	39.50
University of Michigan.....	33.50
University of North Dakota.....	4.00
University of Missouri.....

Illinois secured first place in eight out of the twelve events. Worthen of the Illinois team won the distinction of two perfects in cattle judging, an unusual occurrence. The judges who examined the students' work were twelve of the most prominent stockmen in America, and as none of the competing collegians was known to them favoritism was impossible.

The students who were responsible for the state university winning the trophy are:

George M. Richardson, Harristown, Ill.
George R. Camp, Harristown, Ill.
E. T. Robbins, Payson, Ill.
S. J. Haight, Mendota, Ill.
E. L. Worthen, Warsaw, Ill.

Mr. Worthen, whose individual record was the best made at the meet, is a sophomore, and at the time of the contest had received less than six months' training in stock-judging work. Illinois was thought to be seriously handicapped because of the youth and inexperience of her representatives. None of her men had received more than nine months' training, while her opponents were, with a few exceptions, members of the senior class, with four years' experience.

The stock judging department was added to the College of Agriculture at the State University two years ago, W. J. Kennedy, who won the world's championship for Iowa University in 1898, being put in charge. Starting originally with a few dozen students, the enrollment has rapidly expanded, the present attendance of the various classes being 300. Since winning the championship trophy over 250 students from other institutions have written to Mr. Kennedy, signifying their intention of coming to Illinois, so that the department, despite its facilities for handling large classes, will probably be taxed to accommodate its students. Letters have been received from seventeen States, a number coming from New England, making inquiries regarding the course of instruction, its cost and the probabilities of putting the knowledge to practical use.

There is a large demand for students from the department to fill places as stock buyers, and Mr. Kennedy has a score of applications from responsible houses for which he is unable to supply men. One student who left the university last spring, after a course of nine months, is receiving $2500 yearly as purchasing agent for a stock yards firm. Another, who cost his father $6000 in a stock buying venture, took a course at the university and is now a successful stock buyer.

The methods employed by Mr. Kennedy are of the utmost practicability. There being little literature upon the subject, the classes are drilled upon the actual work of judging various animals, the stock being furnished by breeders of fine stock in Champaign county.

The work in winter is done in the stock-judging room of the new agricultural building, and in spring and fall at the university farm. The hall is well heated and lighted and has a tanbark floor. Tying arrangements are provided for five animals and seats are arranged for 200 students. The work in horse, beef, cattle, swine and sheep judging is conducted by Mr. Kennedy, and Prof. W. A. Fraser has charge of the instruction on dairy cattle. This class is at present engaged in the study of light horses, the work on this sort of animal having been pursued for several weeks. In starting a class a horse was brought into the hall, and its various parts were pointed out and designated by name. Thorough drill was given until the class became perfectly familiar with each part. The animal was then examined for soundness and later for conformation, a score card being used for this purpose.

As soon as the student has a fixed idea of the ideal type the score card is dispensed with, and all judging is thereafter done by comparison, four or five animals being compared at one time, their merits and defects being judged on a basis of 100 points for the ideal conformation. In this work a printed form, divided into four parts is used. In the first space the student writes a description of the animal he thinks deserves first place, giving a criticism of the specimen and stating the points wherein it is superior to each of the others. Each horse is taken in turn, the points of superiority and deficiency being written on the card. Later, Mr. Kennedy corrects the papers and at the next session of the class gives a practical demonstration of his correctness, using the specimens upon which to point out his meaning.

Nine courses are offered in the four years' work. An effort is made to show the particular type of animal best suited to meat, milk and wool production, and to labor and speed. In the live stock classes, the management of flocks and herds is taught, and the different grades of mutton and wool, and the sort of animals that produce them. How beef and pork are produced and the character of the breeds comes under consideration of the class for several weeks. A critical study is made of dairy and beef cattle, and the types and breeds of driving, draft and light horses, and methods of training is an important part of the year's work. Much attention is given to the compounding of rations, each student being required to conduct a feeding experiment upon either horses or beef cattle.

The class usually enjoys facilities for field work, the university herds furnishing excellent material for comparative judging. During last winter classes were conducted during the two weeks of a stockman's convention held at the university for the benefit of the farmers of the state. Several hundred farmers attended the meeting and showed an enthusiastic interest in the work. They look upon the methods employed at the university as practical from the standpoint of the farmer and stockman.

Answers to Correspondents.

B. D., San Bernardino.—Please inform me through your paper whether old Silkwood of Santa Ana, formerly owned by Mr. Willets, is registered or not?

Answer.—Yes; in Volume 9 of the American Trotting Register. His number is 12,326.

Dr. Kane, President of the New York Road Driver's association at a dinner given by that organization recently offered the following toast to the horse: "That bundle of sentient nerves, with a heart of a woman, the eye of a gazelle, the courage of a gladiator, the docility of a slave, the proud carriage of a king, and the blind obedience of a good soldier. The companion of the desert and plain; that turns the moist furrow in the spring, in order that all the world may have abundant harvests; that furnishes the sport of kings; that, with blazing eye and distended nostril, fearlessly leads our greatest generals through carnage and the smoke of battle to glory and renown; whose blood forms one of the ingredients that go to make the ink in which all history is written, and who, finally mutely and sadly in black trappings pulls the humblest of us to the newly sodded threshold of eternity."

Scott McCoy and his assistants are busy just now at James Butler's East View Farm. One of the sensational mares of last year Hettie G. is going strong and sound, and Directum Kelly is giving promise of being able to race this year. Several youngsters by Directum Kelly are also showing great form, and some of them will be campaigned.

Nutwood Wilkes will be a great brood mare sire. Two three year olds out of his daughters are in training and both are very fast.

Green trotters that can go three heats in 2:20 ought to win money enough in California this year to make them profitable.

Some of the California horsemen that will go to Denver may come back in time to race at the Breeders meeting.

California should have one big stake each year for green trotters. It would help the business wonderfully.

Took a McMurray.

Det Bigelow looked around for a first class bike to take East with him and help Tags 2:13 win a lot of money, and while out at Konney the bikeman's at 531 Valencia street last Tuesday picked out a nice McMurray and thinks he has the best sulky he ever rode in. Konney sold two McMurrays last week to Honolulu parties. One of them was selected by Dick Havey, his instructions being to get a good one. As Mr. Havey is a good judge of a bike his selection of the McMurray for his friend is quite a compliment to that make of sulky.

The New Memphis Trotting Track is a hundred feet wide, and if this extreme width makes the stretches appear as short to the horses as they do to the human eye, all the faint-hearted horses in the circuit will be breaking records over it this Fall.

SULKY NOTES.

When the Colts Begin to Come.

McKinney will be mated with more mares than any stallion in California this year and Diablo will be next.

Jack Groom will soon leave Alameda for Sacramento with the Diablo pacer Sir Albert S., owned by William G. Layng.

Vallejo has raised $1000, and Sacramento $1200 to induce the "Breeders" to come to those towns with its meetings.

Andy McDowell is at the Charter Oak track, Hartford, with J. H. Bronson's stable of horses including Coney 2:02½.

The Abbot 2:03½ wears seven ounce shoes in front, and in the spring a two ounce too weight is put on and used until the races begin.

Alta Vela 2:15½, is in S. A. Hooper's hands at Woodland. The Electioneer stallion looks good and should step a little better than his record this year.

Walter Masten is working John A. 2:12½ at Woodland and the son of Wayland W. is going better than ever, although he has not had any fast work yet.

Boydello 2:14½, in Ed Lafferty's string, has not shown the least symptom of lameness in the ankle joint that was wrenched last year and is taking his regular work.

Riley B. 2:06½ and Blondie Redwood 2:11 are matched for a purse at the Rich Hill, Mo., track, June 19th. The race will be best two in three, the winner to take all the money.

Seth Griffin, the famous track builder, reports that he will finish the Memphis track proper by the first of June, but the building and fences will not be completed until a month or so later.

Murray Howe, of Memphis, Tenn., reports that he has made arrangements with eleven railroads centering in Memphis for special rates on borses to and from the Memphis meeting this fall.

The annual meeting of the members of the Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeders Association will be held at 36 Geary street, Monday, June 11th, at 8 o'clock P. M. Every member should be present.

A number of well bred mares and driving horses are to be sold by William G. Layng at the Occidental Horse Exchange June 5th. They are from the Yerba Buena farm of Henry Pierce near San Jose.

A. F. Anderson has transferred his interest in the Pleasanton race track to the Pleasanton Training Track Association. Mr. Anderson is one of the principal stockholders in the above named company.

Santa Anita Maid 2:20 and Neerana, a green mare by Neernut 2:12½, are now owned by a Cleveland, Ohio, gentleman, who purchased them last month from Walter Mabeu and Joe Desmond of Los Angeles.

Hazel Kinney has dropped a bay filly by Stam B. There is lots of speed in the pedigree of this little miss. Her sire's record is 2:11½, her grandsire's 2:07½. Her dam's record is 2:09½ and the record of her dam's sire is 2:11½.

Sagwa 2:13½, the horse that was to beat all the fast ones last year but didn't, has been shifted to the pace, and goes without hobbles. He is in Thomas W. Lawson's string at Baltimore that James Gatcomb is training.

Owners of large draft stallions in Salinas valley are reaping a harvest this year. There is a craze among the farmers on the subject of breeding and many of the owners of stallions in public stud are refusing to book any more mares.

Stam B. 2:11½, who is being handled by Hi Hogboom at Sacramento, stepped a quarter in 31½ seconds two weeks ago to-day. As Stam B. is in the stud and has not been worked to speak of this shows that his great speed is natural.

The Goshen, New York Driving Club has again broken the record for the largest list of entries for a half-mile track meeting. A total of 280 entries has been received for nine events, or an average of over thirty-one to each race.

This is the season of the year when a bottle of Vita Oil is a necessary article in every training stable. It will prevent muscular soreness when applied in time, or will cure it. Many aches and pains can be cured in man or beast by Vita Oil.

A good green trotting mare that is credited with a half in 1:07 and a quarter in 31½ seconds is Mary P. by Alexander Button. She is owned by Mr. Proctor, a fruit farmer of Woodland and is being trained by Mativia at the track in that town.

We have received a picture of a handsome mare with a foal by her side taken away up at Victoria, B. C. The mare is Fanny Putnam 2:13, owned by W. J. Stevenson of that city, and the foal is a colt by Tennysonian 32545, son of Electricity and Swift by Sidney.

There are many three year old trotters and pacers in training in California this year and associations giving race meetings should provide for them. Los Angeles has done well by offering $600 for the three year olds of each class. Two good races should result.

Frauk Bogash (p) 2:03½ is showing great form this spring. Jas. Golden has him; also Farris 2:12½ by Anteo. Farris is also in good form and looks to be good in his class. At the September meeting at Hartford Farris was a close second to Charley Herr the first heat of the 2:10 trot in 2:10.

Mr. C. K. G. Billings is building a very unique winter training stable at the new trotting track in Memphis. The stable proper forms three sides to a square, it will accommodate thirty trotters and coach horses, and the center will be fitted up as a tan bark arena in which the latter will be schooled.

At Marcus Daly's famous Bitter Root Farm, Hamilton, Mont., Joe Rea is now schooling fifty-seven youngsters, mostly the get of Prodigal 2:16, Ponce de Leon 2:13 and Milroi. Of these forty-nine are two-year-olds, of which twenty-four are by Prodigal, eight by Ponce de Leon and nine by Milroi.

Trainer Henry Titer says Arion 2:07½ has nine in the list and fifteen others which he has timed from 2:15 to 2:20, out of a total of seventy foals. One of the best of the family that is likely to be seen in public this season is San Telmo, which showed a heat in 2:12½ last season, and which John Riley is training at Mystic Park.

New Richmond, the gray colt whose name appears in the entry lists of several of the slow pacing classes over East, is by Brown Hal 2:12½, dam Jewess, a sister to Arrow 2:13½ and Elwood 2:17½ by A. W. Richmond, second dam the great broodmare Crichton's First by Crichton, son of Glencoe. He is owned by William Gerst, Nashville, Tenn., and worked a mile in 2:09 last August.

Mrs. Geo. Woodard owns a three year old stallion by Alexander Button out of Viola by Flaxtail that she has named Alexander Woodard. He is a big, fine looking horse and shows speed. His dam Viola is the dam of Vidette 2:16, Vileria 2:19, Sacramento Girl 2:30 and Violin 2:12, the fastest mare in Honolulu. Daughters of Viola have produced five with standard records.

I. Mulholland, the owner of Osito 2:13½, has added the pacing mare Edna R. to his string and will enter her in the 2:13 class this year. The Year Book gives Edna R.'s record at 2:11½, made at San Jose last October, which would bar her from this class, but in the report sent to the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN from San Jose her fastest heat was 2:13. While the Year Book's summary is marked with the official single star, we incline to the opinion that it is wrong, and that Edna R.'s record is not 2:11½ but 2:13, and that she is therefore eligible to the 2:13 class. It is to be hoped that the question will be settled before any trouble arises over it.

Although John R. Gentry has been one of the busiest campaigners on the turf and has served but few mares, he is looming up as a progenitor of speed. Last year one of his sons, Gentry's Treasure, took a record of 2:10, and another, Jim Ramey, a record of 2:10½. For a yearling filly by him, a square gaited trotter, an offer of $1500 was recently refused.

There is a yearling pacer at the Salinas track that attracts much attention. He is by Dictatus out of Salinas Maid 2:30 by Junio, second dam by Carr's Mambrino. Jimmy Dwain has been breaking the youngster and the speed shown by the colt is said to be sensational. William Vanderhurst is his owner and expects him to develop into a race horse.

One of the fastest workouts reported was at Louisville a few days ago, when Ed Geers, with Lord Derby 2:07½, and George Spear, with Sphinx S. 2:09½, set out to go a mile in company. The mile was in 2:22, last half in 1:08½, last quarter in 32½ seconds and the last eighth in 14½ seconds. As Lord Derby finished this mile at a clip below the two-minute rate, it looks as if, after The Abbot, he may be the sensational trotter of the year. The Abbot has not been asked to go very fast yet, but has been a mile in 2:28, last quarter in 34 seconds.

Secretary Murray Howe writes that he is more than delighted with the new track at Memphis and its location and feels confident of great success. The conditions are such that all the best horses will be attracted and hobbles will not be barred. He says: "The track is 100 feet wide, and if this extreme width makes the stretches appear as short to the horses as they do to the human eye, every faint hearted horse in the Circuit will be breaking records over it this fall." C. K. G. Billings is building a unique winter training stable at the new track. The stable proper forms three sides of a square, and it will accommodate thirty trotters and coach horses. In the centre will be a tan bark arena for training and schooling purposes.

On the day that the late Wm. E. Spier, former owner of Robert McGregor, died, Geo. H. Ketcham of Toledo was at his farm superintending the erection of a monument to the horse. This monument is of Missouri red granite, 7½ feet high, 6½ feet wide, and 1½ in thickness, and weighs six tons. It was donated to Mr. Ketcham by St. Francis de Sales church people, and was a stone intended for use in the foundation of their new church edifice. The inscription on this stone reads as follows:

Robert McGregor.
"Monarch of the Home Stretch."
Foaled 1871. Died 1891.
A Sire of Race Horses.

Says the Salinas Journal: "James B. Iverson has sold to Dr. Ward of San Francisco a handsome, well matched team of young carriage horses. The team was recently broken by F. M. Hammett and 'shaped up' so as to fill the eye of the most critical horse connoisseur. They are a pair of bays, clean limbed, standing 16.1 hands and high-gaited, with speed enough for any ordinary road requirements. Theo are both by Mr. Iverson's Electioneer stallion Engineer 20450. One is a gelding, five years, out of a mare by Steinway Jr., and the other is a mare, six years old, out of Jennie by the thoroughbred Kingston, a son of imported Hercules. The animals were shipped to their new owner in charge of Mr. Hammett. The price paid for the team was $500."

Bert Wobster has taken a string of Chas. Griffith's horses from Pleasanton to the San Jose track. Bonnie Direct 2:05½ heads the string and with him are Rect 2:16½, Domino, a green pacer, a Diablo colt and Flying Jib. Tommy Murphy, the well known horseshoer, drove Flying Jib from San Francisco to San Jose for Mr. Griffith. It is a fifty mile drive and Murphy made it in four hours and a half, including a short stop at Palo Alto. He says the Jib never drew a long breath during the trip and arrived at the San Jose track looking as if he had only been out for a jog. Mr. Webster will work the horses in his string for speed preparatory to his Eastern trip. They are all in good shape and the San Jose track is in perfect condition for fast work.

Det Bigelow, who for years trained and drove the horses belonging to the late Geo. Woodard, and who knows all this horses belonging to the Woodard estate, was in the office last Tuesday and was asked about the breeding of Geo. T. Bennett, better known as the Honolulu horse, in regard to which there has been some dispute. Bigelow says there is no doubt of the breeding; that the horse is by Alex Button, first dam Maggie McMahon by Cresco 4908, second dam Annie Laurie 2:30 by Echo, fourth dam Black Swan by California Ten Broeck, fifth dam by Davy Crockett. Mr. Proctor, of Woodland, has a two year old full brother to the Honolulu horse, and Cbas. Langenour of the same place has a full sister, which he will breed to Diablo this year. The two year old is a handsome colt and the filly is also a good looker. Geo. T. Bennett was taken to Denver by John Blue, who will campaign him.

The Western Horseman says of the horse Boodler, a son of Boodle that was taken East last year by B. O. Van Bokkelen: "The man who is lucky enough to buy the green trotting gelding, Boodler, at the Cleveland Blue Ribbon sale, next week, will get one of the greatest prizes of the year, as he is undoubtedly one of the handsomest as well as fastest green ones in the United States. In his first race last year, when sick and out of condition, he was timed separately in 2:16, and, shortly afterward, went an easy mile in 2:15, half in 1:05 and a quarter in thirty seconds. Jay Critchfield, Charlie Doble and W. L. Snow, all of whom drove him at different times last season, prophesied that he will trot in 2:10 this year. He was started in a few races to educate him last season, and has had a slow and careful preparation this spring at the hands of that veteran trainer, John Hussey, and is in the pink of condition to train on and win the money. He is well entered in the Grand Circuit."

THE SADDLE.

American and English Earnings Compared.

The exodus of so many prominent turfmen with their horses to England is at present the most talked of subject in turf circles and the question of the relative profit of racing in England and America is being discussed in every training centre in the country. Eagerly the unsophisticated are drinking in the stories of the marvelous chance of winning millions on the Epsom Downs and Newmarket Heath and it is useless to predict that many will return from their season across the pond much the wiser and much the poorer for their experience. Of course, expenses cut a small figure with men of the wealth of James R. Keene and W. C. Whitney, but the small fry who count their possessions by the thousands instead of by the millions are the ones who may have cause to regret that they did not stay and race their stables at home. Racing in England is an expensive luxury. R. Ten Broeck, the pioneer American turfman in racing abroad, lost everything except his Kentucky estate after English turf honors and in the face of the fact that his horses earned the sum of $197,765 in that country. The expenses in the year he raced there were even more than this and he returned to this side to raise money by selling Hurstbourne, his elegant country home in the Bluegrass State. The late Milton H. Sanford was a heavy loser on his English racing venture and it is a question, notwithstanding his many successes, if Pierre Lorillard has not spent more than he has taken in by racing abroad.

A careful study of the American racing guides and the English turf calendars reveals the fact that a good race horse is a good piece of paying property in his own country. England has seen racing for two centuries and turf sports flourished in the Old World a hundred years before the promulgation of the Declaration of Independence. Still in all this period only 22 horses have won $100,000 or over on the turf in that country, and one of these was an American bred performer. Still another would not get into the charmed circles had he not won the Grand Prix at Paris. On the other hand 15 performers have won $100,000 or more on the American turf, and thus, with over a century's start in breeding, England has little the best of us in big winners. Below the $100,000 line our average is better than England's. For example, Hamburg may be cited, who earned but $62,453 during his career on the turf, an amount below that won by 49 other American horses. Still it exceeds the turf winnings in England of the much-talked-of Isonomy, Galopin and Doncaster, and is over $20,000 more than was earned on the turf by the Derby winner, imp. St. Blaise. Take our own Iroquois, who won the Derby and St. Leger, and who figures among England's $100,000 winners, and we have 15 performers that won more money in America than the son of imp. Leamington captured in the old world. Coming down to big races, England has never had a Derby as valuable as the Chicago World's Fair Derby, won by Boundless, in 1863, which was worth $50,000 to the winner. The Futurity, not in one but in several years, has been worth more than any two year old race ever run in England.

The table of 50 large winners of American racing history furnishes a means of comparison of the winnings of American and English horses, and America's showing is a grand one. Fifty horses have won the enormous sum of $4,567,683. It is worthy of note that our horses have raced longer and run a great many more races than the English stars, who have generally been retired in the zenith of their fame. England can point to no horse like Kingston, who raced successfully up to ten years of age and then went into the stud and in the second season his get raced led the winning sires of his country. The American list shows two world's records. Domino won more money as a two-year-old than any colt or filly of that age in any country and Raceland won more money than any gelding in the world. As to La Fleche and Sea Breeze, they are the only performers that have won more money than our own Miss Woodford and Firenze, both of which led such stars of the Old World as Achievement, Jannette and Formosa in this respect. Iroquois and imp. Rayon d'Or are the only $100,000 winners that have sired horses that won $100,000 or more on the American turf, the former getting Tammany and the latter Banquet. In the matter of $100,000 winners St. Simon, as a sire, is in a class by himself, he having to his credit La Fleche, Persimmon, St. Frausquin and Diamond Jubilee. Isonomy, who sired Isinglass and Sea Breeze, is the only other English sire who ever got two winners of $100,000 or over. Ormonde and his son Orme are the only two winners of this high sum that have sired winners of $100,000 or over, Flying Fox being by the latter. Ormonde is also the only unbeaten horse in this list of big winners in either England or this country.

Cripples Scientifically Treated.

[E. C. Walker in Trotter and Pacer, May 16.]

Sometimes a game cripple, scientifically treated, beats the sound horses. This was the case in the Metropolitan Handicap race, of one mile run, last Saturday at Morris Park and won by Banaster in 1:42. The four-year old Contester, who was only beaten a head by Banaster, was the subject of special and peculiar care, by his veteran trainer Welden. A Morris track reporter states: "For four hours every day during the last week Wyndham Walden had Contester's near fore leg packed in ice to the knee to keep it from failing before the Metropolitan, and for two hours while the leg was being treated a man stood beside the Galore colt with a steam apparatus spraying his nostrils with a solution of carbolic acid, glycerine and bicarbonate of soda. The ice was used to keep down the inflammation in a tendon ruptured last fall and the spray for an attack of chronic catarrh."

Contester is described as a strapping big fellow, sixteen hands two inches in height, with heroic proportions. Contester's troubles began two years ago this month, when he caught a severe cold, which developed into chronic catarrh. This catarrh made him thick winded, and last spring, when he was at his best, he could not run farther than seven furlongs except on very dry or very warm days.

Referring to the winner, the reporter writes: "Banaster is commonly regarded as the meanest horse, except Onondaga, his maternal grandsire, that ever looked through a bridle. Chewing up stable boys used to be his morning diversion, and long ago it became necessary to feed him with a long handled oat scoop through a hole in the wall. It takes three men with bull whips to get him out on the track to work mornings. After he gets there, however he runs. He is a regular wild horse. He represents the only potent branch of the once incomparable Leamington family, and the reason is that he is closely inbred to the great Faugh-a-Ballagh stallion. His sire Farandole, was by Enquirer, who was by Leamington, and his dam, Blessing was by Onondaga, who was by Leamington. The pedigree sharps say that this inbreeding, which has given him his great speed, is also responsible for his meanness."

It will be remembered that Banaster won a fortune for his owner, the late William H. Clark, founder of Empire City Park, when he won the Brooklyn Handicap. Mr. Clark lost it all a few weeks later when Banaster was left at the post in the Suburban. It was said that the horse bolted because his jockey, Maher, beat him over the head with a whip for refusing to break with the field. Last Saturday, Jockey Odom showed the power of kindness by patting and coaxing Banaster, who started kindly at last, and Odom was rewarded by riding him to victory.

We cannot agree with the pedigree sharps in ascribing Banaster's bad temper to Leamington, who acted very cleverly when we saw him at Chestnut Hill Farm, near Philadelphia, in 1875, having accompanied our friend the late R. B. Conklin there to inspect him. Mr. Conklin then owned the thoroughbred mare Grace Rogers by Ringdove, and we advised him to breed her to Leamington. The lucky Long Island trotting horse breeder thought that the stallion was rather leggy and washy, being a horse of the finest quality, and finally bred Grace Rogers to the great trotting sire Volunteer. The produce proved it was a mesalliance, as Volunteer had not enough knee and hock action to get trotters from thoroughbred mares.

SADDLE NOTES.

Racing will probably continue at the Oakland track until about the middle of June.

A ringer was foisted on the crowd at the Oakland track Wednesday at the Butchers' races. The old gelding Perhaps was "rung" under the name of John Brown in the vaquero's race and won easily.

R. E. de B. Lopez has had the misfortune to lose by death a two year old colt by imp. Clieleden out of imp. Utter, the dam of Articulate. The colt was very promising and had worked a quarter in 23 seconds.

It is reported that Frank Ehret has secured an option on Frank Van Meter's His Eminence for $20,000. In Frankfort, Ky., they say that Mr. Ehret will send a representative to examine the recent winner of the Kentucky Derby. John E. Madden is also reported to have secured an option on Van Meter's promising two-year-old, Cold Stream, for a price not far from $10,000.

A movement has been started by blue grass turfmen to petition the next Kentucky Legislature to pass a racing bill to regulate the sport in Kentucky. A bill is already being prepared. It will be fashioned after the Percy bill of New York, which will provide a State Commission to control racing and will allow thirty days only to each track.

Robert Waddell, "Virginia" Bradley's three-year-old gelding by Aloha-Virgie, ran a sensational race from a time standpoint at the Worth track May 11th. The little brown horse had older horses as competitors and was conceding weight to such good ones as Ohnet, Ben Chance, Andes, and Frangible in a mile and an eighth race. Bradley's little black rider, Seaton, had the mount, a youngster who, although he has improved, can hardly do justice to Waddell. Andes made the pace to the half-mile, Ohnet second, and Waddell third. At that point both Waddell and Ohnet moved up and, rounding into the stretch, Waddell was in front, with Dominick on Ohnet at his throatlatch, working hard to obtain the lead. But a little shaking up on the part of Seaton kept Waddell in front, and he soon won without scarcely turning a hair. The time hung out was 1:52 4-5, within a second and three-fifths of the record for the distance established by Watercure at Brighton last June. Watercure was then a three-year-old, and carried two pounds less than Waddell carried Wednesday. The fractional time for the race was: Eighth, 0:13; three-eighths, 0:36 3-5; five-eighths, 1:01 4-5; seven-eighths, 1:27. The first mile of the race was run in 1:40 3-5, and the mile from stand to stand in 1:39 4-5—a remarkable performance for the track and the day, and one that stamps Waddell as the best of the three-year-olds of the West. The performance of the Bradley horse was the talk of the track. After the race Charlie Ellison, the plunger, hurried to the paddock and offered Mr. Bradley $12,000 for the horse, $2,000 more than he was willing to pay two days before. The offer was declined. Mr. Bradley believes he has in Robert Waddell the winner of the American Derby, to be run at Washington Park on June 22. The little brown son of Aloha is a pet of not only the Bradloys, but of the employes of the Virginian's stable. He is named for the youthful son of a New York friend of the owner.

The victory of R. T. Wilson Jr.'s crack colt, The Parader, in the classic Withers Stakes at Morris Park was of such a nature that all turfmen are discussing it. The Parader's time, 1:42 1/2, was phenomenal, considering the heavy going and the fact that the handsome son of Longstreet was not extended. It was not stretching things to say that turfmen generally look upon The Parader as one of the finest three-year-olds that has ever been turned out. The colt is a big, powerful looking animal, though he is cleanly cut and is the typical thoroughbred. He comes from a noted family of blue-blooded racers and apparently is conscious of the fact that his present mission on the turf is to uphold the reputation of his ancestors.

Kinley Mack will not go to the post in the Brooklyn this year. It is reported that the horse's legs have filled out so badly that he can walk with difficulty. Trainer Wimmer, however, hopes to have him in shape for the Suburban. With Kinley Mack and Ethelbert both out of the Brooklyn much of the interest in this rich event will be lacking.

At the first blood stock sale of the season, held at Newmarket, England, the American bred chestnut colt King's Courier, 4 years, by Kingston-Stylitene, was sold to Lord Ellesmere for $27,083. The horse is pronounced by the London Field to be the "handsomest thoroughbred in training." His engagements include the Epsom Cup, the Ascot Cup and the Alexandra Plate.

Before the races at Louisville on May 9, J. J. McCafferty disposed of thirteen horses for a total of $7625. Andronicus was bought by G. Brown for $1050, J. S. Gilmore got Fleuron for $1000, and Starter Curly Brown paid $1000 for the two-year-old Merry-maker. Lady Breton, a two-year-old, realized $875; the two-year-old Dodie S. and old Pat Garrett $700 each, while Himtime, the once great sprinter, went to W. L. Hazelp for $650. Mr. Hazelp also got a two-year-old filly, Winnifred Norwood, for $525.

It would appear as if August Belmont's sprinter, Amicitia, winner of the Fashion Stakes, bids fair to stand in the front rank of the two-year-olds. The most remarkable thing about the victory was her frequent attempts to run away, which under ordinary circumstances would serve to take all the speed and staying quality out of many youngsters. After using up much time and strength in this manner Amicitia was still able to win by a head, even though it was necessary for her jockey to ride clear around three of the leaders when half way down the stretch in order to get through. Until another more powerful two-year-old filly appears Amicitia is bound to have much loyal support.

Another American jockey has gone to England. This time it is Nash Turner. He has contracted to ride for Mr. William C. Whitney, and will have the leg up on all his horses when he can do the weight. When Turner arrives there he will make the eleventh American jockey on English soil, the lot including Sloan, the two Roiff boys, Jenkins, Maher, two Waldo brothers, Buchanan, P. McDermott and Rigby, quite a representative crowd of Americans. All told they are upward of two dozen Americans in Europe, McJoyn, Freeman, Cochrane and Ballard being in France, Cash Sloan in Russia, and Taral, Doggett, Sims, Hamilton, Morgan, Jones, Ross McIntyre and Gray in Austria. The demand for American riders in European countries in prima facie evidence that our lads have something on the foreigners somewhere. In Turner this country will lose one of the best riders it ever had. He is a master horseman when at his best. As a finisher it is doubtful if there is a rider here can hold him, and his judgo of pace is good. An illustration of his worth can be cited when he rode Smile a few days ago at Morris Park. He simply nursed a boaten horse home. Smile looked to be second best a quarter of a mile from the finish, but Turner's masterly work told the story. If Mr. Whitney has any horses which need a strong rider to draw out their true ability, he could not have made a better selection than Turner.—N. Y. Telegraph.

The top soil of the New Memphis Trotting Track is said to be quite similar to that used in finishing the Empire City track in New York city, and according to expert opinion there is nothing better for the purpose to be found in the country.

GUN.

The California Inanimate Target Association.

The ninth tournament of the State Association will be held to-day and to-morrow at the Ingleside trap shooting grounds.

A few lines in the nature of a historical summary concerning the association may not prove uninteresting to those of our readers who have a love for sport with the shot gun.

On the evening of Saturday, June 29, 1895, delegates from twelve gun clubs, together with other sportsmen, met at the rooms of the Olympic Gun Club in this city and completed the organization of the California Inanimate Target Association which had been commenced at the first meeting held on the 27th of June. The objects of the association were to promote acquaintance and goodfellowship among sportsmen, create better skill in trap shooting and to increase the interest in local clubs throughout the State.

The officers elected were: President, Merton C. Allen, Olympic Gun Club; Vice-Presidents, A. A. Martin, Mill Valley Gun Club; E. Werner, Watsonville Gun Club; George Ditz, Stockton Gun Club; Harry Quinton, Lincoln Gun Club; Col. S. I. Kellogg, Empire Gun Club; Secretary and Treasurer, George Schaefer, Stockton Gun Club.

The initial tournament was held at the Oakland Race Track October 5th and 6th. The shooting throughout the meeting was not high class, but four men broke 15 straight in the individual events and only two broke 20 straight. J. W. Shiell broke 50 straight on the first day. Chas. A. Merrill of Stockton won the individual high average prize, Jules Bruns was second, Clarence Nauman third and J. Karney fourth.

The traps were pulled with a rope and about 14,000 blue rocks were used. The Gold Dust medal was won by J. W. Shiell with C. C. Nauman second. The six man team match for the Association trophy race, with teams from ten gun clubs entered, was won by the Stockton Gun Club on a score of 94 to 93 after shooting off a tie of 95 with the Olympic Gun Club team. The individual championship diamond medal was won by W. H. Seaver with 20 straight breaks. Dr. Barker of San Jose was second and Jack Fanning ranked third. In the Overland Monthly trophy race the Olympic and Stockton teams of six men again tied on 95 breaks (out of a possible 120) the Olympics won on the shoot off, 97 to 93. Nine gun clubs entered teams in this event. The Clabrough handicap race was the concluding event of the meeting. Shooters were handicapped from 1 to 5 birds each. The first prize, a Clabrough gun, was won by E. L. Forster. A banquet at the Occidental Hotel in the evening terminated the first tournament of the association.

The second tournament was held at Stockton on May 30 and 31, 1896. As far as the individual entries in any one trap-shooting match was concerned this meeting broke the world's record up to that time; 158 entries were made and 165 shooters took part in the different events. About 85,000 blue rocks were used. Martines Chick won the Gold Dust medal, scoring 20 straight and 17 on a tie. Fourteen teams contested for the Overland Monthly trophy; a team from Los Angeles won the trophy. Dr. Barker won the E. T. Allen cup after shooting off the tie (20 straight) with George Franzen. The individual championship medal was captured by Geo. Hinkle (Sensaboy) 20 straight, with Seaver second, who was scored a lost bird in the race although many present claimed he ran the 20 straight. Martines Chick won an L. C. Smith gun in the fourth event of the second day, Fanning, Shiell and Seaver tied for the Golcher trophy, the latter won with 18 breaks. The club six-man team championship trophy was won by the Olympic Gun Club. Len Hauxhurst made the greatest run of breaks (62) and Shiell, Chick and Seaver were the three high average men.

The Garden City was selected for the third tournament and on October 4th and 5th 1896, 168 shooters were present at the San Jose trap grounds. R. H. McCoy of Stockton won the Gold Dust medal. Dr. W. S. George won the E. T. Allen cup. The Olympic Gun Club team won the Overland Monthly trophy. C. J. Haas, of Stockton, made 20 straight and won the individual championship medal, beating Hinkle on the tie shoot off. F. B. Norton won the Golcher trophy. The Olympic Gun Club won the association trophy. C. C. Nauman was high average man.

The number of shooters participating at the fourth tournament, May 30 and 31, 1897, held at the Pacific Tournament grounds, Alameda Junction, was 140. The winners of the principal events were: Individual championship diamond medal, M. O. Feudner. Association team championship trophy, Los Angeles Gun Club, 105 breaks. Gold Dust medal, O. N. Ralphs, Los Angeles. The E. T. Allen trophy, E. E. Mason, Los Angeles. Overland Monthly trophy, Los Angeles Gun Club, 96 breaks. Golcher trophy, W. L. Stewart, of Marysville. Feudner, Mason and Chick were high average men. The purses were divided under the Rose system.

The fifth tournament was held at Del Monte Grove, Monterey, September 18th and 19th, 1897, with 58 shooters in attendance. C. Leighton won the Allen trophy, O. N. Ralphs the Gold Dust medal, Wm. Varlen the Golcher trophy, C. C. Nauman, the individual championship medal, the Olympic Gun Club team, the Overland Monthly, Association championship and Roos trophies.

At Ingleside, May 29th, 30th, 1898, the sixth meeting was held, 84 shooters participated. Otto Feudner won the Gold Dust medal and the Allen cup. Olympic Club medal, O. M. Judy (Fox). Golcher cup, H. Justins, also the Golcher individual trophy. Individual championship medal, C. C. Nauman. Association six man team trophy, Olympic Gun Club, 110 breaks. Special prize,

L. C. Smith gun, was won by "Chestnut." Feudner, Nauman and Haight were high average men. A high wind prevailed during the shooting on both days.

At Antioch, May 29th, 30th, 1899, the seventh gathering of the association members took place which is memorable with pleasant reminiscences to many present. The prize winners were: W. H. Seaver, Lincoln Gun Club trophy. Ed Schultz, Empire Gun Club trophy. C. A. Haight, Allen cup. A. J. Webb, Gold Dust medal. Dr. A. M. Barker, Garden City Gun Club trophy. Garden City Gun Club team, Roos trophy. Dr. A. T. Hyde, Olympic Gun Club trophy. Jos. Ross, Golcher trophy. C. C. Nauman, individual championship medal, Garden City Club, Antioch trophy.

During two rainy days, April 29th, 30th, 1900, at Fresno, 104 shooters endeavored to break records at the eighth tournament of the association. The weather conditions prevented carrying out the program as originally arranged. The winners of principal prizes were: Fred Feudner, Empire trophy. W. H. Varlen, Lincoln trophy. Clarence Nauman, E. T. Allen cup, individual championship medal (4th time) and Gold Dust medal. Martines Chick, Garden City trophy. Ed Feudner, Merced trophy. C. A. Merrill, Olympic trophy, Dr. Barker, San Francisco trophy. A. C. Hartley, Golcher cup. J. E. Vaughan, Fresno trophy. M. O. Feudner, Match Box trophy. J. B. McCutchan, Association trophy. Olympic Gun Club, Roos trophy and Empire Gun Club, Antioch Gun Club team trophy.

The Red Bluff Tournament.

The fourth annual tournament of the Red Bluff Gun Club on the 18th and 19th insts., according to the Red Bluff Sentinel is claimed to be one of the most successful and largest attended shoots ever held in the northern part of the State. The attendance of sportsmen was far in excess of anything ever seen north of San Francisco. There was not one word of discord or complaint, and the only regret of the local club is that the slowness of the live bird shoot which was not finished till about 7 o'clock Sunday evening prevented the team shoot, so that the trophy will remain in the possession of the Chico team which won it last year until the next annual shoot in Red Bluff.

The banquet was a very quiet and orderly affair and was served in excellent style at the Imperial Hotel to about 75 guests. Dr. Albright was toast master and happy responses were made by many of the visitors who had nothing but the highest praise for the tournament and their treatment in Red Bluff.

The sport at the grounds, which were in perfect order, was high class and the championship was wrested from J. H. Durst of Wheatland after a hard struggle between him, J. A. Bailey of Willows and J. E. Haugh. After several birds had been killed in succession by the three, Durst and Haugh both missed and the crowd began to josh Bailey and they talked him out of winning, as he missed the prettiest bird of the lot, so the three began the struggle over again and when Durst and Haugh missed again, Bailey dropped his bird and won the medal amid the applause and congratulations of all present. Durst was unfortunate, his gun got out of order on two occasions one barrel jarred the other off and his face was considerably bruised by the concussion.

Among the sportsmen in attendance from other places were the following: Willows—J. A. Bailey, C. H. Branham, T. Ajax, C. Branham, J. R. Garnett, Geo. Mellor, F. Burghi. Chico—V. C. Richards, J. O. Sims, G. A. Johnson, J. J. Loshbough, Geo. Thomason, L. W. Brooks, J. M. McManus, J. Brown, D. S. Salisbury, L. A. McIntosh, C. Gilbert, W. H. Miller. Sacramento—F. B. Adams, F. H. Ruhstaller, Dr. J. H. Welden, A. B. Black, Frank Newbert, J. J. Vetter, J. Gursto. Gottonwood—Dr. T. D. Goodman, J. H. Hutchinson, Dr. S. H. Weltman, W. L. Rose, I. N. Gould, Albert Kueny. Gridley—Thad Bolt, Wm. Harkey, J. E. Haugh. Durham—A. E. Woods, G. W. Jones. Green Valley—G. F. Zentgraf, L. R. Grubbs. Yuba City—J. M. Hotchkiss. Marysville—J. Stewart. San Francisco—W. H. Seaver, E. K. Darrin, Al Newbert, A. L. Black. Redding—A. F. Dobrowsky, W. A. Schroter, George Littlefield. Biggs—G. F. Ditzler. Keswick—Ben Parker, J. M. Kolb, Joe Flynn, A. D. Joslin, W. P. Thomas. Wheatland—J. H. Durst. Shasta—Dr. Edgcomb. In a great measure the success of the tournament is due to the splendid management by the committee composed of Dr. F. H. Albright, J. H. Bradley and E. F. Lennon.

The Gold Dust cup was won by Frank Newbert of Sacramento in a tie shoot off with "Ajax," Ruhstaller, Kolb and Thomason. The nearest score to 55 per cent. in the three blue rock shoots on Sunday was made by J. R. Garrett of Willows, who made 31 out of 55 targets and he was given the rifle prize donated by a wholesale house of this city. Mr. Zentgraf was awarded the medal button for the best average during Sunday's shooting. The blind prize, a gun case, went to Dr. T. D. Goodman.

The moneys were well divided and Red Bluff fared nicely compared with other places, Arthur Johnson being first in the live birds, Lange and Winters being second in Saturday's blue rock shoot, Rambo being second Sunday with Lange first in the third event Sunday and Epperson third.

Two events were on the card for the first day; those were followed by pool shooting. At 1 o'clock P. M. on Saturday, thirty-two shooters faced the set of five traps for the—

At the Traps.

On May 6th at Eureka, the Eureka, Blue Lake and Scotia Gun Clubs held a blue rock shoot at Eureka. A diamond medal was won by J. M. Carson of the Eureka Gun Club, three men tied on low scores for the leather medal. A perusal of the following scores shows in a 25 bird race, the creditable average of 17 and 17-20ths. This average will compare very favorably with many 25 bird races held at Ingleside or Alameda Junction.

J. M. Carson 22, W. C. Elmore 19, C. P. Soule 18, Curtis Falk 19, H. F. Ferrill 19, J. K. Dunford 17, G. L. Roberts 18, I. R. Russ 19, Harry Kelly 18, Fred Robinson 17, H. H. Buhne 16, L. J. Greenberg 21, L. F. Puter 21, E. C. Pluko 16, Charles Falk 16, Can. Young 17, G. A. Duncan 20, H. Schwab 15, C. J. Janssen 15, J. H. Kingston 15.

The main attraction for shooters last Sunday was the blue rock shoot of the Olympic Gun Club. That the program offered was a popular one is shown in the smashing of over 10,000 targets during the day. The shoot was the biggest club affair given on the grounds this year. The principal feature of the meeting was the efforts of the shooters to secure gold or silver bars for straight runs of 25 or 15 targets, respectively. Thirty-four of the prized tokens were captured by the following experts: Otto Feudner, 2 gold and 7 silver bars; Ed Schultz, 1 gold and 2 silver bars; V. J. La Motte 1, H. Rickleson 1, F. W. King 2, H. Justins 1, Dr. A. T. Derby 2, E. Kerrison 1, Jules Bruns 1, R. C. Rosenberg 1, D. Daniels 1, E. Klevesahl 1, Fred Feudner 2, "Pete Wilson" 3, A. M. Shields 1, A. J. Webb 1, and W. J. Golcher, 2 silver bars each. The distribution of these prizes kept Colonel Harry Hosmer busy until he ran out of speeches and bars simultaneously. The scores in the various events follow:

A Southern California exchange says that a number of trap shooting enthusiasts at Avalon, Catalina, have banded together and organized a gun club, which will be open not only to members, but also to others who may at any time be on the island and desire to shoot blue rocks. The Avalon Gun Club will hold its first semi-annual tournament early in July, and a substantial list of various kinds of prizes will be offered, which is expected to draw shooting talent from all over California. The idea of having a club thirty miles from the mainland is a new and probably a successful one. O. O. Orr and E. L. Doran are leaders in the enterprise, and there are a number of Avalon sportsmen who have affiliated with the new club.

Anglers' Song.

Away, away, to the hookside green,
In the morning's earliest flush,
To the purling brook where the alders lean
Gracefully o'er the water's rush,
And the golden sun, with its many-hued sheen,
Makes the tinted wavelets bluish.

The lancewood rod, with its supple tip,
Is sound and strong as a pine;
But, arching, it bends with a dainty dip
When the hook trout strains the line,
And the spray flies high when the fish's lip
Is pierced by the hook's sharp tine.

The tackle's strong and the water's right,
So there's chance for luck to-day;
With the wind in the south and the sun not bright,
Our creels will surely weigh,
Ere with weary feet, by the gloaming's light,
Homeward, we wend our way.

And where the mossy bank is sprayed
By the water's roaring fall,
'Neath the slender birches' flickering shade,
We'll rest and, thankful, recall
That, of sports the Fates for men have made,
Angling's the best of all.

The San Francisco Striped Bass Club held an outing, the first this season, last Sunday at Stratton's Point, a location about two miles' walk on the bay shore beyond San Rafael station. The following bold clam casters were under the leadership of Captain Billy Ashcroft: Chas. Breidenstein, Chas. H. Kewell, Jim Turner, Will Turner, Terry Evans, Fred Daverkosen, George Walters, Sid Hall, Newt Wright, James Watt and Elmer Rodekopf. The day was an ideal one for an outing, the point selected proved fairly good for bass fishing, in fact, is looked upon as a most promising spot for the sport. In the afternoon a strong wind prevailed, but the fishermen sought the various sheltered coves abounding along the shore and comfortably continued their efforts to hook bass. Eighteen fish were caught, small ones, the best results being obtained on the incoming tide two hours before flood and the first two hours of the ebb. The day is memorable for the fact that "Doc" Watts, on this trip, caught his first bass. It was not a large one, but he at last "broke the ice." He has been after the fish persistently for a long time past, and as is the luck with many other anglers, had not the pleasure of recording a single striped bass until last Sunday. We would not be at all surprised to see the "Ripley high hook" medal in his possession before long.

The club held a regular meeting on Tuesday evening at the residence of Nat Mead. Wm. F. Helligass and Gideon Luttrell were elected to membership. After club business matters were transacted the members present enjoyed a social session. The club fishing season will be closed during the month of June.

Rev. O. W. Jackson and Senator Mac fished the Corte Madera from the railroad bridge to San Quentin on Sunday. Six striped bass, the largest weighing six pounds was the catch. Harry Baum, Chas. Rayner, George Rumpf and A. Herzog tried the waters at Point San Quentin for bass but did not get a strike.

The Santa Rosa Democrat says: "Among the bills passed by the recent Legislature of this State was one prohibiting anglers from taking trout weighing less than half a pound. If some public-spirited individual will now kindly notify all the little fellows not to bite, a great deal of trouble and inconvenience will be avoided."

It is legal to catch half-pounders but they must not be sold under that weight. Fish under six inches in length are of illegal size, but how is catching them to be avoided?

Careful anglers, when replacing a small trout in the stream, will handle the fish with wet hands. A dry hand will remove the viscid matter enveloping the fish as well as some of the scales. A fish thus handled will nearly always die afterwards from the white fungoid growth that fastens to the denuded places on the fish.

"Midnight" Miller and William Schadd camped at Glen Ellen last Saturday night and fished the stream to Sonoma on Sunday. Miller hooked a nice pound fish and a number of smaller ones. Schadd also had a few small fish. Louis Rondeau cast his leader in the Sonoma creek on Sunday near Glen Ellen; he captured a fine large fish and a number of small ones.

A letter from an angler at Laurel, Santa Cruz county, states that the fly-fishing in the San Lorenzo is excellent, although the fish are not very large sized. The favorite flies are the black gnat, jungle cock, gray May, professor, coachman and royal coachman, Nos. 12 and 16.

Fishing in the Purissima should be at its best in the latter part of July and August following. The stream is full of fish but they are small.

Chas. Precht fished Sonoma creek from Caliente down to Schellville on Sunday last with but ordinary results.

George Lowenberg, an expert angler of this city, has just returned from an Eastern trip.

Point Reyes anglers have not met with much luck in the tide waters recently.

San Andreas lake, it is reported, will be opened on the 1st of June.

Doings in Dogdom.

W. J. Foster has bred one of his bitches to N. H. Hickman's Norfolk Trueman.

The Dachshunde bitch Venlo's Rhoda, purchased from L. A. Klein by Col. W. S. Martin during the bench show, is in whelp to Ch. Venlo's Importation.

There was an opportunity for some of our local fanciers to obtain a fund of knowledge in kennel affairs during show week that ought to have been taken advantage of.

Dachshundes were almost up to the numbers of any of the past shows but in quality ranked anything ever shown here. The entries included some of the best in the United States.

W. Halley's puppy Midnight which won second to Norfolk Mainstay is a Warren Clerk puppy out of Veracitat. He was whelped last September and is a more than likely looking Fox Terrier.

In regard to Le King, a well known fancier is authority for the remark "that Le King should win there is no question, but no owner has the right to win on a dog's former reputation. That the sooner coast breeders will keep their St. Bernards, Bull Terriers and other non-working breeds in plump condition the better chances they will stand to win under the average judge who has no axes to grind."

John Bradshaw, proprietor of Woodlawn Kennels, reports the breeding of O. O. Heydenfeldt's Woodcote Wonder and P. C. Myer's Newmarket Queen. Woodcote Wonder also served L. A. Klein's Nancy (Ch. Cordona—Edgewood Topsy) and Belle Balsamo (Woodcote Balsamo—Lady Marlborough) this week.

Something doing in Collies evidently. O. J. Albee writes as follows:

"I had the pleasure of a nice visit from Mr. and Mrs. Henry Jarrett. He greatly admired my Collies, and pronounced Ch. Ormskirk Emerald Jr. a grand dog and one hard to beat. I sold to him while here a sister of Ch. Ormskirk Emerald Jr., Ormskirk Queenie, A. K. C., 50168. She is a very fine bitch and was greatly admired by Mr. Lacey, at Tanforan Park, who judged her there. I sold her for a good price or I should not have let her go. I also sold him a bitch puppy by Ch. Ormskirk Emerald Jr.—Wellesbourne Happy Medium. And if she turns out, as I expect she will, we will hear something from her in the future."

Bench Show Notes.

The glowing and fulsome special report of the bench show of the San Francisco Kennel Club which appears in the American Field is not warranted by circumstances we firmly believe. The "substantial balance on the right side of the ledger" is a myth and the "sanguine feeling among officers and club members that augured well for future shows" was not apparent when Secretary-Treasurer J. P. Norman tendered his resignation on the second evening of the show. The bench show committee worked hard to make the show a success but the same unpopular influences that have handicapped the club for the past two years were obstacles that could not be overcome.

The management of details and the conduction of the show this month was not by any means as efficient as it had been in the previous shows and exhibitors were put to many annoying inconveniences and unnecessary delays that should not have prevailed. The tardy appearance of the catalogue on the first day and the subsequent inaccuracies and mistakes in the marked catalogue were such as to practically make the document worthless.

It is rumored that there will soon be a reorganization of the club effected. This will undoubtedly be a move in the right direction.

It is reported that a protest will be made against the award of first to the Bull Terrier Banjo in limit dogs. Banjo is now a champion, having won first in winners at the shows of '99, Tanforan and last year. A protest in this case is entirely unnecessary; the improper entry will not be overlooked by Secretary Vredenburg when the official list of wins is forwarded to New York, and the carelessness of the club employees will cause the club to be mulcted in the sum of $25.00 fine.

Another instance of careless clerical work is shown in the placing of the Mastiff Queen F. in the winners class, where she did not belong on her win of third in novice—this will not pass the scrutiny of the New York office.

Still another instance of carelessness was the listing of a Great Dane bitch puppy in the dog puppy class. This dog was not taken in the ring at all and no attempt made during the show to rectify the error. This has been supplemented by an utter indifference to the owner's efforts in obtaining his entitled redress—a return of his entry fee.

The conclusion of the list of awards is herewith given. In connection with this subject we must disclaim all responsibility for any mistakes appearing. The marked catalogue and the list given to the daily press were our only resources for preparing the regular and special awards and from subsequent returns we find them to be inaccurate in many respects. The responsibility for this condition of affairs rests with the office force and is inexcusable.

The Victoria Colonist of the 18th says: The number of entries received for the annual show at the Vancouver Island Kennel Club now amounts to 225, fifty in excess of the number at the last show, which was considered a very successful one. One handler alone, Tinto, of Seattle, is bringing over 35 dogs, and the local breeders are getting their best in readiness to do battle with the visitors. Rev. Mr. Flinton will have his string of Fox Terriers there, including a wire-haired, which he has just received from Toronto, where he won high honors. On the whole, the show promises to be most successful.

THE FARM.

Some Failures in Mule Breeding.

Mule breeding is becoming quite an industry in certain parts of Colorado, particularly in the fine agricultural districts north of Denver and shrewd men are making good money by following it. Several experiments in this direction in earlier days proved a failure, however, but we believe it was due to lack of management. This was before the winter feeding era and it is our opinion that the mule needs considerable care in winter. The hybrid will pick its own living during much of the winter from enclosed pasturage but should have sheds for severe weather and hay when the storms come. Then if a man intends breeding mules he should breed large ones. It will not do to depend on theory alone for this purpose.

In starting such an industry we would recommend large, well broken mares. The system of breeding wild range mares carried on by those engaged in raising mules will not pay and this is the principal reason why the failures of the past occurred as they did. The ordinary cayuse mare is too small. No matter if large jacks were used it would be unreasonable to expect large mules from the average range mare of this country. The late John Witter bumped against this proposition when he tried to cross big imported percheron stallions on the little runty mares from Texas. In starting such an industry it would be necessary to first secure good American or grade mares, weighing not less than eleven hundred pounds and it would better to have them weigh twelve hundred and stand at least fifteen and a half hands high and then use the largest jack obtainable.

It requires several years to put a mule breeding establishment on its feet financially but we believe it is an industry that would yield good results. Mule raising, like horse raising, is a proposition that requires the winter care of stock the same as sheep and cattle must have. In early days when there were no fences to interrupt the freedom of stock and we could not notice where the bunch grass was cropped we boasted a great deal about wintering stock without prepared feed. In this era of barbed wire fences and a closely cropped range it is idle to think of stock wintering except in enclosures where the grass is protected in summer and where stock may be sheltered and fed when the weather is stormy or snow becomes too deep for them to pick their living in the fields.—Field and Farm.

Buy Goats to Clear Land.

Louis A. Mills has unloaded 130 Angora goats at his farm eight miles from Decatur, Ill., and they at once began on the job of clearing off forty acres, for which he brought them from Kansas. They have just finished the clearing of 1800 acres.

The goats like the leaves, buds and small shoots of bushes and saplings. The leaves are the lungs of the plants, and if they are kept off a season the plants die.

When the goats were unloaded and started down a lane toward the farm they at once began on the weeds along the roadside. A lot of wild raspberry bushes have thrived in that lane since the country was settled, but there was nothing but a few bare hard canes when the goats got by. As soon as they were turned into the forty-acre woods lot they made for the saplings, and in five minutes most of them were on their hind legs going for the leaves.

When a goat comes to a sapling that he cannot himself break down four or five others join him and throw their weights on the trunk and bend it over, while others climb on the branches.—Chicago Chronicle.

A scientific discovery is reported on apparently good authority which promises to revolutionize the process of curing cheese. It is an inherent ferment which is called galactase. This digesting fluid is present in small quantity in normal milk and has the character of the secretions of the pancreatic organ of the body. Further investigation claims that this inherent ferment works just as well at or below the freezing point as above it. If this proves correct it is apparent that the curing room has only to be kept at cold storage temperature for best results instead of maintaining a given degree of heat as heretofore.

Much may be done to prolong the efficiency of our fenced pastures, such as sowing a variety of grasses that come into maturity in regular succession so that there is always more or less of young and tender food and by providing abundance of clean, fresh water, so convenient that cows do not have to travel far to get it. If water is handy, cool and clean, cows will drink frequently a little at a time. If they have to go far for it they will drink but seldom and too much at a time. Our country will never come to its full maturity until we have exploited this grass question to its fullest extent.

LEG AND BODY WASH

Race horses often become sore and stiff from continued strain on the hard tracks. Nothing takes out this stiffness and soreness like a wash compounded of diluted

Tuttle's Elixir.

Apply to the legs and put on light bandages. Sponge the body and put on light blanket. Guaranteed to produce desired results or money back.

Reading Trotting Park, Mass., March 23, 1900.

Dr. S. A. Tuttle, V.S.
Dear Sir: I have used your Elixir for the past ten years, in the diluted form for a leg and body wash. Consider it the best wash for keeping horses from soiling up. Horses done up with this wash are much less liable to take cold than when done up with witch hazel or any other wash I ever used.

NOTE.—In the Memphis System we have incorporated as many features of the running turf as will be consistent in heat racing. The plan is simply a compromise between the heat and the dash systems. We have decided to try this plan of racing because the present condition of the sport in Memphis, Chicago, New York, San Francisco, Louisville and all cities where running is extremely popular, demonstrates beyond question that the people of those cities prefer the methods of the running turf to those of the trotting turf.

Purses for all classes, $1000 or more each, to complete programme, will open about September 1st, to close September 15th.

The track and plant will be one of the finest in the world, and will be specially equipped with the view of making it an ideal place for winter training.

Arabian Blood Sells Well.

[New York Sun, May 21.]

Fanciers of high-acting coach and carriage horses, owners and dealers in the hackney variety, lovers of high-class saddle horses and a few drivers of the American light-harness horse attended the sale of Americo-Arabian horses under the management of W. D. Grand at the American Horse Exchange yesterday afternoon. It was an unusually large gathering for an afternoon sale. Much curiosity was evinced as to how the horses with Arabian blood would sell and to say that a majority of the crowd was astonished at the sums bid is drawing it but mildly; and wonder was added to astonishment when it was learned that a majority of the offerings were withdrawn because the owner and consignor, Theodore Cuyler Patterson of Eadenbeim Farm, Chestnut Hill, Pa., did not think the bids were high enough to justify him in letting his pets go. For instance, the 15.2 hand stallion, Omar, was bid up to $1,550 and the owner would not let him go. The little black gelding, Blackbird, 13.3 hands, was run up to $700 and withdrawn.

Several others were taken out after what most of the horsemen present considered extraordinarily high prices were bid for them. The 13.2 hand chestnut mare, Gularne, was bid up to $875, and Mr. Grand turned to Mr. Patterson saying: "Let me sell her." Mr. Patterson looked thoughtful for a moment, then nodded his head and the mare was knocked down to M. Evarts of this city.

The top price was realized on the brown mare Larissa, which fell to Ed de Cernea for $3500. He also bought Manila, a bay mare, sister to Larissa, for $2050. Mr. de Cernea said that the mare would be prepared for the National Horse Show by the man for whom he bought them. All of the Americo-Arabs offered were by either Abdul Hamid II. or the pony sire Kasim, known also as Abdul Hamid IV. both of which were bred by Randolph Huntington of Oyster Bay, L. I. Abdul Hamid II. is a son of the imported Arab stallion Leopard, which the Sultan of Turkey presented to Gen. Grant. Among those sold were as follows:

Larissa, br m, 1897, 15.2½ hands, Abdul Hamid II—Lillian, Ed de Cernea, New York.....	$ 3,500
Manila, b m, 1898, 15.3 hands, Abdul Hamid II—Lillian; Ed de Cernea.....	2,050
Love Knot, br m, 1897, 15.2 hands, Abdul Hamid II—By Play; E. B. Hodge, Paoli, Pa.....	1,750
Ilderim, chs, 1898, 15.2 hands, Abdul Hamid II—By Play; Bush Brown, Newburgh, N. Y.....	1,550
Phyllis, ch m, 1897, 13.3½ hands, Kasim-Maritje; T. Robinson, New York.....	1,500
Gularne, ch m, 1898, 15.2 hands, Kasim-Maritje; M. Evarts, New York.....	875
Total for six head, $11,225; average, $1,870.83.

There are very few horsemen left at the Pleasanton track, there having been a scattering to various points. J. M. Alviso is still there, S. K. Trefry will work Freddie C. and one or two more there for a time yet, and John Sawyer is still training the Van De Vanter Stock Farm horses over the track. These, with a few being worked by Fred Chadbourne, are about all the horses at Pleasanton. There are several worn out runners at the track however, resting up from a long season at Oakland.

THE CLEVELAND SALE.

Eula Mac Brings the Highest Price* of all the Horses Offered.

[American Sportsman, May 23.]

While there was a large crowd at the opening of the Fasig-Tipton Blue Ribbon sale Tuesday morning the bidding did not indicate that it was largely composed of prospective buyers. Certainly good horses of unexcelled breeding and with every prospect of becoming great performers went remarkably cheap. Particularly disappointed was Manager Frank Covey, of the Palo Alto consignment. Mr. Covey presented forty-eight highly-bred youngsters, the greatest lot he ever brought across the Rockies and yet they only brought $15,255, an average of $320, against an average of $523 last year. Several of the Palo Alto consignment in 1900 brought over $1000. This year only one topped that mark, Rowellan bringing $1,075, James Golden, of Boston, being the purchaser. The bidding for this remarkable youngster, for whom it was thought $2000 would be offered, was anything but spirited. Golden getting him on his second bid. Golden also paid $850 for Mendolita, the second best price of the day. In addition he took Mendarion for $375, Ross Martin for $340, Golden for $325 and Maidee, of the Piedmont Farm consignment, for $485.

John H. Shults, the millionaire bread trust magnate of New York, had a great liking for the Palo Alto youngsters and purchased sixteen head for $4,520. He bid on nearly every one offered. The bidder up on several was Mons. J. Bacri, of Paris, who represented a French syndicate. George Bowerman wanted Lisonjero, but his bid of $800 was topped by W. R. Wiley, of Chicago.

The Palo Alto horses sold and the prices brought were as follows:

SECOND DAY.

The crowd at the sale Wednesday was much larger than that of Tuesday and it contained more bidders. Horses with records or well-authenticated trial records which could go out and take the money were the ones sought after. When the sale closed Wednesday night about 150 head had been sold bringing $55,660 or about $10,000 less than the receipts of the first two days in 1900.

The highest price was paid for Eula Mac, the unbeaten California mare, whom Millard Saunders declares is the equal of Boralma. She has gone a trial half in 1:04, but has a race record of only 2:17½. The bidding was very brisk for her. When it reached $2,450, Ed Tipton on behalf of a New Yorker bid $3,500. W. H. Morehouse, of Toledo, went him $50 better. Louis Streuber stopped this with a bid of $2,600. Tipton dropped, but Mr. Morehouse raised Streuber's bid $50. This was his limit and the Erie man took the mare for $2,700.

Sable Frances 2:15½ was sold for $950, and the eight head in the Santa Rosa Stock Farm consignment sold for a total of $2815, an average of a little over $351 per head. The sales of California horses were as follows:

Eula Mac 2:17½, b m, 1897, by McKinney-Balance All by Brigadier; Louis Streuber, Erie, Pa.	2,700
Sable Frances 2:15½, br m, 1892, by Sable Wilkes-Francisca by Almont; D. A. Willard, agent, Albany, N. Y.	950
Veola, ro m, 1896, by Beau B.-Phaeola by Silverthreads; James I. Mee, Hamilton, O.	250

Biggest Horse in Boston.

When Louis Niles Roberts, a well known resident of Boston, arrived in Boston last Friday on the Saxonia from a trip abroad he had a surprise for his friends in the shape of a monster horse, the largest now in Boston, which he had purchased in Spain.

Mr. Roberts' story of his purchase is: "I attended the horse show at Seville, Spain. There I saw the most magnificent horse my eyes had ever rested on. Later I attended a dinner at which Premier Sagasta and a wealthy Spanish grandee who owned the horse were present.

"Tell your master," said I to the servant of the Grandee, "that I would like to buy his horse."

"The Grandee asked a great price and I declined at those figures. But I made an offer. It was accepted and Premier Sagasta closed the bargain. The horse was paid for and delivered into the hands of the American Consul."

"The horse stands 23½ hands high, is a magnificent bay, with blood points, and as gentle as a child. And besides he has great knee action.

"I arranged with Captain Pritchard to build a house for him on the upper deck, aft, on the Saxonia. The space between decks on the Saxonia is not sufficient to allow the horse to stand.

"I will have a special high two-wheeled cart built and will enter him at the Bar Harbor Horse Show this summer and also in New York.

"I will call the horse," said Mr. Roberts, "Admiral Cervera," as a compliment to the Spanish Admiral, whom I met many times. I paid $10,000 for him."

A movement has been started by Blue Grass turfmen to petition the next Kentucky Legislature to pass a racing bill to regulate the sport in Kentucky. A bill is already being prepared. It will be fashioned after the Percy bill of New York, will provide a State Commission to control racing, and will allow 30 days on each track.

Needed Badly.

Mr. E. T. Baker, a prominent horseman at Eddyville, Neb., writes May 18th: "Please find enclosed $1 for which send me a package of Quinn's Ointment. I have removed two bog spavins with this Ointment and also find it has no equal for removing wire cuts. Send at once as I need it badly. This is the universal expression of the best breeders and horsemen throughout the United States. If you wish a first-class remedy for removing curbs, splints, spavins, windpuffs and all bunces, use Quinn's Ointment, Price one dollar delivered. Address W. B. Eddy & Co., Whitehall, N. Y., if you cannot obtain from your druggist or dealer.

Conroy Wins Brooklyn Handicap.

James R. Keene's Conroy, the first three-year-old to win a Brooklyn Handicap, cantered home a winner at the Gravesend last Saturday with odds of 4 to 1 against him. Herbert finished second, with Standing in third position. The favorite, Banastar, was away back in the ruck, unable to get up his speed in the going.

A more disagreeable day for the Brooklyn Handicap could not have been imagined. The big event was pulled off in a driving rain. In spite of the threatening weather, a big crowd was at the track, fully 15,000 people watching the struggle. At 4:15, when the bugle called the handicap horses to the post, the track was like a quagmire. Banastar was a consistent favorite all the time, with Conroy second choice, and Sydney Lucas, Herbert and Raffaello well backed.

On the sixth attempt the horses got off in good style. Banastar was first to show, with Herbert and Raffaello next in line and Conroy close up. Around the turn they rushed. They had gone but a few strides when O'Connor sent the three-year-old Conroy to the front, and he came with such a rush that he was two upon lengths to the good as he passed the judges' stand for the first time. Banastar was in second place, Herbert and Standing lapping him. Without slackening speed in the least and with the mud flying, they scampored around the lower turn, Conroy holding his advantage. Banastar had been passed by Herbert and Standing, and was half a length behind them.

Coming into the backstretch, Smith sent Herbert after Conroy, and foot by foot he began to cut down the lead of the three-year-old. Standing and Banastar began to close up, too, and as the upper turn was reached, it looked as if the youngster already had his measure taken. O'Connor, however, was on the alert and still had a good hold on Keene's horse. The leaders rushed into the turn. Just for one moment did Banastar show a flash of the speed which he exhibited in the Brooklyn Handicap of two years ago—only the conditions were so different—but it did not last, and he began to drop back.

Herbert was by this time on even terms with Conroy, and Standing was but a length away, and they were turning into the stretch for the final rush. O'Connor on Conroy, then crouched low on his mount and went to work. Conroy gamely responded to the jockey's appeal, and in a few jumps left Herbert as if he were standing still. In the twinkling of an eye he was a couple of lengths in front and in a few bounds more, as far as the rest were concerned, the contest was over, for struggle as they might they could never catch Conroy, and the latter pulling up strongly cantered past the judges' stand, the easiest kind of a winner by a length and a half from Herbert, who was twice that distance in front of Standing, and the others were badly beaten. The cheering at the conclusion of the race was tremendous. Summary:

The Brooklyn handicap, mile and one-quarter—Conroy, 102 (O'Connor), 4 to 1, and 8 to 5 won; Herbert, 90 (Smith), 7 to 1 and 5 to 2, second; Standing, 113 (Piggott) 12 to 1 and 5 to 1, third; time 2:09. Alsike, Sidney Lucas, Raffaello, Banastar, King Bramble and Water Cure also ran, and finished as named.

Labor Union Mare.

Maggie, a mare belonging to Aaron Yocum, a merchant of Reading, would make a good member for a labor union. Maggie is not a remarkable animal in any way—with one exception, she positively refuses to work more than nine hours a day. Maggie is now 33 years of age, and is only worked occasionally, but even in her old age she remembers the principle which governed her in early youth, and hangs on to the nine hour schedule. When she is hitched up in the morning at 7 o'clock she will work hard all morning. When noon comes, however, Maggie insists upon going to the stable. At 1 o'clock she is ready for the afternoon's work, but at 5 o'clock positively refuses to go anywhere but to the stable.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

The difference of opinion among members of the Board of Review of the National Trotting Association, as to whether a portion of the Board had the power to reverse a decision made by another part, has led President Johnson, Frank Bower and one or two others to sign a call for a special meeting of the entire Board to take the matter under advisement, and to formulate a rule to protect the interests of the association. The reversal of the John A. McKerron case, a decision in which the recent tribunal at New York set aside the finding of another portion of the Board, is the cause of the call. Mr. Bower has expressed himself as being against the decision recently made, and claims the only power the Board has in such matters was to follow the law promulgated by the National Congress, and until the next meeting of the Congress no portion of the Board of Review had a right to infringe on the law. John A. McKerron may yet be credited with his record of 2:10, made on the Readville track.

Scott McCoy and his assistants are busy just now at East View farm. One of the sensational mares of last year, Hotty G. 2:05½, is going strong and sound, and Directum Kelly 2:08½, is giving promise of being able to race this year. Several youngsters by Directum Kelly are also showing great form, and some of them will be campaigned.

Please give me treatment for horse with fistula just coming on. I have wonderful faith in Gombault's Caustic Balsam. I cured same horse of quittor with it.

THOROUGHBREDS.

SACRAMENTO IS THE PLACE where the Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeders Association will hold its meeting this year, and the dates are from August 12th to 17th. This was determined at a meeting of the Board of Directors held at the Secretary's office 36 Geary street last Monday, and nothing has pleased the California horsemen so much as this announcement. The Sacramento track is without any doubt the best in the State at the present time and the climate of the Capital City during June, July and August is ideal for training. Stall rent is free and now that the date of the meeting has been set there has already begun a general movement among trainers toward the State Fair track. There are six early closing stakes of $1000 each offered for a starter and within a few weeks another lot of smaller amounts will be advertised. The date for closing entries to the $1000 stakes has been changed to July 1st, and this will give trainers plenty of time to ascertain how good their horses are before entering them. There will be purses offered for three year old pacers and trotters in addition to the other events and as there are quite a large number of three year olds in training in California this year they should fill well. The Directors had two offers to consider at their meeting Monday. One was from Vallejo whose citizens offered a bonus of $1000 and the use of the track if the meeting was held there. The other was from Sacramento citizens who guaranteed $1200 and the track. The Breeders very wisely decided to accept the Sacramento proposition as it was the best one, but offered to also accept the offer of Vallejo, provided the citizens would agree to the association taking a date after its Sacramento meeting. This was taken under consideration by the Vallejo Committee, which will report later. There is every reason to believe that the Breeders meeting at Sacramento this year will be one of the best ever given by this sterling association. The increased interest in harness horses has extended all over this State, and there are more horses in training than for years. The Sacramento track, since it has been managed by Mr. J. Martin, has been kept in perfect condition, and those who train there have been loud in their praises of it and him. As the circuit will be opened by the Breeders, horsemen who intend racing this year will find it to their advantage to take their strings to Sacramento as soon as possible, so that they may have a choice of stalls. About eighty horses were working there last week and by the middle of this month there will be at least twice that many in training there. With free stall rent and the best of hay and grain to be had at as low rates as any place in California there is no track which furnishes so many advantages. The purses offered by the Breeders Association are most liberal and will be so arranged that every class of horses now in California will be provided for. It will be the best opportunity for the owners of trotters and pacers to win money that will be offered this year.

THE RULING OFF the turf of a crowned head does not occur every day, but it recently happened down in India. The Calcutta Asian publishes the whole of the correspondence relating to what is known as "The Crown" case. The Sultan of Johore imported a horse from Australia which was entered for several races in Singapore and in Calcutta under the name of The Crown. The horse ran as a maiden in Singapore and won a race, but the owner of the horse which finished second in the race claimed the race, on the ground that The Crown was really a horse called Truth, who had won races in Australia. The Singapore stewards having made inquiries and ascertained that this was really so, called upon the Sultan of Johore and his trainer and jockey, Calder, for an explanation. Calder thereupon exonerated the Sultan from all blame, admitted the fraud and was promptly warned off the turf, both in Singapore and Calcutta, for life, while the horse was disqualified from running in any more races. The stewards having further called upon the Sultan of Johore to resign his honorary membership of the Singapore Sporting Club, he has done so under protest, and has appealed to the general body of members of the club to say whether or not he has been fairly treated by the stewards.

A DISPATCH from Redding under date of May 30th, states: It is possible that horsemen in the northern part of the State may arrange a circuit in the fall that will include Redding, Alturas, Lakeview and Yreka. This is the proposition as considered by the Northern California Driving Club of this city. The idea of an extreme northern circuit was well received and will probably be carried out. The four towns to be included are all good race towns. Several strings of Tehama and Shasta horses are already guaranteed to be taken around the line.

AN OPPORTUNITY IS OFFERED those who desire to purchase some well bred trotters and roadsters, as well as heavy draft animals, by a big consignment from the Santa Rosa and Yerba Buena Stock Farms of the Pierce Brothers, which is to be sent to William G. Layng's Occidental Horse Exchange at 721 Howard street, this city, and sold Friday next. Attention is called to the advertisement of the sale in another column which gives full particulars. Catalogues can be had the morning of the sale.

TWO GOOD PROSPECTS are offered for sale in this issue by Mr. A. G. Gurnett, of this city. One, the stallion Direct Fils by Direct, is a handsome large horse and a splendid road horse. He ought to be a profitable horse in the stud if properly managed. The other is a gelding by Direct out of a mare by Brigadier. He can show a 2:30 gait, is a high class road horse and goes well under saddle. See the advertisement.

JOHN SPLAN recently closed out in New York a consignment of twenty-three harness horses which he had spent several months in collecting and getting ready. Best prices follow: Grand Simmons 2:17 1/2, $950; Gray Billy 2:16 1/4, $1000; Lady Cossack, $900; Giles Noyes 2:05 1/2, $1650; Fashion Maid and Nina V. 2:22 1/2, sold as a pair, $2000; Tommy Burton, $900. The average for the twenty-three head was $645.

HORSE TAMING is the title of a neat volume that has just reached our table. It is from the pen of Prof. William Muller and is one of the most practical guides to the taming of horses we have ever seen. The price of the book is one dollar.

LOS ANGELES will give one of the greatest meetings ever held in Southern California this year and entries to the harness events will close July 1st. Read the list of big purses offered and begin pointing your horses for some of them.

THE DEMAND for horses is still ahead of the supply in California and it will take several years for the latter to catch up. To get a big price for a prospective race horse, however, speed must be actually shown.

RACING will probably continue at the Oakland track until July 4th, which will make the season a little over eight months. Next year the season will be shortened to about five months, it is said.

OAKLEY ENTRIES close June 1st. California owners whose horses will race on the eastern circuits this year should make their entries to-day.

Well Worth Watching.

A gentleman who owns a trotter eligible to the 2:15 class, that he will campaign this season, says "Raymond" in the Horse World, has been figuring out how fast his horse will have to trot this year to be a factor in the purses offered for the classes ranging from 2:13 to 2:15 on the mile tracks, beginning at Detroit, and following the Grand Circuit line East, then going to the big fall meetings, ending at Lexington. After looking up the statistics relating to last season's races in these classes, he is of the opinion that any trotter that can step three heats from 2:11 to 2:13, will be a good money earner. The average time for these classes last year was just a shade below 2:13. The fastest heat in these classes was the 2:07 1/2, made by Georgena in her race at Hartford, and the fastest average race was on that same occasion when the average time was about 2:10 1/2. By this it will be seen that while a consistent, steady-going trotter, that is able to go three heats between 2:11 and 2:12 would fail to win some of the races, he would still be able to win his share and get a pretty good place in the others. In many of the races for the slower classes, say those for 2:20 and 2:24 trotters, the time will be faster than will be made in any of the races for the 2:13 and 2:15 classes. If anyone is inclined to doubt this, let them keep track this year and see how much harder a trotter will have to work to be a good winner in the 2:20 class, than one will to do equally well in the 2:13 class.

Race Track for Spokane.

BREEDER AND SPORTSMEN:—At last the residents of the Inland Empire have awakened to the necessity of having a race track for Spokane, and I am pleased to be able to inform you that grading has commenced on a half-mile track which promises to be one of the best in the country. Our citizens have subscribed thirty thousand dollars towards a permanent organization for an annual fruit fair, live stock and poultry show and race meeting combined, the first series to be held this year from September 10th to 21st. We have all been hungry for good clean racing and purses to the amount of ten thousand dollars will be offered as an inducement for good entries, and owners of horses need have no fear in regard to collecting any moneys won, as it is already on deposit in the bank. This organization will own its land, buildings, etc., and I might add that there will be an opening for a couple of good trainers here. We already have some good horses in Spokane and trust to be able, with the help of outside stock, to give the public racing equal to anything to be seen in the East.

Yours truly,

THOS. S. GRIFFITH.

Some Facts of the Derby.

The English Derby has been an annual event at Epsom, England, since 1780. It was first run on May 4, 1780, over a distance of one mile, which in 1784 was increased to one and a half miles. The stake is now worth $30,000 and is for three year olds. The fastest time since 1850 was made in 1896 by Persimmons and last year by Diamond Jubilee, full brothers, both owned by the Prince of Wales. Time 2:42. The slowest time was in 3:04, made by Ellington in 1856. The one and a half mile record in this country is 2:30, made by Goodrich at Washington Park, Chicago, July 16, 1898. The St. Leger, established in 1776, is also for three year olds. The distance is one mile six furlongs and 132 yards and is run at Doncaster. It is valued at about $20,000. The St. Leger record is held by Diamond Jubilee, St. Simon-Pedite II, in 3:09 1-5 made last year. The slowest time is 3:31 3-5, made by Galtee More in 1897.

New Directors for State Board.

The terms of Directors of the State Agricultural Society A. B. Spreckels of San Francisco, F. W. Covey of San Mateo, J. W. Wilson of Sacramento and E. D. Cobb of San Joaquin having expired, Governor Gage this week reappointed Messrs. Spreckels and Covey and in place of Messrs. Wilson and Cobb, named C. W. Paine of Sacramento and Ben F. Rush of Suisun, excellent appointments.

Ward Adams has lost his good mare Loconomo. She died from catarrhal fever. Loconomo won a good many races last year on the California circuit.

JOTTINGS.

WOODLAND, Yolo county, has been a horse breeding centre this year, there being twenty-five or thirty stallions in service within a radius of ten miles of that town. Trotting bred horses are the most numerous, and among them are Diabolo 2:09½, Alta Vela 2:15½, Mambrino Chief Jr., Gossiper Jr., Falrose 2:19, Tuberoze, a handsome son of Falrose, Alexander Button, twenty-four years old but as vigorous as a colt, Bayswater Wilkes, the sire of that whirlwind pacer Kelly Briggs 2:10½, and many other stallions "too numerous to mention." Diabolo has been the best patronized having had about ninety mares sent to him, and as they average well in looks and breeding his foals of 1901 should do this great horse credit. William Murray made a wise move when he took Diabolo to Woodland. It was there that the son of Chas. Derby made his record as a four year old, and the horse breeders of that locality have not forgotten his wonderful speed and gameness. There are a dozen Diablos that should enter the list this year in California, and thus keep him well up to the top of the sires of new performers.

There are thirty or forty horses in training at the Woodland track, which, since the Agricultural Association took charge of it, is kept in excellent condition for training. S. A. Hooper, of Yountville, Napa county, has his stallion Alta Vela there and is getting him ready for the circuit. Alta Vela was the only new performer last year for his sire Electioneer, and as the latter has been dead since 1890, the performance of Alta Vela was quite a surprise. For a twelve year old stallion that had been used on the roads in San Francisco for years to step out and take a record of 2:15½ was something out of the ordinary, and attracted Mr. Hooper's attention. He had just purchased the Don Lowell mare Dora Doe that soon after trotted to a record of 2:12½ and when the owners of Alta Vela offered him the stallion and thirteen hundred dollars for the mare he swapped in a hurry, as he would have traded even up had it been suggested. He is better pleased with his bargain now than ever, and thinks Alta Vela under favorable conditions can drop into Electioneer's 2:10 list without any trouble. Mr. Hooper has five horses at the Woodland track, the green trotter Prince Howard by Dexter Prince among them. This horse is looking fit to trot for a life and is going fast and acting better than ever before. If he remains steady it will take a good green one to head him. One of the best looking young stallions we have seen this year is a black fellow by McKinney out of Nona Y. 2:25 by Admiral. He belongs to Prof. E. P. Heald, President of the Breeders Association, who has two or three young horses in Mr. Hooper's charge. One a diminutive pacer by Pilot Prince, is showing a good deal of speed and Mr. Hooper thinks will be quite fast as he has an almost perfect way of going.

Walter Mastin has the pacer John A. 2:12¾ by Wayland W. and will race him this year. The stallion looks bigger and stronger than he did last season, when he got some pretty hard work. He seems all right now and is booked for 2:08 or better. As a three year old he paced in 2:14 in a race which Kelly Briggs 2:10½ won, and was a good second to that horse in the last heat, with a lot of aged horses behind him. Mastin is working a three year old pacing filly by Falrose that he calls Mamie H. He also has a green trotter called Georgie H. that should pick up a share of the money in the green classes this year.

A. B. Rodman's dun pacer Yellow Jacket 2:20½ by Silver King is being worked without hobbles and seems to take very kindly to the change. He is a handsome gelding with flaxen mane and tail and makes a fine showing in harness. He is faster than his record and should reduce it some this year, though he is a little erratic but game, and no race is too long for him.

Kelly Briggs is devoting all his time to his three year old pacing mare, Pearl Sinclair by Hanford Medium out of the dam of Kelly Briggs 2:10½. Since Det Bigelow went East Kelly has done all his own driving and training and the boys at the track say he is lots better than a raw hand. He drove Pearl a mile in 2:22½ two weeks ago, which is pretty good for an amateur with a three year old green one.

S. Mativia has a string of eight green trotters and pacers and some promising ones among them. The Alex Button mare Mary P., owned by Mr. Proctor of Woodland, is a very fast mare. She has trotted a mile in 2:30 this year, last quarter in 35 seconds and last eighth in 16½. She has been worked but little so far, but is improving all the time. She worked very fast last year but wrenched her ankle and was thrown out of training. Mr. Proctor also owns a two year old full brother to the much talked of "Honolulu horse" that is a very handsome colt and a trotter. Mativia has the big black stallion Rohab 2:14½ by Prince Red out of Lela May 2:23¾, by Antevolo, second dam Steinola, dam of two in the list, by Steinway, third dam Phaccola by Silverthreads 18,653, and fourth dam the famous Minnehaha, dam of eight in the list including Beautiful Bells. Rohab is a large horse, with extra good bone and quite a trotter. Mativia thinks he should win some good races with him in the green classes. Among the other promising ones in his string are Trilby a mare by Truman 2:12 out of a mare by Nephew, second dam Wildflower, bred at Palo Alto and owned by H. E. Coil, Blossom a green pacer full brother to Gen. Logan, the sire of Miss Logan 2:06½, Walmost a green trotter by Waldstein out of a mare by Almont, a gray horse by Alex Button out of a mare by Jim Mulvena, and Alexander Woodard, a three year old stallion by Alex Button out of Viola by Flaxtail.

Menree Salisbury left last Saturday for Cape Nome. This is the veteran horseman's second trip and he told me the outlook to him was more favorable than last year. He is a wonderful man of his age, and no young person is fuller of energy and determination than he. His rugged health and iron constitution will avail him much in the far north and I only express the wish of every person that knows him when I hope that he will come back with more gold than he can carry. "If I make it up there," he said "I'll have some horses again and I have my eye on a couple of young ones out at M. Henry's place near Haywards, that I'll try to buy. They are by his horse Educator, son of my old horse Director. One is out of a mare by Almont Patchen and is about the nicest going pacer I ever saw. The other is a trotter out of the dam of Emma Abbott. I told Mr. Henry if the gold dust gets within my reach this year I wanted a price on those two youngsters."

B. O. Van Bokkelen, who has raced over East several years and has made a number of entries there this season, was in to see us the other day and remarked that while he was pleased to see California so well represented in the Grand Circuit entries, that he was afraid some of the trainers who were making the trip for the first time would find the game much harder than they expect. "It's a hard game even with a good horse," said he. "I had Stamboulette 2:10½ over there two years ago, and he is a good consistent trotter, one that will try as hard as anybody's horse and very speedy. I could have made more money with him by staying at home, and if there had been any classes for him in California this year I would keep him here. He won something over $3000 that year according to the published figures, but taking out the entrance money there was not much left. There was $1000 credited to him in one race and $500 in another which were fourth moneys, so you can see there was nothing won in either. To get fourth place and save entrance was harder over there than winning here, and one can readily see that it is better to trot for $500 purses and get first money than to start in $10,000 purses and finish fourth. I believe if the California districts could form a circuit and give purses of $300 to $500, with an occasional purse of $800 or $1000 where a big list of entries was certain, it would not only greatly benefit the harness horse business here, but would induce the training of more horses and enable the horsemen to earn more money than they do now. If a person owns a very fast green horse or a high class fast one, the Grand Circuit is the place to race them, but unless he does he can do better on the small circuits where purses seldom go higher than $500."

The following appeared in the American Sportsman of Cleveland last week: "One of the largest prices ever paid for a filly was paid by J. C. McKinney, proprietor of the Terrace Farm at Titusville, Pa., at the Glenville track Monday afternoon, when he purchased of C. A. Winship, of the Vista Del Mar Stock Farm, Los Angeles, the three year old trotter Zephyr for $10,000. The five year old pacing mare Velvet Rose by McKinney 2:11½, dam Etta Wilkes 2:19½, was also included in the purchase. The latter will be used as a broodmare at the Terrace Farm. Zephyr has an exceptional pedigree, being a combination of the greatest race-winning blood in the country. She was foaled in 1898, her sire being Zombro 2:11 (son of McKinney 2:11½ and Whisper by Almont Lightning), dam Gazelle 2:11½ (dam of Zoloch 2:10½) by Gossiper 2:14½, son of Simmons 2:28. As a two year old, with but little training, she trotted eighths in 16 seconds, and prior to her departure from California, on May 1st, stepped a trial mile in 2:18 and repeatedly trotted quarters in 32½ seconds, a 2:10 gait, and eighths in 15½ seconds, a 2:04 gait. Prior to her purchase Monday, Mr. Winship, who weighs 215 pounds, drove the filly, hooked to a 48-pound cart, a quarter in 32½, an eighth in 15½ seconds, a feat never surpassed and probably never equalled by a three year old over the Cleveland track at this season of the year. Mr. McKinney will race Zephyr as a four year old and then breed her to his stallion Beausant, three year old trial 2:07½, a brother of Boreal 2:15½. Mr. McKinney is of the opinion that the produce of those two sensational youngsters will prove a wonder on the track."

Ed Tipton says that the heirs of the late Marcus Daly are undecided about closing out the trotting stock at Bitter Root Farm.

Golden Gate Park Driving Club Races.

A large crowd went to Tanforan Park Decoration Day to see the harness races given by the Golden Gate Park Driving Club of this city. Five events were decided. There was a heavy wind blowing up the stretch and the track was not fast, but in very good order. The racing was not very good, the first event having a rather bad flavor, although Pious and Belle did their very best, and the time made in all the contests being much slower than the horses were capable of making. The O'Kane Challenge Cup went to Mr. Miller's Lady Falrose 2:23 in straight heats, this handsome and nice moving pacer winning easily in 2:26½, the fastest heat.

The team race was a farce. President Aigeltinger's pair were the slowest, but their driver was cool and collected, and by keeping his horses on a trot won the race. Chas. Newman's pair acted badly, owing more than anything else to his nervousness and anxiety to win, while Mr. A. F. Jacob's team of pacers never got to pacing squarely until they reached the homestretch. Mr. Aigeltinger was winning easily and slowed up when passing the distance judge. Just then Jacobs' pair got to pacing fast and coming with a rush nipped Our Joe and Ivan out by a nose at the wire. As the pacers had run at least a quarter of the journey, Our Joe and Ivan were very correctly given the race by the judges. Newman finished far behind and after crossing the score gave his horses a slash with the whip and they started to run, going at full speed a mile and a quarter at that gait before he could stop them.

Frank O'Kane, J. G. Chesley and J. Davis were the judges and T. J. Crowley acted as starter getting the fields away in good shape without delay. F. G. Vetter and L. E. Clawson held the official watches and Dr. I. B. Dalziel was an efficient Marshal. The results were as follows:

Evils of Incessant Scoring.

It is to be hoped that the associations that compose the Grand Circuit will this season take some step that will tend to lessen the evils that arise from the intolerable scoring that for many years has been the blight of trotting races. Not only does the scoring, when allowed to become tedious, weary the spectators, but it is killing on the horses, and now that the average time of heats at Grand Circuit meetings is so fast the wear and tear on the horses is greater than ever. When a field of fast horses scores at a 2:10 gait and turning at the eighth pole, score until the turn is reached the distance covered when taken as a whole is as great as when a full mile is trotted, and the starting and pulling up of the horse is an additional strain. Under the present system of starting with a flying start scoring is necessary, but it can and must be limited. There is absolutely no reason why a field should be allowed to come down from the eighth pole to the turn ten or fifteen times at a rate of speed approximating a two-minute gait, and yet this is not an uncommon occurrence. Something must be done or else with the increase of speed the races will have been trotted before the word is given, and the long suffering public will become rebellious and refuse to tolerate such delays as are now of frequent occurrence. The fault is nine times out of ten with the drivers, who either willfully delay the start or are behind uneducated horses, and in consequence the steady, true-going horse is made to suffer by the antics of one whose education is not completed, and who by incessant breaking finds a relief from the effort of scoring at an extreme speed.

Horses that cannot score must either become educated or take the consequences, for the sport of racing the trotter is being jeopardized by the dangers of incessant scoring, and valuable horses are not infrequently rendered useless by a lack of discipline that in itself encourages the practice of defeating a dangerous horse before the word is given. A limited number of scores, regulated by the number of starters, would do much to eradicate a feature of racing that is one of its greatest drawbacks.—Kentucky Stock Farm.

Hal Pointer 2:04½, will lead the division of record horses in the Road Drivers' parade at Buffalo on June 1st; Mr. Harry Hamlin, his present owner, has been invited to "rein" behind the ex-kingpin of pacers on this occasion. Hal Pointer is seventeen years old, and took his record nine summers ago at Nashville, Tenn., in a mile dash against Guy 2:06½, a gray son of Shiloh, dam by Shoo Fly. It does not seem so long ago. —Horse World.

SULKY NOTES.

Breeders meeting goes to Sacramento.

Denver meeting opens two weeks from to-day.

There are many green pacers in training this year.

Woodland's meeting will be one of the best yet held in California.

Los Angeles offers nearly fifteen thousand dollars for harness horses.

$320 was the average of the sale of Palo Alto bred horses at Cleveland.

Stockton will give one of the best harness racing programs ever offered in the State.

Several new members of the State Board of Agriculture are to be appointed this month.

A grand looking stallion, sixteen hands high, sired by Direct 2:05½, is offered for sale in this issue.

Chas. Marvin, the veteran trainer, is not in the best of health. He is quite badly crippled with rheumatism.

Lord Derby has shown Ed Geors a quarter in 31½ seconds and an eighth in 15 seconds already this year.

The Santa Rosa people got cold feet at the last moment and will probably hold no race meeting this year.

A brother of Cresceus has taken to the pace, and if he goes fast some of the theorists will take to the woods.

Andy Welch has an eye for beauty. Both Charter Oak and Oakley are garden spots and make most trotting tracks seem like barrens.

Alameda 2:09½, the handsome trotting mare by Altamont is now in Doc Tanner's hands at Cleveland. She will be raced in the matinees this year.

Waldo Pierce says that Alcitalia 2:10½ is in fine shape this spring and that she has been named in the $10,000 purse for 2:10 trotters at Readville.

John Splan has shipped Dr. Leek 2:09½, Wert 2:15½ and B. C. 2:15½, from Cleveland, to their owner, Attorney General Knox, at Washington, D. C.

A California horse is credited with the fastest mile this season at Cleveland. John Splan drove Eureka 2:15½ a mile in 2:17½ on Monday, May 20th.

John H. Shultz, of New York City, was a heavy buyer at the sale of Palo Alto horses at Cleveland. He purchased sixteen of the forty-eight head sold.

Among the horses being touted by the wise ones as a likely winner of this year's M. & M. is Ted by Norval. He has been trotting quarters in 33 seconds.

Neeretta 2:09½ beat a long field in the May race at Vienna, Austria. This daughter of Neernut is pointed for the championship of Europe in the near future.

Several young trotters and pacers by Nutwood Wilkes will be trained and raced by P. W. Hodges this year. He is now working them at the San Jose track.

Two well known citizens of San Francisco have headed the stock subscription for the new half mile track, by each signing for four hundred shares at $5 per share.

Eben D. Jordan sent a fine lot of stock from his Plymouth Hackney Stud to the grand sale in New York two weeks ago. The horses brought good prices, averaging $579 a head.

"Spinnaker" is the appropriate name claimed by Mr. H. C. Myers of Vallejo for his bay colt by Gaff Topsail 2:17½, dam Easter D. by Easterwood, entered in the Pacific Breeders Futurity.

Monroe Salisbury left for Cape Nome last Saturday. He took half a dozen horses with him and will engage in teaming and staging. Milo Kuox of Haywards accompanied the veteran horseman.

Andy McDowell has started in on Coney and worked him three heats at Now Haven last week around 2:30. He brushed him a quarter in 33 seconds and is satisfied that he has as much speed as ever.

Everett L. Smith, whose nom de plume of "Percy" is familiar to the readers of the harness horse papers, will have charge of the advertising department of the well known Chicago firm of Splann & Newgass.

The five-eighths track at Sixteenth street station, Oakland, recently built by the Oakland Driving Club is ready to work on but is not very popular with horsemen as yet. It should be an excellent place to train horses.

Eula Mac 2:17½, will be campaigned by Millard Sanders. He will have five mares, all trotters, and probably the green pacer Funston. The mares in his string other than Eula Mac are Dollie Dillon 2:11½, Janice 2:13½, Czarina 2:13½ and Venus II. 2:11½.

As was predicted in these columns the mares Dolly Dillon and Janice were not sold at Cleveland. It was not intended that they be offered without a big reserve price being placed on them. Millard Sanders has them well entered all through the grand circuit.

The Kentucky Trotting Horse Breeders' Association will offer in addition to the $7000 purse of Thomas W. Lawson's for a race there in October between Charley Herr and Cresceus, a $500 trophy to the champion stallion. The prize will probably be a handsome cup.

Zephyr, the three-year-old filly by Zomhro, which J. C. McKinney paid C. A. Winship such a long price for, will not be raced this year but will be next in her four-year-old form. The following year she will be bred to Beauseant, Mr. McKinney's young stallion by Bow Bells.

John Pender will take his stallion Captain Jones by McKinney to Portland, Oregon, in a few days, and will make a season with him there during June, July and August. Captain Jones has been bred to some well bred mares during the time he has been at Sacramento.

Friends of John Tildon, the well known Western driver, who recently returned to his old home in Portland, Ore., from Red Oaks, Ia., will be sorry to hear that through the collapse of a Portland bank he has lost all his substantial and hard-earned savings of the past few years.

Marion Diggs of Woodland recently purchased for Sheriff Brown of Honolulu, a pair of stylish horses by Diablo out of a Waldstein mare. The horses are dark bay and well matched, standing over 16 hands and weighing about 1200 pounds each. They were raised by H. L. Button.

A New York paper of last week says: Mr. Brayton Ives' good little road mare Margaret Worth 2:15, is laid up with a badly bruised tendon, having jumped on same in a brush with Cobwebs 2:12, at the Speedway some weeks ago. We are not apt to see her till fall on the road again.

The stallion Escort 2:23, owned at Rod Bluff, attacked his groom Frank Cassin one day last week. Mr. Cassin was severely bitten, his scalp cut and his right thumb broken. By crawling under a manger he managed to escape further injuries, and the horse was secured and tied up.

The fashion for dark colors, drossy effects and lack of ornamentation in carriages is seen also in the latest styles of harness. One of the new things in the harness department of a fashionable New York firm is a single brougham harness in pigskin. It is dead black, with hardly any brass trimmings, and the effect is noticeably rich and elegant.

C. M. Jewett, Secretary of the Readville track, has about arranged a special race for the Grand Circuit meeting that will be one of the great events of the season. He will open a 2:07 class, which shall be contested by Lord Derby 2:07, Peter the Great 2:07½ and Boralma 2:08 and will not bar The Monk, Grattan Boy, Directum Kelly or Charley Herr.

At a meeting of the executive committee on the Road Drivers' association of New York last week a resolution was unanimously adopted condemning all wagers, whether of money or wine, on the speedway. Hereafter, any member of the organization who is concerned directly or indirectly in any bet growing out of a brush between horses on the drive may be expelled from membership.

A. W. Longley of Chicago owns a string of horses bred on the Rancho del Paso in this State. They are being worked at the Wheaton track near Chicago, and among them is a six-year-old gelding by Knight 2:22½, dam by Electioneer; a six-year-old pacer by Algona, dam a half-sister to Flying Jib 2:04; Jim Longley, a five-year-old gelding by Bay Bird, dam by Alaska, and William Tell 2:14½, by Cornelius.

Will Dickerson, who is training the horses at Senator John McCarty's Parkway Farm at Goshen, N. Y., is at present working Joe Patchen 2:01½, Fred Kohl 2:07½, Alameda 2:09½, Helen Simmons 2:11½, James Shevlin 2:13½, Bessie Owens 2:13½, Flare Up 2:14, Kelmont 2:15½, Jantina 2:29½ and several green ones, among them El Milagro by McKinney 2:11½ that started once as a three year old last year and was a good second in 2:23½.

James B. Iverson has purchased from a friend of his at Pleasanton a grandly bred yearling filly, which he will enter in the Occident Stake for 1903. The filly is a square-gaited trotter, and on the score of breeding and conformation ought to develop plenty of speed. She is by Diablo out of the standard and registered mare Amy Fay by Anteco 2:16½, second dam by Alexander 490, third dam by Naubuc 504 and fourth dam Sacramento Girl, record 2:38.—Salinas Journal.

At New Orleans, May 9, two British steamships, while taking on cargoes, were suddenly ordered to discharge what cargo they had already and take on horses and mules and proceed to South Africa in a hurry. These vessels were the Barbadian, and the Politician. The latter had already 1200 bales of cotton aboard when orders came to take horses, and she immediately began to discharge this cargo to take on horses. The orders in both cases came from the British home office.

It is announced that the racing stable at Suburban Farm, at Glens Falls, N. Y., the owner of which was the late William E. Spier, will fill its engagements through the Grand Circuit this year, and that in the fall the entire stock of the farm, including Directum 2:05½, will be sold at public sale. Part of the horses, including Adbell 2:23, holder of the champion yearling record for trotting stallions, will be sold in Kentucky, while the balance, including Directum 2:05½ will be sold in New York.

The four year old stallion by Silver Bow 2:16 out of Grace, the dam of Duodalion 2:11, was sold by Geo. Fox last week to Mr. Steckler, secretary for Chas. D. Lane of this city. Vet Tryon has been working this horse at the Sacramento track and thinks him one of the most promising young trotters he ever handled. He has worked a mile in 2:25 already and it is reported that he can show two minute speed. He will probably be placed in Ed Lafferty's hands to train for the circuit. The price at which he changed hands was $1700.

C. E. Clark has reached Overland Park, Denver, with Toggles 2:09½, Listerine 2:17½, the mare Sue by Athadon and one or two colts. The form shown by his horses while training at Fresno warrants the prediction that they will all do well. Toggles is expected to be as fast as ever and may reduce his record.

C. G. Fisher, of Darien, N. Y., is using on the road Faustino 2:12½ by Sidney. Ten years ago, to a high-wheel sulky, Faustino made a three-year-old record of 2:14½ and at once was the sensation of the year. Thirty-five thousand dollars was paid by Pabst, the Milwaukee beermaker, for Faustino. The colt was kept at the Pabst farm for some time, but, on showing a bad temper, he was sold. In 1897 he lowered his record to 2:12½. Shortly after, he was gelded. His bad temper left him and to-day he is one of the best roadsters to be found anywhere.

The Horse Review $6000 Futurity, which it was announced would be trotted at Indianapolis during the State Fair meeting, September 16th to 21st, has been transferred to the Hartford (Conn.) Grand Circuit meeting the week of September 2d to 7th. It was found that many of the colts were eligible to events at the New England Breeders meeting, which was held the same week as Indianapolis; hence the change was made so as to accommodate the greatest number and prevent any injustice being done owners who would otherwise be compelled to take a choice of the two, as they could not attend both.

It is reported from Boston that the prize of $4,000, given out last week as paid by George W. Leavitt to J. M. Johnson, of Calais, Me., for a green two-year-old, is the actual sum that changed hands. The colt in question is Todd by Bingen 2:06½, dam Fanella, by Arion 2:07½; grandam Directress 2:19 by Director 2:17; third dam Aloha (dam of three), by A. W. Richmond. He trotted a half in 1:19½, and an eighth in 17½ seconds over a half-mile track last season as a yearling. A note of interest in connection with Todd is that his dam was bred by Andy Welch, the first season that Arion made in the stud, the service fee costing him $2,500.

Mine host "Jo" Bowers of the Capital Hotel, Sacramento, is the owner of Glido, a four year old by his horse Silver Bee 2:27½, out of a mare by Starlight Goldust that will get a very low record if trained and raced. This gelding is a square trotter, and has only been handled about five weeks. He is wearing his first pair of shoes, yet he marched a quarter in 35 seconds at the Sacramento track one day last week. Mr. Bowers has taken full charge of the training of this young horse, and gives the orders every day as to how he shall be driven and fed and remarks that "if this colt goes wrong I'll know where to place the blame."

A letter from George Bodimer, the Buffalo trainer, who is in Austria training for Count Potocki, to a friend in Boston, states that the champion Austrian-bred trotting filly, Princess Nefta, is now in his stable, having recently been bought by Count Potocki for $8000. Last season Princess Nefta won $7000 in purse money and took a record of 1:27 to the kilometre, which is equal to 2:19 to the mile. This filly, which is the champion Austrian-bred trotter, carries no native Austrian blood, as she was sired by the American-bred sire Prince Warwick, out of the Italian-bred mare Nefta. Bodimer thinks she is capable of reducing her record appreciably; in fact, he thinks her as good as one of our 2:15 trotters, and he expects to earn a lot of money with her.

Orrin Hickok was at Cleveland during the sale and thus expressed himself when asked his opinion as to which horse would win the big matches this year: "Who do I think will win? Well, I think both Cresceus and Boralma have a great chance to heat out The Abbot. You see it is this way. The Abbot is a great horse, but he has had a great amount of hard racing. To my mind he is all in. He has done his best, while the other two are younger and fresher and are improving all the time. They are 'coming' while The Abbot 'has arrived.' Charley Herr is a great little horse but not in the same class as Cresceus and Boralma. That Readville race will be the best of the three. Cresceus and Boralma are two grand horses and the contest should be a royal battle."

Challenger Chief 2:15, owned by Ernest Crowell, died recently at Sacramento. The Rural Spirit says of this horse: "Challenger Chief was a bay stallion foaled in 1885, and bred by J. W. Wisdom, of Baker City, Ore. He was sired by Challenger 1064, out of Rosa Chief, by D. Monroe 2:28; second dam Madam Powell (the dam of the great race horse Monroe Chief 2:18½) by Bay Chief. Challenger Chief was one of the most successful race horses on the Pacific Coast, having raced in Oregon, Washington, California and Montana against the best horses on the turf and was never behind the money in his whole turf career. He had 64 heats in 2:30 or better to his credit, more than any other trotter, except Klamath, that was ever bred in Oregon. Chief was a horse of great determination, and it was this do-or-die quality that won him many a victory."

Jim Marshall of Binghamton, Solano county, who bred the promising three year old pacer by Diablo that John Blue has in his string and has named for his breeder will have a band of high class broodmares on his farm if he pursues his present policy. Mr. Marshall will sell a colt or gelding of his breeding at a reasonable figure any time, but when he has a mare or a filly that he thinks is bred right and looks right for a brood mare it takes a long price to induce him to part with her. He recently purchased from Mr. Ben Rush of Suisun, a handsome mare by Nutwood Wilkes 2:16½, out of a mare by Director, and has stunted her to Demonio, full brother to Diablo 2:09½. Mr. Marshall also purchased at the same time from Mr. Rush a filly by Prince Airlie that is a well bred one and a good looker. He has a two year old full brother to the pacer he sold Blue, which he has just broken to harness. It is a very fine looking colt and fully as promising as "Jim Marshall."

THE SADDLE.

THE ASHLAND STUD.

Mrs. Clay's Success in Raising Thoroughbred Horses.

An authentic story of the failures in the thoroughbred breeding business would make one of the most interesting chapters in turf history. Scores of men have sunk fortunes in an endeavor to solve the problem of breeding with profit the high-nettled racer. The plains of the progress of the race horse are dotted with the skeletons of dissipated fortunes and the tombstones of wrecked bank accounts.

Yet where men have failed a woman has made a success of the business.

With scarcely half a dozen broodmares in her possession, Mrs. John M. Clay, the owner of the famous Ashland stud, has bred more great horses than many of the noted stock farms of America in which thousands of dollars of capital are invested.

Ashland stud has the most interesting history of all the breeding farms in this country. It is the mother establishment, being founded by Henry Clay, the great commoner, more than seventy years ago. The breeding of thoroughbred horses at Ashland had its beginning as a pastime for its owner, the immortal statesman. He commenced in a moderate manner with one mare, Susan, a daughter of Darnaby Diomed, but his stud book was duly opened, and this worn and ancient book, all in his own handwriting, is one of the most valued relics in the possession of the Clay family to-day.

In his remarks on Susan he has recorded that "she was a bay filly with the following marks." A space was left for the marks, but they were never set down. Affairs of state doubtless kept him from being explicit in his description of the first thoroughbred mare he ever owned. When she had a sorrel colt, as he noted the following spring, he again left a space for its marks that was never filled up. He next secured Kate by Tiger, and Nancy Peters by Sir Peter Teasle, and as these mares foaled his entries in the little book continued, giving a faithful record of what his mares had done, together with their sins and omissions.

Occasionally a description of a foal would be given with a verbosity that bordered on ostentation; but generally he left a space for the marks, which remained unfilled. From this valuable book is to be learned that imp. Yorkshire, the grandsire of Marian, whose produce have won $274,420 on the turf, was presented to him by Commodore Morgan of the United States navy, and Magnolia, one of the greatest broodmares that ever lived, the dam of thirteen foals, and all winners, was also a gift from his friend, Dr. Mercer. His last entry was May 5, 1842, when he recorded the foaling of a bay colt by Monarch, out of Kocklam.

From that date his youngest son, John, the late husband of Mrs. Clay, assumed charge of the thoroughbred stock, and ultimately became as great a success as a breeder as his distinguished father was a statesman and a leader of men.

There is no spot in America around which more pleasing recollections cluster than the fields and meadows over which roam the stud matrons of Ashland stock farm. Here, from political cares and the bustle of the nation's capital, the great Henry Clay sought that rest and repose which only nature's surroundings can give. It was here amid the forest trees and the blooming wild flowers that he doubtless gathered the inspiration that made him a giant among orators and filled a continent with his fame.

John M. Clay for years raced the horses he bred in his own colors, and he won most of the classic events of the turf in that day. He bred Maggie B. B., dam of Iroquois, the only American bred winner of the English Derby and St. Leger, and Sachem, also bred by him, ran third in the Derby in Shotover's year. It was his opinion that broken down race mares, no matter what their renown, were not the best specimens for the production of high-class racers, and he selected for his broodmares those of excellence in form, that had showed early promise of great speed, but no matter what his theory, he became as a breeder "the Sir Joseph Hawley of America."

He bred the great Kentucky, that won twenty-two of his twenty-three starts, and sold for $40,000, the highest price ever paid for a horse up to that time; Charley Ball, the first horse ever to run a mile in 1:44; Sly Danee, who sold for $8000 as a two year old; Magie, Madeline, Madona, Princeton, Charley Morgan, Daniel Boone, Simon Kenton, Skedaddle, Gilroy, sire of the great California stallion, Grinstead; Victory, Day Star, winner of the Kentucky Derby in Himyar's year; Sauce Box, sold for $7000 as a two year old; Leveler, winner of the Kentucky St. Leger; Balloon, the only performer that ever won an entire meeting program, she winning on consecutive days stakes at one, two, three and four mile heats; Gingor, True Blue, the first horse to run two miles as fast as 3:32; Ballet, dam of Modesty, the only filly ever to win the American Derby; The Banshee and Sly Boots and Squeeze 'Em, two mares for which Mr. Lorillard paid $9000.

Flattering as was Mr. Clay's success as a breeder, his widow has carried the establishment on with marked ability, and the horses foaled and bred at Ashland Farm are still earning laurels on the turf. Mrs. Clay is a woman of finished education, high culture, and unquestioned talent. She is one of the horse's most ardent admirers, and is the only writer in the world who ever wrote a novel with a horse as a hero. This book has been widely read, and critics have pronounced it a work of much literary merit. She is a most enthusiastic breeder, watches the colts of her favorite mares as if they were babies, and oversees her entire farm, being superintendent as well as proprietress. Even the minor details are looked after by this woman, now nearing her three score years and ten. She is unwilling to trust the care of her favorite mares and colts to the skilled men she has employed, and down to the cutting of the feed for the weanlings and yearlings she casts a watchful eye over everything connected with her great breeding plant.

Some few years ago, realizing the value of the blood of the Maria West and Magnolia families, Mrs. Clay ceased to dispose of the mares or fillies she bred, and as the result her thoroughbred holdings have rapidly increased, and to-day, from a handful of half a dozen mares she had in stock a decade ago, she now has twenty-nine stud matrons in her Ashland establishment. By far the most interesting of these famous mares is old Buff and Blue, save Ella T., now passing her last days at the Castleton stud of Messrs. J. R. and F. P. Keene, probably the last of the daughters of the great War Dance, who has given the turf such stars as Banquet, Tea Tray, Eolo, Modesty, Bright Phœbus, Rainbow, Waltzer, Riley, Yum Yum, Lelex and scores of other famous winners. Buff and Blue is now also the oldest mare in active stud service in America, being 28 years old this spring.

She has brought many thousands of dollars into Mrs. Clay's treasury, one of her colts selling as a yearling for $8200. She has thrown no less than four stake winners, one of which won the Brooklyn Derby and another the rich Realization stakes. Mrs. Clay also owns The Slashes, famous as the dam of Loki; the great Sylph, dam of Kaloolah; La Sylphide, dam of the four stake winners, Semper Fidele, Semper Lex, Semper Rex and Semper Ego; Badge, dam of Von Tromp and Logic; Genoa, sister to Riley, winner of the Kentucky Derby, and Blue Stocking, dam of Linstock and Barefoot.

To give some idea of the breeding value of the mares owned at Ashland, several years ago, when Mr. Whitney began to purchase his now famous band of stud matrons, a very prominent breeder advised the agent of the multi-millionaire to go and buy Mrs. Clay's mares at any cost. Then he said: "Breed them to your great horses, and in a few years you will put us other breeders out of the business." A prominent sporting man has offered to wager $5000 that he can take ten of the mares owned by this distinguished woman and mate them to horses he could pick, and he would from this ten breed more stake winners than could be produced from any other ten mares which could be collected from any breeding farm in the world.

From this it will be seen that, as he did everything else, Henry Clay started right in the breeding business over seventy years ago. Mrs. Clay's stallions are Logic (the sire of Loki, Semper Ego and Linstock) and Carlsbad, winner of the American Derby. The former is the tallest thoroughbred horse in America, standing 17 hands, 2 inches high, and therefore considerably over the height of his famous sire, who stood right at 17 hands, and was considered the giant of his time.

Ashland stock farm is the original tract of land first settled by Henry Clay a hundred years ago. The place contains 242 acres and although the city has encroached all around its borders and real estate men have devised all sorts of schemes to interest Mrs. Clay in having at least a portion of the estate cut up in town lots, to all such appeals she has turned a deaf ear, declaring that she will hold the place together as long as she lives. The house where she lives was Henry Clay's original Kentucky residence, but he lived in a residence at the other side of the farm, when at home in this State. Here the widow of that great commoner died, being cared for in her last days by her youngest son, the husband of the present Mrs. Clay. The old race track is still there, nestling in the meadows, and Mrs. Clay has never permitted it to be plowed up or molested in any way, although for years no horse's hoof beats have disturbed the soil of its historic quarter-stretch. It was the first mile track ever laid out in Kentucky, and is older even than the old Kentucky association course, or the famous Woodlawn track, now long since covered with residences in the city of Louisville.

The following dozen noted performers were bred by Mrs. Clay since Ashland stock farm came into her possession. In this array of turf cracks is a winner of the historic Kentucky Derby, the Brooklyn Derby, and a victor in the classic Realization stakes. It is the greatest list of noted horses ever bred by a woman in the turf and breeding annals of the world:

Mrs. Clay has a fine bunch of yearlings this spring, one of which is a brother to Loki, and another a half-brother to Riley, winner of the Kentucky Derby. She strolls among her mares and horses at will. They all seem to know her, and have learned to appreciate the tender care with which she guards them.

Of all persons interested in breeding and rearing the thoroughbred horse in America, there are none as picturesque as this Kentucky authoress, who, in spite of this and other business cares, finds time to give the public popular stories, her latest novel "Uncle Phil," being now in its second edition. The name of Clay has a peculiar charm, even to uncultured ears. The fame of the great man who rests beneath the blue grass almost in sight of his old home grows brighter as the years roll on, but even without the reflection of the glory of that name, Mrs. Clay's unquestioned talent would have earned her a place among the remarkable women of her day, and merited that esteem and admiration which true genius always wins, no matter where the lines of life are cast.—Lexington, Ky., Corr. SADDLE NOTES.

G. Walbaum has sold to John Hynes the bay colt Royal Sterling, 4, by imp. Lord Esterling-imp. Reve Royal. Price said to be $1200. Royal Sterling was recently purchased from Col. S. D. Bruce for $2500.

J. E. Widener of Philadelphia has sold to W. C. Whitney the bay colt Ten Candles, 4, by imp. Candlemas-Tenerine, on private terms. Mr. Widener recently purchased Ten Candles from Wm. Lakeland for $4000. The horse is again in charge of Mr. Lakeland.

W. C. Whitney's Ballyhoo Bey has been sent to Lexington, Ky., and given to J. E. Madden. Ballyhoo Bey won the Futurity last year and great things were expected of him as a three year old, but a spell of sickness last winter left his wind affected and he was put out of training.

Richard Croker has bought of Colonel W. S. Barnes' Melbourne Stud the noted thoroughbred broodmare Bonita Belle, 16 years old, by Falsetto, dam Bonita by Lexington, and her yearling colt, Beau Imperial, by Jim Gore, which has been largely entered in the English stakes. Men Made the Coffee.

The excellency of the coffee served at the Calvary Presbyterian Church, Camden, N. J., on the occasion of a recent sociable led many people to wonder by what hook or crook the men who conducted the supper were enabled to brew such a palatable beverage. Much praise was bestowed upon the men for the quality of their coffee, and an inquisitive newspaper man, upon asking what brand they used, was informed that it was "Instantaneous Coffee" that the people are just now reading so much about in the newspapers. "Instantaneous Coffee" is a pure, liquid concentration of freshly roasted coffee berries. It is put up in air-tight cans, which are easily opened and closed. A teaspoonful dropped in a cup of hot water and it is ready to drink. Cream and sugar can be added to suit the individual taste. As each cupful is made only as used, the coffee is always fresh and of uniform quality. All injurious alkaloids are eliminated so that anyone can drink it without fear of bad after effects. The cost is less than the price of ordinary coffee—10 cents per can of 25 teaspoonfuls, making 25 cups for 10 cents. The day after the sociable many of the Camden grocers did a big business in Instantaneous Coffee. It can be had by writing the National Food Co., Camden, N. J.

The State Tournament at Ingleside.

The ninth tournament of the California Inanimate Target Association held on the grounds of the San Francisco Trap Shooting association at Ingleside on Saturday and Sunday, May 25th and 26th, will be memorable in the history of trap shooting in this State for the high average of individual scores and also for the establishment of a new Coast record for the high average.

The score, 115 breaks out of a possible 120, is also, we believe, a record for a club squad. Edgar L. Forster won the high average medal with a record of 95 per cent. for both days' shooting in all the individual events. M. O. Feudner, with 97 per cent. on Sunday reached a notch not yet recorded by any other Coast shooter in one day. The breaking of 112 straight (in regular events and ties) by Ed Schultz is also a feat not yet achieved by any of our trap shooters.

The shoot was conducted under the supervision of Edgar L. Forster and Clarence A. Haight and assistants were in charge of the office and clerical work. Dr. W. S. George, the genial President of the organization, was happily in evidence during both days. At the close of the meeting on Sunday afternoon, Dr. George, in his usual apt and happy manner, presented the trophies to winning shooters and clubs. The presentation took place on the platform of the shooting booth at No. 1 set of traps.

Sportsmen from the interior representing the gun clubs of Antioch, Fresno, Martinez, San Jose and other points were present during both days' shooting.

On Saturday weather conditions were not overly favorable to the making of high records, Edgar L. Forster scored the first twenty straight in the first event, Phil B. Bekeart followed next in the third event. Fred W. King next made a string of 20, closely followed by Forster, V. J. La Motte and J. B. McCutchan in the fifth event. On the shoot off of the tie La Motte was the victor.

The "Cinch Brothers" trophy, the prize in the first event, was won by Edgar L. Forster. The purse amounted to $82, (16 moneys, 55 entries, high gun system) there being no added moneys during the tournament. Six 19's received $7.40 each, seven 18's $4.35 each and eleven 17's 65 cents each.

The E. T. Allen trophy (second event) was won by Dr. A. M. Barker of San Jose and was the only trophy taken away from this city at this tournament. Six shooters tied on 19 breaks and Dr. Barker won the shoot off on a score of 18.

The purse in this race amounted to $67.25, of which C. C. Nauman received $14.65 of the entrance money; five men with 19 breaks won $5.85 each. The 18's $3.55 each and the 17's $1.00 apiece.

Phil B. Bekeart won the Association trophy in the third event. With $82 in the purse, 55 entries and 16 moneys, the 19's won $7.40 each, the 18's $4.50 and the 17's $1.20 each.

A. G. Flickinger (U. M. C.) won the Golcher trophy, third event, beating out F. W. King and W. J. O'Neill, of Fresno, on a tie shoot. A. C. Hartley received $14.10 of the entrance money, two 19's $7.20 each, the 18's $3.55 and the 17's 25 cents each.

V. J. La Motte, of the Empire Gun Club, won the Union Gun Club trophy. Three men with 20 breaks received $8.65 each, the 19's were paid $5.65 and the 18's $2.70 apiece, the 17's being shut out.

The closing event of the first day, the three-man team shoot for the Crystal Palace cup, was participated in by seven teams and was won by the San Francisco Gun Club team composed of Ed Schultz, "Wilson" and Jules Bruns. The high team received $19.65 of the purse and three teams which scored 62 received $6.55 each.

The weather conditions on Sunday were ideal for trap shooting; during the day twenty-six straight scores were made in the individual events, six in the tie shoots and two in the team shoot, a total of thirty-four straight scores. The star performance of the day was made by Ed Schultz, who scored 20 in the fourth and fifth events, winning the tie shoot off for the fourth race with a clean score and then shooting two straights in the ties for the fifth event, before finally winning out. The opening event of the second day for the Olympic Gun Club trophy was won by M. O. Feudner, who beat "U. M. C." in the tie shoot off. "U. M. C." received $11.50 of the purse, the 19's took down $6.15 and the 18's $2.60 each.

The second event brought Dr. A. T. Derby out as the winner of the San Francisco Gun Club trophy, he made the only straight in the race. The victory of the Doctor's was a popular one. The 19's were paid $7.80, the 18's $3.85 and the 17's 80 cents each.

The Empire Gun Club Trophy, the prize in the third event went to Ed Feudner, who won out on the tie shoot. Ten other shooters who scored clean in this match received $6.30 each. The 19's $1.90 apiece and the 18's were again shut out.

The Gold Dust Medal (fourth event) was won by Ed Schultz, four other straight scores of 20, received $5.90 apiece, the 19's $4.10 and the 18's $2.70 each.

Ed Schultz won the final individual trophy of the day, the Garden City Gun Club prize, winning out over five other straight score men who won $7.35 each of the purse, 19's in this race received $3.05 and the 18's were once more shut out of the money.

The closing event for the day was the six-man team race for the Antioch Gun Club trophy. This prize was annexed by the San Francisco Gun Club, whose members won a majority of the trophies and moneys.

The fact that there was no added money purses this year made the money awards rather slim. The reason for this was thoroughly understood by the shooters. There is no question but what the distribution of the purses on the class shooting system would have been a more harmonious one. The financial results of the shoot for the association treasury placed the strong box in the healthy attitude of being able to discount its bills.

A summary of the scores made during the shoot follows:

Meeting of the California Inanimate Target Association.

The annual meeting of the California Inanimate Target Association was held on the evening of May 24th. The following officers were elected to serve during the following year: President, Dr. W. S. George, Antioch Gun Club; Vice-Presidents, J. B. Hauer, Empire Gun Club; W. J. O'Neill, Fresno Gun Club; T. L. Lewis, Union Gun Club; E. L. Forster, Lincoln Gun Club and Geo. H. Anderson, Garden City Gun Club. Secretary-Treasurer, Wm. J. Street, Olympic Gun Club.

The time and place for holding the next tournament will be taken into consideration by the Board of Governors at their next meeting.

The subject of holding a fall tournament seemed to be favorably received by the meeting; this subject will also soon receive the attention of the Board of Governors.

The election of Dr. W. S. George makes this term the third time he has served the association as President. The election of all of the officers was by acclamation.

After passing a vote of thanks to the officers who served the organization during the past year and also to Mr. A. M. Shields for courtesies extended the meeting adjourned.

At the Traps.

The attractions to-morrow comprise four different shoots. The California Wing Club members will grass live birds at Ingleside and the Union Gun Club members will shoot blue rocks.

Across the bay the regular monthly shoot of the Lincolns is billed for Alameda Point and further along on the marsh the Antler Gun Club will use the Empire set of traps for the June club shoot.

The Empire Gun Club announce a big merchandise prize shoot to take place on September 8th and 9th and propose to make it the feature club shoot of the year. The Empire men are energetic and generally carry out any project once started.

The Union Gun Club will hold a second live bird shoot on June 30th, the fifth Sunday of the month. An excellent program will be issued during the week.

The program issued by the Sportsman's Association of the North West is an attractive one. The shoot will take place at Walla Walla on the 25th, 26th and 27th of this month, $1000 in cash is added and the value of the trophies is put at $2000. The shoot is open only to members of the gun clubs within the territory of the association. The Bennett-Rose system will prevail in the distribution of moneys for the individual target races. On the fourth day, Friday, June 28th, live bird shooting, open-to-all, will be indulged in. Every arrangement has been made by the management to provide for the comfort and convenience of visiting shooters. Will E. Campbell, the Secretary-Treasurer of the Walla Walla Gun Club, will furnish all particulars and any information desired.

But few breakdowns occurred during the recent tournament, the most serious being the breaking of the stock of a Lefever gun, used by H. Ricklefson, just at the commencement of Sunday morning's shooting. This is the second time a Lefever has given out this season at an Ingleside shoot. The first occasion was the breaking in two at the grip, of W. L. Gerstle's high grade gun, when he used both barrels on a live bird at the opening shoot of the California Wing Club.

A New York dispatch states: The team of American trap shooters selected to represent the United States in the match with the British experts for $2500 a side at the Middlesex Gun Club's grounds, near London, on June 11th and following days, sailed for Liverpool, on May 26th, on board the steamship Canadian. The match will be at 5000 inanimate targets a side, the English to have the use of both barrels and the Americans to use but one barrel. Several well known shooters accompany the team, and in case of accident or emergency some of these will be called upon to act as substitutes.

The Capital Gun Club shoot last Sunday at Sacramento seems to indicate that trap shooting in that city is having a boom. No less than nine events, including team races, were shot up.

W. Smith took the honors in the club shoot, breaking twenty-three in fine style. The attendance was very large, considering that a number of the club members attended the live bird shoot held at the Del Paso grounds.

Kimball & Upson have just completed arrangements to give, about June 30th or the early part of July, a two-day tournament. It will be the largest shoot ever held north of San Francisco. The merchandise and cash prizes will be the best and largest ever given at any tournament held in this section. The shoot will be for all shooters in Sacramento and north.

The scores in the club race at 25 targets were—

Threatening weather conditions prevented as large an attendance as usual on May 26th at the Sacramento Gun Club shoot. In the medal shoot Eckhardt took first class medal with 23 breaks, Shaffer took second class medal with 19, and Beardsley took third class medal with 18. Following are the scores for the medal shoot. Vetter made 24 out of 25 in a practice shoot after the match commenced and shot in his old-time form.

When You Don't Need Any Calendar.

When the honeysuckle whispers with a voice of perfume sweet,
And the leaves that gently nestled, sink to silence in the heat;
When the lightning bug is winging
And the bullfrog starts his singing
In the brooklet where the willow and the shifting shadows meet;
When everything is murmuring a slow ecstatic tune,
You don't need any calendar to tell you that it's June.

When the low and lazy grasses in the daisied meadow set
Are making solemn curt'sies in a laudid minuet;
When Sir Bumblebee, the rover,
Plays at kissing in the clover,
While we note the swift departure of the prudish violet;
When there's music in the breezes and there's magic in the moon,
You don't need any calendar to tell you that it's June.

—Washington Star.

The Fly-Casters.

The first re-entry contests of the San Francisco Fly-Casting Club were held last Saturday and Sunday under rather windy weather conditions. In delicacy and accuracy some good averages were scored however. The next re-entry contests will take place on June 22d and 23d.

The first class contests are billed for July 13th and 14th, when the bait-casting event will also be added to the card of events at Stow lake until the finals in September. The scores made a week ago follow:

Close season on striped bass begins to-day and continues during this month. The law applies to hook and line as well as net fishermen. One good result, it is claimed, for the close season will be to let the fish get in to many places where they have not been heretofore overly plentiful by reason of the net men way-laying them.

Peter J. Walsh has been catching bass at the railroad bridge on Petaluma creek. He has recently sent a number of large fish to friends in this city.

KENNEL.

Coming Events.

- June 18—Pacific Advisory Board. Monthly meeting. J. P. Norman, Secretary.
- Aug. 27, 28, 29, 30—Pan-American Exposition Dog Show, Buffalo N. Y. E. M. Oldham, Superintendent.

The Vancroft Kennels (formerly Leamington Kennels) have been recently newly located by Mr. J. B. Vandergrift, at Lazearville, West Virginia.

L. A. Klein, who is an authority on Dachshundes, thought so well of Col. W. S. Martin's Rex M., a local dog, that he had his bitch Venlolo served by him. Rex is bred on the same lines as Ch. Phenomenon.

The Derby entries for the Pacific Field Trial Club's nineteenth annual trials next January will close, and the first forfeit of $5 is payable on July 1st. The second forfeit of $5 is due on November 1st and it will cost $10 additional to start. The club's announcement appears in our advertising columns. Entry blanks and full information, etc., can be obtained from Secretary Albert Betz, room 201, Parrott Building, this city.

As usual, our Boston contemporary for last week is again very much mixed concerning matters in Frisco.

But 440 dogs were benched at the recent show, the entries numbered 625. These numbers did not beat the records here.

Norfolk Story was back in Geo. Bell's kennels at Toronto a week before the par was penned, stating that the toleless wonder was, "under the name of Fordham, sniffing the breezes of the Pacific in the kennels of Mr. E. Courtney Ford."

The American Stock Keeper is to be congratulated upon missing the report of the late show by Mr. G. A. Cranfield. The special report appears in the Sportsman's Review. The "hot air" commendation of the reporter announcing a future report of the May show was about on a par with the general importance and accuracy of the special report referred to.

The following are the judges and the breeds assigned them at the Pan-American Dog Show, August 27-30, 1901: Mr. James Mortimer: St. Bernards, Mastiffs, Bloodhounds, Deerhounds, Basset Hounds, Bull Terriers, Boston Terriers, Fox Terriers, Scottish Terriers, Black and Tan Terriers, Dachshunds, Yorkshire Terriers, Toy Terriers, Whippets and Schipperkes. Mr. Charles H. Mason: Great Danes, Russian Wolfhounds, Greyhounds, Field Spaniels, Cocker Spaniels, Clumber Spaniels, Irish Water Spaniels, Poodles, Toy Spaniels and Pugs. Mr. William Tallman: Foxhounds, Pointers, English, Irish and Gordon Setters. Mr. C. G. Hopton: English Bulldogs, French Bulldogs, Airedale Terriers, Irish Terriers, Welsh Terriers, Skye Terriers, Pomeranians and miscellaneous. Mr. William C. Hunter, Collies. Mr. George F. Reed, Beagles.

A well known breeder and fancier is authority for the statement that the most successful Fox Terrier breeders in England at present will not under any consideration retain a stud dog in their kennels. Mr. Tinnie, a noted breeder of Fox Terriers, makes it a rule to always mate with the dog that he believes fits a particular bitch, in this practice he gets the dogs that improves the defects and faults apparent to him in his kennels. Other breeders in this line, who stay with a particular strain, are more liable to run to dead straight fronts, long unbalanced heads, dead flat coats, etc., or any of the objectionable type defects. Tinnie takes for the even, classic style of a dog, thereby results his success in breeding dogs and bitches.

This principle pertains to Baker and Smith in St. Bernards, Messrs. Hinks, Evans, Raper, Howker and others who have come to the front in their respective lines, which goes to show that the individual properties are not so much looked for as in former years, as for instance, when most St. Bernards ran all to head and expression, in fact counting for the total of the dog. The leading judges of different breeds throughout the world have arrived at the proposition of having a symmetric dog each in its particular breed from Holy to Yorkshire.

The Victoria Show.

The annual show of the Vancouver Kennel Club opened in Victoria, B. C., on May 22nd with the largest number of entries yet received for a show in that city. The benching arrangements and accommodations for visitors were ample and convenient. The dogs were judged in an open lot adjoining the show hall. Mr. Henry Jarrett, of Philadelphia, judged all breeds and according to the Victoria Colonist, with satisfaction to the exhibitors and the fanciers present at the judging. The special prizes were distributed by Mayor Hayward on the last evening of the show. George Tinto, of Seattle, won the handler's prize, he brought twenty-five dogs to the show from Seattle. (Mr. Tinto, who has a tailoring business in Seattle, it will be remembered, offered a handler's prize, for the Seattle show, to be awarded to the handler entering the largest string of dogs from without the State of Washington. This prize, it is reported, was taken by a California dog man and kennel authority, although the dogs he had in charge were entered in another handler's name, D. J. Sinclair's, we believe.)

The prize for the best decorated kennel was awarded to Royal Pastime Kennels. Mrs. G. L. Davey's King Charles Spaniel was declared by Mr. Jarrett to be a splendid specimen.

That the English Setter is the favorite dog of the Victoria sportsman, and rightly so, says the Colonist, for there is no better dog for the work required in a country such as this, is evidenced by the number entered in the show. In this class there were 37 entries. It is true that in some other classes, notably the Cocker and Fox Terriers, there was more entries, but in those classes several breeders exhibited a number of dogs, while the Englishmen are principally owned by sportsmen who show but one or two dogs. The other sporting classes were poorly represented. The quality of the Irish Setters was good, but they were few in number. To the surprise of many, R. J. Russell's Faro, who did so well at Seattle, was entirely left behind by those he defeated at the sound show. With the large number of good Gordon Setters in the city, it seems a pity that such a poor showing was made both in point of number and quality. In Pointers, too the prizes went to Seattle without any effort, there being but three dogs entered, all from the Sound. But what is lacking in the sporting breeds is more than made up for by the Spaniels and Terriers. There was few Field, Water and Clumber Spaniels, but the Cockers, both black and red, were a fine looking lot, and any number to pick from. In Fox Terriers, Rev. Mr. Flinton showed the pick of his kennels in smooth and wire hairs. Mrs. Bradley-Dyne was the principal exhibitor in the Irish and Scotch Terrier classes, but in the former she had considerable competition. The only Bedlington Terriers were those shown by Mr. J. Redelsheimer, of Seattle.

Judge Jarrett is a collie man, and it seems a pity that Victoria could not have given him a better lot to pass upon. There are better dogs here than were shown, but for some reason were withheld. The same applies to the St. Bernards. There are any number of the big fellows in the city, and why they were not shown is a mystery, even Victoria dogs that were sent to Seattle and San Francisco were not bunched at home.

In English Setters, in which quite naturally the greatest interest was taken, Roy Montez, who had just returned from Chicago, swept all before him, winning first in the limit, open and winners' classes. Dashing Fleet, the Seattle dog who was brought over to beat the Victoria dog, took second place, although he might have had more difficulty in defeating Mr. H. L. O'Brien's Victor L., had the latter been shown by his owner or someone used to handling him. Mr. Charles Minor also won with his puppy bitch Gladys Montez, taking first in the puppy and limit classes, but having to take second to Thomas Plimley's Lady Howard in the open and winners' classes. Judge Jarrett said the English Setters were away ahead of those shown at the San Francisco show and that Roy Montez is in far better condition than he was at Chicago.

THE FARM.

Feeding Separator Skim Milk to Calves.

I am in receipt of letters, making inquiry in regard to my experience in calf rearing and the value of separator skim milk as calf food. I have now made calf rearing my business for over twenty years and during the last fifteen have placed my chief reliance on skim milk. For growing calves I consider separator skim milk at least equal to whole milk, though calves will not lay on as much fat as they will when whole milk is fed; but they will make as good growth and be as thrifty on skim milk. There is nothing in butter fat that a calf can use in building body tissue. Butter fat can be converted into heat and body fat, and nutriment for this purpose can be supplied more cheaply with flax meal which contains from 30 to 35 per cent oil. My system of feeding is very uniform. When the calf is dropped I let it suck once and then remove it from the dam. If it is removed in the morning I give it no feed until the following morning. This is done so the calf will be hungry and will drink the milk without the finger. I give from three to four pints of its mother's milk twice a day, immediately after milking the dam. A small calf gets three pints and a large calf gets four pints. This I continue for about one week. Then for one week I give it whole milk half and skim milk half, twice a day, giving it only from three to four pints. The third week I feed all separator skim milk, but put in the milk a teaspoonful of ground flax. I gradually increase the skim milk and flax meal so that, by the end of the fourth month, it is receiving a heaping teaspoonful of flax meal and ten pints of milk twice a day. After the first month it has access to a little early cut hay and a little whole oats or a mixture of whole oats and bran or shorts.

The important points are, strict regularity in time of feeding, quantity and temperature of milk, which should be from 98 to 100 degrees F.

From the first of June the skim milk should be pasteurized so it will not get sour. A year ago last spring the Albert Lea creamery put in a pasteurizer, and that summer the patrons fed their calves upon the formula given above. In mid-summer I visited the creamery and questioned the patrons in regard to the results obtained, and all stated that it gave entire satisfaction.

It has been the general opinion among farmers that separator skim milk was not strong or nutritious feed and that a large mess must be given to make up in quantity what they supposed it lacked in quality, and the result was that calves were overfed and indigestion would be produced, which was followed by scours and bloat.

If directions are strictly followed, the calf will always act more hungry after taking its meal than it did before, but it is better thus, than to give it a larger mess and then have a case of scours or bloat on your hands. The milk should be measured every time with a clean tin cup or weighed with a balance scale. Each calf should be fed by itself out of a clean, tin pail, which should be washed and scalded after each feeding just as thoroughly and carefully as one does the milk pails. Place the calves in small stanchions while they are being fed, so they will not get into the habit of sucking each other. Have the little manger in front of them wide enough so an ordinary tin pail containing the mess of milk can be set into it. Have partitions placed in the manger and when it has taken the milk, take out the pail and if the calf is old enough to eat oats or bran, throw in about a tablespoonful, and it will soon get into the habit of chewing the oats as soon as it has taken the milk. For about that time it wants to do something, and if it is not confined in a stanchion or tied out of reach of another calf, it will amuse itself by sucking its neighbor's ears. The bottom of the manger should be a dressed board about ten inches wide, and should be so adjusted that it can be taken out once a week and scrubbed with hot water and soap; for the manger must be kept absolutely sweet and clean.—Prof. Haecker in Dairy Record.

The New Estray Law.

Section 1 of the estray law passed by the last California Legislature provides that "any person finding at any time any estray domestic animal or animals upon his premises, or upon premises to which he has right of possession, or upon highways adjacent thereto, may take up the same and have a lien thereon for all expenses incurred and costs in keeping and caring for said animal or animals." The law further provides that any person taking up an estray animal or animals shall confine the same in a secure place, and within five days file with the County Recorder of the county in which estray is found, a notice containing description of the animal or animals taken up, with the marks and brands, if they have any, together with the probable value of each animal, and a statement of the place where the take-up was found, and where he has confined the same. The County Recorder shall receive for filing said notice the sum of fifty cents.

At any time within thirty days from the date of filing of the notice specified in section 2 of this act, any person claiming such estray animal or animals, shall appear and demand from the taker-up the possession thereof, and shall, at the same time, pay to the taker-up all damages, expenses and costs incurred by reason of taking up such animal or animals, and receiving such damages, expenses and costs, the taker-up shall immediately deliver to the party claiming such animal or animals the possession thereof. Such damages, expenses and costs shall be estimated as follows, to-wit:

1. The total amount paid by the taker-up to the County Recorder.
2. The sum of fifteen cents per day for the keeping and care of each horse, mule, jenny, ass, cow, bull, ox, steer or calf.
3. The sum of five cents per day for the keeping and care of each sheep, goat, hog or other animal not heretofore specified, provided that the taker-up of said animal or animals must properly feed and water the same while upon his care, and if he fail so to do shall forfeit all right of lien thereon.

If the party claiming such estray animal or animals is dissatisfied with the amount charged by the taker-up for costs and expenses, he shall tender to the taker-up the proper amount thereof, and if the said tender, be refused, the party claiming such estray animal or animals shall within ten days thereafter commence in the proper court, suit against the taker-up for the recovery of the possession of such estray animal or animals.

The taker-up of an estray animal or animals shall use reasonable care to preserve the same from injury, but if the estray animal or animals die or escape from the possession of the taker-up at any time while he is holding the same under the provisions of this act, the taker-up shall not be held liable in any manner on account of such animal or animals.

Nothing in this act shall affect the laws or regulations in force or which may be in force regarding estrays, the pound-keeper or other pound officer within the limits of any city or town where laws regarding estrays are in force.

Watering the Cows.

Ordinary milk has about 87 per cent. water in its make-up, and in spite of all that may be said as to the value of proper feeding, it is a self-evident fact that without a proper supply of water it is impossible for the cow to give the usual amount of milk. Nevertheless it is not sufficiently understood that the cow should have water of the right kind and at the right times. We have often seen cows come up from the pasture where there was a running stream that they had to pass on their way up, and the first thing they did after getting into the yard was to make straight for the pump trough. The reason for this was because the water in the trough was more palatable to the cows than the running water. Whether we want to or not, if we are to be successful in the dairy business, we must consult so small a thing as the taste of the cows, and if they prefer pump water to branch water, we must give it to them. It is absolutely essential to the highest production of milk that the cow have all the water she wants, and this she will not have if the water does not suit her taste. It is also important that the cow have access to water frequently. A camel may drink once in a week and thrive, but a cow is not a camel by any means. She is using water all the time in making milk, and her reservoir is not constructed to hold enough water for any length of time. If a cow is turned out of a winter's morning to drink water from which the ice has been broken first, she will not drink all she wants unless she has been parched from thirst, and then she will stand drawn up, with the cold chills running up and down her spine, and at the same time taking the feed she would otherwise have turned into butter, and using it to warm the water she has just filled herself with.

Milch Cows and Pumpkin Seeds.

There was an inquiry in the Rural World of November 21st as to the effect of pumpkin seeds on cows. I began feeding my cows pumpkin seeds September 1st, and fed them regularly once a day until November 27th. There was an increased action on the kidneys, a little more than when on spring pasture, but have noticed no symptoms of anything unusual. The cows are all in good flow of milk and have appetites like a sawmill. I cut the pumpkins in cubes about two inches square with a corn knife, giving each cow nearly half a bushel, with a small handful of salt on each cow's mess.

The cream churned easily, the butter was a rich yellow, and the yield one pound a day for each cow. If we do not feed pumpkins, seeds and all, next year, it will be because we have not got them.

Several years ago we had a horse that was "colicky." His kidneys did not seem to act properly. We began feeding him a tablespoonful of melon or pumpkin seeds, whichever we could get, once or twice a week. He had no more colic while we owned him, and he would pick the seeds from among the corn and eat them first.—C. A. Bird, in Colman's Rural World.

A successful dairyman writes: "In feeding our herd we drop all grain in May and depend on alfalfa pasture, with hay and straw until August, when we cut green sorghum for soiling. Our test of August 24 and 25, 1900, showed nine cows producing between two and three-quarters pounds of butter daily. We used to think these results were due to a residual effect of the heavy grain feeding of the previous winter, but each year heifers that have never been fed grain are coming in and doing as well, so it must be the alfalfa. At present 130 cows are being milked; 52 are heifers, 16 are strippers, the remainder being due to calve later. The herd test shows 1.37 pounds of butter produced by one cow daily. While sorghum is a light producer compared to dent corn, it will grow with less water, and cures into a valuable hay when cut early before it has headed out. It will then grow on again and may be cut again. Indian corn, the natural supplement to alfalfa, is easily raised under the same conditions of heat, soil and moisture as the alfalfa, so when the alfalfa field becomes foul with weeds and foxtail, it can be plowed up and planted for two or three years to dent corn or to spuds. The clean culture and sunning of the soil aids in making it a fine alfalfa field again. Corn is rich in starch and oil, producing heat and fat, and, like alfalfa, is not suitable for an exclusive feed."

Minerals in the Feed.

Experiments with hogs conducted by the Wisconsin Experiment Station have clearly shown the advisability and necessity of feeding them such mineral matters as are found in ashes and bone meal. When pigs were fed cornmeal without salt and water, the frame work was especially weak, but where fed whole bone meal, or hardwood ashes in addition to corn, the strength of the bones was practically doubled. Is it not probable that in many cases young cattle are reared upon rations that are deficient in the necessary mineral matters? The skillful feeders of calves in Scotland use chalk freely as a part of the diet of the young thing intended for veal, and in Texas we often see the cattle at certain seasons of the year chewing old bones and horns greedily. The best stock-growing sections of this country are those underlaid by limestone and whose stock waters are hard because of the presence of lime.

Some experiments have of late been carried on at the Canadian Experiment Station at Brandon, Man., with a view to discovering whether the operation of de-horning was really beneficial to fattening steers. Three lots of grade Shorthorns, containing five head each, were selected for the trial. One lot was dehorned and tied in stalls, the second dehorned and allowed to run loose in a pen and the third lot were stalled undehorned. Rations were the same for all three lots and the feeding period extended over 180 days. The dehorned steers tied in stalls gained altogether 950 pounds; the steers dehorned and turned loose in a pen gained 960 pounds and the steers not dehorned at all and tied in stall gained 968 pounds. These figures do not show that there is very much to be gained from the de-horning from the actual flesh-gaining point of view, but the saving of room and the absence of hooking and goring of the weaker animals by the stronger generally in practice, show the profit. Another experiment tried at the Central Station at Ottawa with twenty-two steers is reported equally inconclusive.

JOTTINGS.

THE DATE of the Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeders Association meeting has been advanced two weeks ahead of the time advertised in the last issue of this journal and is now fixed for the week of July 29th to August 3d. It was ascertained that it is the usual custom of the State Board of Agriculture to take possession of the Sacramento track one month prior to the opening of the State Fair and begin a systematic cleaning up, whitewashing, painting, etc., and at its request the Breeders moved their meeting forward two weeks. There are many repairs to be made at the track this year and the four weeks will be fully occupied. So the Breeders' meeting will open July 29th, which is certainly late enough, and this will give an interval of three full weeks between it and the Woodland meeting, which is the next announced date. There is a splendid opportunity for energetic and enterprising associations to announce purses and fill in those dates. It is not necessary to give big purses, as the horsemen do not expect them this year in the smaller towns, and there will be plenty of entries for a three days' meeting if the purses are but from $250 to $500. I would suggest to the associations at Willows, Chico, Red Bluff and Marysville that there is an opportunity to make a little money this year with a short meeting, and at the same time bring a lot of business to their towns. It only needs a little help from the merchants in the way of a money subscription, and some one to arrange a program and manage the races that is familiar with the business. The three weeks between the closing of the Breeders' meeting at Sacramento and the opening of the Woodland meeting will give an opportunity that should not be overlooked. If the district associations do not want to try it, some up-to-date young horseman with business ability could take hold of it and make it succeed.

There will be more fairs and race meetings announced in California next year than there will be dates for during the summer unless many of them clash. The district boards are all "on to" the fact that the entire two years appropriation made by the State can be drawn for a fair held during the second fiscal year, and they have nearly all concluded to let this season pass and hold their fair next year. It would be vastly better for all concerned if the racing at these district fairs could be conducted by a club or association entirely separate from the district boards. A local driving club, with a Secretary that understood the management of harness meetings, backed up by responsible parties who were interested in the breeding of harness horses, would be the proper organization to take charge of the racing, which would certainly pay for itself under such conditions. The district boards could devote their entire time and all the appropriation to the fair proper and make it a success in every way. There is an opportunity in many towns in California for three or four energetic and responsible parties to form a club and give an annual race meeting the same as is done in the eastern and middle states. They can be made to pay a handsome profit each year with proper business management.

The Denver meeting will open next Saturday, June 15th. The new club of which that popular horseman Ed Gaylord of Denver is the leading spirit, has offered a fine program of racing for the thirteen days the meeting will run. There will be two harness races each day and three or more running events, but they will be on different tracks, the inner circle at Denver being seven-eighths of a mile and kept in shape for the runners exclusively. What I wish to call the attention of Californians to is the fact that trainers from this State have made 43 entries in the harness events at Denver, which is certainly a pretty generous response, and that all the purses in which these entries are made with but two exceptions, are but $500. Now if some of the best horses in the State can go clear over to Denver to race for $500 purses, why can't they race at home for the same money? And yet when $500 purses are suggested by anyone, there immediately arises a dozen protests that the amount is not large enough. I believe that there should be in California each year a number of $1000 purses, but the Breeders, the State Fair and Los Angeles are about the only associations that can afford to give them. Many of the district associations in this State have been swamped by trying to give too much money and too many days racing and horsemen often "go broke" trying to pay entrance fees. As Mr. B. O. Van Bokkolen, who has raced through the East and knows the game very pointedly puts it, "It is more profitable to race for a $500 purse and win it than to get fourth money in the M. & M. or any other $10,000 stake." Californians are very prone to attempt too much, a habit doubtless acquired during

The days of old,
The days of gold,
The days of '49.

It would be better for associations and better for horsemen if profitable meetings were given each year with purses ranging from $250 to $500, than for the present system of occasional meetings with big purses to prevail, and end as they often do with a deficit for the association and a big list of suspensions for the horsemen. "Cut your garment according to your cloth" is a pretty good maxim to follow in the horse business.

Gen. B. F. Tracy of New York, who owns Advertiser, had a proposition made to him the other day by letter to purchase the bay gelding Dolador 2:20, by his stallion. This gelding is owned by Mr. J. O. Parrot, of this city, who priced him to Mr. Tracy. The reply of the latter was that it was too late now to take the horse East and race him, as all the big stakes to which he is eligible are closed, but he made the following offer: If Dolador gets to record this year of 2:17 Mr. Tracy will give his owner $100. If he trots in 2:15 he will give another $100, and $50 for each second below that. This is a very generous offer by Gen. Tracy. Unfortunately Mr. Parrot has not felt financially able to campaign his horse this year and before receiving this letter had concluded to take Dolador out of training. I hope he will see his way clear to reconsider and earn a considerable sum by dropping Dolador's record down as low as 2:10 or better, and should he reach that mark he could be readily sold for a much larger amount than Mr. Parrot asks for him now. Dolador started ten times on the California circuit last year, was first once, second twice, third once, and six times behind the money. He is a good gaited horse and as he shows great improvement over his last year's form, it has been predicted for him that he will get a mark better than 2:15 this year if raced. He has been in Jo Corey's hands lately at the Alameda track. He was trained last year by Peter Robinson, who was certain the gelding would trot to a record better than 2:15 eventually. He recently worked a half in 1:07 very handily at Alameda track.

It is to be hoped that when the starters for harness races make their usual announcement this year "Score by the pole horse," that they will impress upon the driver of that favored animal the fact that he must lend his assistance to the accomplishment of the desired end—a fair start. I have seen a lot of good careful drivers get into a state of confusion through trying to score with a wild, rattle-headed teamster who had drawn the pole. He would bring them down at a two minute clip the first time, drop back to a three minute gait in the next effort, and change his rate of speed every time he turned round for a start. A starter is not compelled to have the scoring done by the pole horse and many of them would get better results if they would select a steady horse for the field to score by regardless of his position and instruct his driver to come to the wire at about the same rate of speed each time as near as possible. Bad actors should never be allowed to spoil starts. The purses that are hung up to encourage the breeding, training and racing of harness horses, come a long way from accomplishing the purpose for which they are intended when they are won by unruly bad tempered, and bad acting animals whose only qualification is extreme speed.

The well known turf writer M. T. Grattan presents a new view of the amateur question that will be read with interest. He writes: "In order that the time handicap may continue to have value a clause should be inserted in speed programs to the effect that amateur records shall count the same as professional. Unless that is done it may be often difficult to secure entries for a class which some fast amateur seems to have at his mercy. Charity begins at home and associations have bills to pay when they give race meetings. No doubt the amateurs are very valuable to the harness horse industry and deserve respectful consideration, but they should not expect associations to cripple themselves by giving up the only value the time handicap has. The amateur question has disrupted many other sports, and now seriously threatens harness racing. Bearing in mind the legislation concerning hobbles and distance, associations must counteract the effect upon their finances of the latest ruling by a condition. Theories are all very fine until they begin to pinch pocketbooks, and then they are swept aside. It was thought hobbles could be legislated out, but entrance money was needed, and that settled the question, just as it will settle this. As the legend: "Hobbles not barred" became familiar, so we may read: "Amateur and professional records count the same in this class. That would put matinee cracks with their peers, where they of right belong; and prove that conditions continue to beat theories."

A well entered three year old that can win on the Grand Circuit this year will take home a good pile of money for his owner. From the beginning of September until the close of the Lexington meeting, about the middle of October, there has been provided a chain of rich stakes. By placing its stake at Terre Haute the Kentucky Stock Farm completed the chain. The stakes are as follows: Beginning at Hartford early in September, there is the Horse Review Stake of $5000 for trotters and $1000 for pacers. At Roadville, about the middle of the month, there is the New England Futurity for like amounts provided for three year olds. At Terre Haute, in the early part of October, will come the Stock Farm purse, with the same amounts in money prizes. Then at the Lexington meeting, from October 8 to 18, there will be the Kentucky Futurity of $10,000 for three year old trotters, and the Louisville prize of the same amount for like classes.

A Day's Sport at Vallejo.

There was some good sport at the Vallejo race track on Thursday, May 30th, two harness races and a running event between local horses being pulled off before a large crowd of people. There were four horses in the first race, Belle driven by her owner, Z. T. Rucker, Surreo piloted by the veteran driver, Wm. McGraw (who has been out of the sulky for years but who is remembered as the owner of Silas Skinner 2:17, and the driver and trainer of Lilly Stanley 2:17), Star driven by J. A. McGrane, and Gus C. by A. Caprini. The first two, Belle and Surreo, were very evenly matched and it took five heats to decide the race. Star and Gus C. were also about equal in speed and made a close race for third money, finishing about fifty yards behind the others each time. Belle was the favorite, selling from $5 to $2.50 and $3 on the field, Surreo being a part of the field. By a misunderstanding, the drivers went a full heat without the word "go," nor did they hear the bell calling them back. This gave the betting fraternity a line on the horses. It took five heats to determine the race. Belle took the first by a length in 2:35, Surreo the second by half a length in 2:35, Belle the third by a length in 2:33, Surreo the fourth in 2:34. Naturally there was intense interest in the final heat. Belle went under the wire with just a head's margin. Surreo's driver claimed a foul, in that at the first quarter Belle took Surreo's place by crowding, forcing Surreo to lose his stride. Surreo was put fifty yards behind, but made up his loss, and took the pole position from Belle on the home turn just as Belle took it from him on the first quarter. The race down the homestretch was then a hard one, but it showed that Belle was the fastest horse. The judges after due consideration declared Belle the winner of the race.

In the match race between Harrier's Bay Rum to cart and McGill's Trilby to sulky, it was clearly to be seen that the latter was outclassed. Bay Rum took three straight heats, finishing each in a jog, in 2:40, 2:29 and 2:36.

A running race between four horses was won by Flannagan's mare.

The judges at the races were E. Kavanagh, A. K. Brown and J. W. Hartzell.

News from the North.

[Portland Rural Spirit.]

Joe Huber will move his stable of harness horses from Bozeman, Mont., to Spokane and race on the circuit here this year.

I. C. Mosher says he will throw the searchlight on some of the colts in the trotting division of the two year old stake with his entry Dix Alene.

Lew Childs is working a stable of horses at Spokane. He has two McKinney colts owned by H. W. Peel that are said to be good ones, besides two Delpho youngsters that are equally as promising.

W. O. Trine, who is training Al Me and a number of youngsters and green ones at Eugene, reports his horses all doing well. He is considering the advisability of going to Montana to race through July and August.

Messrs. Frank Frazier, James Erwin and Cris Simpson will in all probability go to Montana with their harness horses. Gus La Fontaine will go with his runners. This will make a good representation for Oregon and the boys will hold their own with the best of them.

John Kirkland of Independence has engaged stalls at the State Fair grounds and will soon move his stable of harness horses consisting of Ben Bolt, Mark Hanna, Susie Lane and a three year old over there to train.

The State Fair grounds is fast becoming the center of horse circles in the Northwest. The track there is being kept in fine condition to train over, and a number of horsemen have engaged stables for their summer training there.

Mr. C. N. Larrabee recently shipped three carloads of horses from his Brook Nook farm in Montana to R. W. Goodrich, New York, for sale. Mr. Goodrich was so well pleased with them that he wrote Mr. Larrabee as follows: "I doubt if the breeder lives who can turn out any such lot of five year olds, that have grown up about as nature made them and that can appear so well with so little use. Every man that has seen this lot of horses agree in saying that they are the grandest lot of green horses ever in Saratoga, but I go still farther and say that no breeder ever turned out such a uniform lot in one year. I mean carriage horses, not race horses."

Opportunities for Young Stallions.

BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN:—Not the least among the questions that are turned over in the minds of thoughtful horsemen, is that of opportunity for the young stallions and broodmares. Opportunity cuts a large figure in the making of a reputation for a sire and a broodmare, and also for the breeder of producers. In the founding of a great trotting family in these days of "kings' competition," the shrewdest horsemen miss no advantage that opportunity offers, recognizing the fact that it is a direct waste of resources to have a good horse or mare handicapped by his environments. We often hear the remark (when the merits of this or that horse are being discussed), "They had great opportunities," made almost as a reproach. In considering the value of different horses, other things being equal, the one enjoying the greatest opportunities is esteemed the highest. A person who selects a stallion to breed his pet mare to, fondly hopes to demonstrate to the world that he has made the proper choice. It sometimes happens that a person selects a stallion with a creditable record, to which he sends his mare with a similar record, saying: "That stallion ought to produce a crackerjack from this mare." He fails to consider that outside her record, his mare is weak in her own maternal lines, and that he himself lacks the skill and intelligence to devote to the proper training of this union of two creditable records. He pronounces the stallion a failure and condemns him to the public. Records cut no figure alone. The horse and mare must combine excellence in individuality, blood elements, brain, gait, muscle development, etc., that trace through speed sources of intrinsic merit. My idea for the best and first move in making a name for a stallion is to secure for him the very best mares obtainable, mares with individual merit and possessing performing and producing blood combined with individuality, action, etc.

I never in my life had under my management a stallion that I did not select for him a mare or two in the first season that produced to him an animal with a record better than 2:20. This may be "swagger" on my part, but the records will bear me out in this statement, and at no time was I led astray by the mare's so-called "creditable record," for in each case they had none.

Another thing that cuts a large figure with a young stallion or mare, when considering "opportunity," is trusting to the public to aid one in the development and racing of their get. The first breeders to demonstrate that it is best not to depend on the public were L. J. Rose, Senator Stanford, Alden Goldsmith, Bowerman Bros., the Hamilins, Mr. Forbes, M. Salisbury, C. W. Williams, Wm. Corbett, A. B. Spreckels and others. Who supposes for one moment that the stars of Axtell, Wilton, Volunteer, Mambrino King, Arion, Electioneer, The Moor, Guy Wilkes, Allerton, Direct, Sultan, Chimes, Director and others of note would have blazed with their present radiance had not a world of enterprise, skill and intelligence been devoted to the breeding, training and management of their progeny.

I am not one of those "full of envy," who is broken with grief over the good judgment of others, and cry "lucky." For me, I should, were I a young person and venturing out as a new breeder, be willing to pay at least five times the price for the stock produced by such enterprising breeders and good managers as the above, rather than begin with those that had not these "opportunities," and the pages of my ledger would bear me out in five years' time. Not only is it necessary in full justice to a young stallion and mare to see that they are properly mated, but that their progeny is properly trained and brought before the public.

I "shout with contempt" at those who will commission a person to buy for them high class stock from a young breeder of limited means, and then bury them or refuse to train or breed. I know where young breeders have been led to sell their young stock to persons, presuming that they would have the very best of opportunities by thus falling into the hands of people with money, but they were only giving the young breeder the "hoot mon," and the result is he is sadly disappointed, having learned that the stock is receiving no opportunity at all, but is being wasted away on a cheap pasture surrounded by barb wire fences. In looking over the stallions in California I note many highly bred and good individuals with and without records, and if the public will give them patronage and manage the progeny well, California will continue its "2:10 or better" list. I am not the "positive" person that some believe me to be, but I have respect for the opinions of others. It is well known that men cannot all agree, but until I am convinced of my error I will cling to my belief that young stallions and mares with fast records are the "providence domain."

SAMUEL GAMBLE.

San Francisco. May 29, 1901.

In Training at Salinas.

Monterey county has for a generation ranked among the foremost sections of California in the rearing of light-harness horses and standard-bred animals. Her claims in this direction are recognized by all who are informed in regard to the number of race winners and high-class drivers that are sold here each year at top-notch prices to wealthy men in San Francisco and elsewhere.

A reporter of the Salinas Democrat visited the race track on Monday, finding there fifteen standard-bred animals in charge of James Dwain, who holds a secure position in the front rank among trainers and drivers in California.

Boodle Jr., son of Boodlo and Nina B., heads the list. This grand-bred animal is in service and is owned by Hon J. D. Carr of this city.

Admiral Dewey, by Boodle Jr., is a two year old. His owner and his trainer look wise when they speak his name.

Wm. Vanderhurst's Pan Yan, a three year old by Dictatus, dam Lily N. by Carr's Mambrino, next dam by Belmont—a fine animal and is expected to make a low mark.

Diabeta, by Diablo 2:09½, dam Mamie V. This promising colt is four years old, a pacer which can go some, having shown 2:15½ in a work out last season.

Mr. Vanderhurst also has in Mr. Dwain's charge three Dictatus colts which are being haltered and given their first lessons. They are a bay colt by Dictatus, dam Salinas Maid; a bay colt by Dictatus, dam Lilly V—a full brother to Pan Yan; a bay yearling by Dictatus, dam Eugenia, by Eugeneer.

Next on the list is a two year old by Altorio, dam Eugeneer, son of Electioneer; this combines some of the greatest blood in America.

Mr. Dwain also has in his charge a brown gelding by Waldstein 2:22; dam by Pasha 2:27, son of Echo. He thinks well of this colt which is the property of George F. Jacobs of Nevada City.

Another choice youngster is a bay filly by Home-ward; dam Anita G. dam of Anita 2:17. A fine mover, owned by C. Wideman of Gonzales.

A black filly by Corey's Sidney; dam a sister to Keno; a fine individual and promises to fill her owners and trainer's hopes some day.

Black Pirate, the Percheron horse owned by Mr. Delaney is at the track where he is making a most successful season. Mr. Delaney surprised the talent by going back to the turf, but he has another, coming out on the track behind a well harnessed and rigged up-to-date—a Hambletonian Wilkes bay filly; dam Bertha, dam of Sybil S. 2:16½, and when Mr. Delaney lets her have her head she goes like clockwork.

Last but not least is the champion Bruno 2:16½, by Junio, one of the best horses in Monterey county. Bruno is taking light work, his owner expecting to train him for races in his class this fall.

Harness Racing in Colorado.

The first legitimate harness race of the new century, on a regular track for regular purses, was held at Trinidad, Colo, last month. For so early in the season the records made were wonderfully fast. On the second day, May 22d, the track record was reduced in the 2:20 pace, and the following day was again reduced to 2:17 in the free for all class by Aelse 2:10½, in the first heat. This race was declared by the large crowd present to be the finest race ever seen in Colorado. All the other events were won in straight heats and the horses all finished in the same positions each heat.

The Principles of Breeding.

In breeding light harness horses, and particularly the American trotter, but few horsemen aim to produce the pacer, says Drover's Journal. The theory of breeding is closely followed, but results are frequently varied. Many fanciers place paramount emphasis on pedigree to the exclusion of individuality. The market requirements demand personality first and make breeding secondary. Practical breeders have achieved success with indifferent breeding from superlative types, while others have made rank failures with their farms covered with standard bred registered animals. To produce excellence a superior foundation is essential. Style, size, faultless conformation and action are as essential as royal blood. When breeding is not accompanied with these qualifications, it is valueless as plobian blood.

Speed itself has been evolved in a marked degree from animals with superlative individual qualities, but deficient in fashionable breeding.

While breeders aim at uniformity in speed production by a system of continuous development of sires and dams, thus intensifying the natural instinct to a great flight of harness speed, the value of the ancestral inheritance is discounted, when the inclination is developed in inferior individuals for breeding purposes.

Coarseness is a quality in a harness horse incompatible with great value for a breeder or pleasure driver. A quarter of a century ago the craze was for speed alone, and but little attention was paid to the individual. The trotter or pacer possessing the greatest flight of speed was the horse that commanded the extreme market price. Fashion has changed and while speed for pleasure use is in urgent demand, to be valuable it must be associated with an animal of great style and beauty of conformation. Roadsters of this type have sold around $5000 to $10,000 lately for speedway use. And only last week Tichenor & Co. closed out a consignment of forty-one head of coachers at public auction for the princely sum of $71,225, making a record average of $1750. Individual animals sold up to $7600, principally on the merits of entrancing beauty of conformation, combined with attractive style and action. There were no coarse features in the individuality of the horses. They were of a type that attracts attention on the boulevards and carry off the blue ribbons in the show ring.

They were highly-bred animals of well-balanced substance, devoid of coarseness. There was a solidity and firmness in their contour that displayed great endurance, finish and quality. There was no roughness in any part of the anatomical structure to indicate weakness or flashiness. There was great substance, united with superlative quality, that distinguished the animals as belonging to a select class and wealthy fanciers contrived each other in bidding up the values to record prices. The ideal horse that is to pull weight at top speed must have the substance to carry his flight, and the frictionless conformation to give him endurance.

These are functional points in the anatomical structure essential to grace of action and extreme flights of speed, and these functional qualities can as uniformly be produced in the modern fashionable type as in the coarse specimens that go begging for customers at ridiculously low prices. To produce a type one must use an ancestral prototype. With royally bred ancestors of the true conformation the progeny will make the fashionable coach horse. The Turk 2:30, which Tichenor & Co. sold for $7800, the record auction price for a gelding for pleasure driving, was the ideal coach horse model. This gelding was as compactly built as possible with freedom of action. He inherited a short back, great depth through the heart, powerfully muscled arched loin, oblique shoulders, great measurement from the point of the shoulders to the withers, short canons; well arched crest, broad between the jaws, clean cut at the throat, great width of forehead, clean, bony head, with wide thin, trumpet shaped nostrils, combined with unusual substance in the forearms, stifles and gaskins. His action was high, rapid and frictionless. In every lineament of his personality The Turk was the personification of equine perfection, commanding in presence, impressive in style charming in action, and faultless in manners. To breed this type of coach or speedway roadsters should be the ambition of breeders.

Meeting of State Board of Agriculture.

The Directors of the State Board of Agriculture met in Sacramento last Friday, Messrs. Frederick Cox, J. E. Terry, J. W. Wilson, A. W. Barrett, Grove L. Johnson and John Mackey being present. After the meeting had been called to order Director Wilson announced his retirement from the Board and presented his successor, Mr. Chas. E. Paine of Sacramento. A resolution was unanimously adopted and spread upon the minutes thanking him for the conscientious manner in which he had discharged the duties imposed upon him during the eight years he had served as Director. One of the newly appointed Directors, Hon. Ben F. Rush of Solano county, arrived at noon and was present at the afternoon session of the Board. Mr. A. B. Spreckels was unanimously re-elected President, and Frederick Cox Vice-President. Director Johnson was elected Superintendent of the Pavilion, and Director Mackey Superintendent of the Park. The following committees were then appointed by the Chair:

Special committee to revise premium list—Directors Johnson, Cox and Rush.

Finance—Directors Cox, Terry and Rush.

Printing and publication—Directors Johnson, Covey and Chamberlain.

Library—Directors Chamberlain, Paine and Rush.

Speed program—Directors, Terry, Covey, Paine and the Assistant Secretary.

Legal—Directors Henshaw, Johnson and Harris.

Director Barrett moved that the State Fair for 1901 be held from the 2d to the 14th of September. The motion was seconded by Mr. Terry and carried unanimously.

On motion of Director Barrett, seconded by Director Johnson, the election of a secretary was passed over.

No further business coming before the board, the meeting adjourned to the call of the Chair.

Will Welch of Pleasanton will have a small string of horses on the California circuit this year. He recently drove Captain J. F. Bennett's pacer Dr. Hammond a mile in 2:15 over the Pleasanton track, last half in 1:04 and the last quarter in 31½ seconds—a pretty good showing for a green horse. Dr. Hammond is seven years old and is a chestnut by Charles Derby, dam Bella 2d by Nutwood, second dam Bella by Dietz St. Clair, third dam by Tiger Whip a son of the Missouri Tiger Whip. He was bred at Oakwood Park Stock Farm. Mr. Welch will also campaign the Diablo pacer Jim Marshall owned by F. L. Dortch of Honolulu. He has driven this three year old a mile in 2:23½, last half in 1:09 and last quarter in 34 seconds.

THOROUGHBREDS.

ST. CARLO	James McDonnell, Portola
-----------	--------------------------

THE PRESENT OUTLOOK for harness racing in California this year is for eight weeks certain, with good purses, ranging from $500 to $1000. The Breeders' meeting will probably open the circuit. Its week is the one beginning July 29th, and the place the Sacramento track, now one of the best harness racing tracks in America. The Breeders have advertised six early closing purses of $1000 each, and there will be ten or twelve more advertised for lesser amounts. There are three weeks open at present between the Breeders' meeting and the annual fair and race meeting at Woodland, where purses ranging from $500 to $750 will be given in sufficient number to make a week's high class racing. After Woodland the State Fair will immediately follow, two weeks of racing being already announced. The program is not yet published, but the speed committee is at work on it and an early announcement will be made. It will be a generous one, as the State Agricultural Society always provides good purses and looks out for the interests of the harness horse owners as well as the runners. After the State Fair Stockton will be in line with a good program, the purses being fully as liberal as last year, when a good meeting was given, and a successful one, too. After Stockton the Monterey Agricultural Society will hold its annual fair at Salinas. This association has never been on the main circuit, but the opening of the new coast road will make it very convenient for horsemen going to Los Angeles to stop off at Salinas for a week, and a slight increase in its purses will draw the best horses in training on the circuit. Los Angeles has already advertised $11,300 in purses for the harness horses, the meeting to last two weeks, with two harness events each day. The Los Angeles purses range from $1000 down to $600, and there are but two events at the latter figure. It will be seen that here are eight weeks of harness racing certain, and the sizes of the purses is sufficient to attract good horses and make the season a profitable one for winners. There are plenty of horses now in training in California to fill all the events advertised or that will be advertised and the racing this year should be high class and worth going to see. There are green trotters and pacers enough to insure big fields in the slow classes, and it need occasion no surprise if from them will come more than one sensational performer. In breeding and looks the horses now in training are ahead of any like number that have been worked here in previous seasons, and is proof of the claim that California during the past few years has bred better horses than ever before, even though it has not bred so many. Since last year's racing season here many thousands of dollars have been left in California by Eastern horsemen who came here during the winter to pick up the developed good ones that the circuit of last year brought into prominence. It will be the same next winter, although the supply will not equal the demand to a moral certainty. Owners should train and enter every horse possible for our summer circuit, as it will enable them to sell at a good figure every good one they develop.

VANCE NUCKOLS has filled quite a conspicuous place in the eye of the harness horse contingency recently, and the decision in his case has furnished a subject for discussion in all the turf journals. Some of the writers think Mr. Nuckols the most sinned against man in America and call the decision a judicial outrage. To enlighten those who do not know the facts of the case we will state that Mr. Nuckols last year purchased a horse by the name of Arch W. that was entered in the 2:20 class. His record in the Year Book was given as 2:19, the man from whom he purchased the horse stated that was his record and a letter from the Secretary of the National Trotting Association confirmed the statement. Nuckols raced the horse in the 2:20 class and won. The horse was protested and the Board of Review at its recent meeting heard evidence that convinced it that Arch W's record was 2:16, and thereupon instructed Mr. Nuckols to return the money he had won in the races in which his horse had started out of his class. Now the turf scribes who are championing Mr. Nuckols cause say that he has been outlandishly treated. They argue that he took every precaution to ascertain that the record of Arch W. was not faster than 2:19, and that he had the word of the National Secretary, the official figures of the Year Book, and the affidavit of the President of the Association at whose meeting the alleged time suppression was committed. that the record was straight and the correct record of the horse 2:19. Now this is all right as far as Mr. Nuckols is concerned. He did everything in his power and thought the horse was all right. But that is no reason why he should not return the money if Arch W. was raced out of his class, and if the members of the Board of Review heard evidence which convinced them that he was, they could not, according to the rules of the National Trotting Association and the law of common sense, make any ruling but the one they are being abused for. Mr. Nuckols is entitled to a lot of sympathy as he was doubtless badly swindled in the matter of the horse's record, but that's all he is entitled to. The man whose horse finished second is entitled to the money paid to Mr. Nuckols, and should have it. A man may make every possible effort to protect himself in entering his horse according to rule, but if the rules are not complied with his horse is not entitled to the money. Rules are made to be followed and not to be avoided. If there is proof that Arch W. trotted in 2:16 in Alabama and the time was hung out as 2:19, the decision in Mr. Nuckols case is correct.

IT IS ANNOUNCED by the California Jockey Club that racing will end on Saturday, June 15th, one week from to-day. This announcement sets at rest the rumors that were started by irresponsible parties and sent broadcast to the effect that racing would continue all summer at Oakland. When President Williams secured an option on the other two racing plants here, he stated that the Oakland meeting would continue until about the middle of June, and this late announcement is evidence that Mr. Williams has not lost a habit contracted long ago, of keeping his word. He has also stated that the next meeting will be much shortened and this also can be depended upon. There is no doubt but racing in California will be on a much better footing next winter than it ever has been. There are rumors from time to time of another track being built, but it is not likely that men with capital can be induced to put their money in such a risky business as a fourth race track, and without capital it cannot be built. There is every likelihood that the racing war is over and that peace will reign in the horse world of California for many years to come.

AN EARLIER DATE has been selected for the Breeders' meeting at Sacramento, and the week's racing is now fixed to begin July 29th and close August 3d. When it was announced that the opening day would be August 12th, the fact was not taken into consideration that the extensive repairs to be made on the stalls and buildings this year would be under way at the time, consequently at the request of the State Agricultural Society, the date was advanced two weeks. The date of closing entries, however, remains the same and the six early closing stakes of $6000 will close July 1st. These stakes provide for all but the extreme fast classes. There is a 2:40, a 2:20 and a 2:14 trot, and a 2:23, 2:17 and 2:13 pace. If there is a horse in training in California that cannot be named in one of these stakes, he has a record of 2:12 or better pacing or 2:13 or better trotting. There should be a big list of entries result from the announcement of these stakes. Ten or twelve additional purses for smaller amounts than those already advertised will be announced July 1st, to close July 15th. Provision will also be made for the fast classes of both trotters and pacers.

THE PACIFIC BREEDERS FUTURITY, a stake whose value is $6000 guaranteed by the Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeders Association, and which was inaugurated last year, received 305 entries, and if the usual number of nominations remain in and are paid up on, the stake will be worth more than the sum guaranteed. It was for foals of 1900, and there was not a very large amount of breeding done the year previous. The stake will be renewed this year by the Breeders Association probably for the same amount, and will be for foals of this year. It should receive a larger entry list than the first stake as there are more foals this year than there were last. A great deal of breeding has been done this year in California, many owners having had to refuse to book as many mares as were applied for. It is probable that the renewal of the Futurity for foals of 1902 will receive five hundred nominations. It is the richest three year old stake on the Pacific Coast now. The first race will be in 1903.

THE STANFORD STAKES, which closed June 1st, received 89 entries, which is the highest number ever reached in this annual three year old event. As the stake trotted last year closed with but thirty entries and was worth $765, it is reasonable to suppose that with three times the number of entries this stake will be worth three times the amount, or $2295, a nice sum to start for at an entrance fee of but $50. This stake has been growing steadily in value since its inception, and shows that such stakes lead to the breeding and training of colts to win them. The Assistant Secretary of the State Agricultural Society, Mr. Harry Lowden, is to be congratulated on the good showing the stake for foals of 1900 has made. His efforts to secure a large list have certainly been well rewarded.

THE GRAND CIRCUIT will soon open and many California horses will be represented in its leading events. There will be more large purses trotted for this year by larger fields of horses than for many years past, and the racing will be particularly interesting. We will furnish full and complete summaries of these races and those of our readers who are not regular subscribers should have their names placed on our mailing list forthwith that they may receive the paper regularly. The subscription price of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN is $3 per year or $1.75 for six months.

AN AUTOMOBILE was being carried from San Francisco to Stockton last week on one of the river steamers that plies on the San Joaquin and while no one was looking at it, started to run along the deck, broke the rail and went overboard in five fathoms of water. Now the worst unbroken, unruly horse in the country would not do a fool thing like that, for even though he should take fright and jump overboard he would swim ashore and would not have to be fished out by a dredger at an expense of a hundred dollars.

FIFTEEN CAR LOADS OF YEARLINGS left Rancho Del Paso last week for New York, where they will be sold June 14th, 15th and 17th by the Fasig-Tipton Company. There were 241 colts and fillies all foals of 1900.

A MOYER SPEED BUGGY, which is one of the best buggies made, is offered for sale. It will seat two, cost $335 when new, and has been used very little. See advertisement.

The great Western Circuit of 1901 will afford continuous racing from July 2d to October 12th, at twenty of the greatest racing points in the west. Purses will aggregate $250,000 in value, and every meeting will be on a mile track.

"Columbus," of the Western Horseman says: "If you have never imposed upon the secretary of your local race track by demanding free tickets for the entire family, that is something to your credit."

We have no record of Mayflower, a mare eighteen years old, by May Boy. A pacing mare by that name by him took a record of 2:21½ last year in Vermont. She was foaled in 1893. May Boy 3621 was bred by A. Hayward, San Mateo, and was foaled in 1878. He was by Hambletonian 725, dam Harvest Queen 2:29½ by Hambletonian 10, grandam by American Star 14.

J. A. G., Los Angeles—We have no record of a mare called Lady Hollywood. There is a mare called Lady Hollywood however in the great broodmare list. She is a bay mare foaled 1880, and is by Holloway's Denmark, dam Stella by Bald Hornet, grandam Kitty by Bertrand. She is the dam of the pacer Fullerton Boy 2:18½ and the trotter Proem 2:28½. There are three stallions registered under the name of Autocrat. The first is No. 1093, was foaled in 1865 and is by Volunteer 55 out of the Miller mare by American Star. The next is Autocrat 3228, was foaled in 1882, and was sired by Havoc 1215, dam Onondaga Girl by Reveler 3109. The third is Autocrat 21933. He is by Geo. M. Patchen 30, dam Wanderer.

W. B. Fasig has bought Senator Mills (3) 2:29½ from J. D. Callery, Pittsburg, Pa., and will have him fitted for the races, and he may be a starter in the Charter Oak Stake.

Will Race Again July Fourth.

Golden Gate Park Driving Association will give an afternoon of harness racing at the Oakland race track on Thursday, July 4th. This was decided upon at the regular meeting of the association held Tuesday evening last, at the Palace Hotel. It was voted that five races be given. President Thos. H. Williams, of the California Jockey Club, has kindly granted the use of the Oakland track, and there is no doubt but a very large attendance will result.

At the meeting held May 30th, at Tanforan, there were at least fifteen hundred people present, in spite of the fact that there were many other attractions, such as racing at Oakland, coursing at Union Park and innumerable picnics and excursions the same day. Secretary Patrick reported that the profits of the day to the association were in the neighborhood of $250. While no admission fee was charged at the gate, J. P. Atkins paid $500 for the pool privilege and the entrance money and other privileges made up quite a sum. Five purses of $100 each were given.

It is proposed to hold the team race over again. It will be remembered that President Aigeltinger's team won this race, Mr. Jacobs' and Mr. Newman's teams keeping to their required gaits but a small part of the journey, which was a dash of one mile. The club will hang up $100 for the three teams to compete for again and it is announced that a side bet of $500 a corner has been made, but this is probably caloric atmosphere. Entries to the purses offered by the association can be made any Tuesday evening at the association room in the Palace Hotel, or at the business office of Secretary Patrick, 925 Sutter street.

John Goldsmith's Mistake.

Up in the tower of Madison Square Garden a day or two ago a few horse lovers gathered and talked entertainingly of the great races of the past, says the N. Y. Sun. Several amusing reminiscences as to how drivers, trainers and conditioners "get in wrong" by under-rating their opponents were related.

"One of the greatest mistakes of that kind that I can recall," said Ed Tipton, "was made by the late John Goldsmith, whose superior in classing trotting horses has probably not been born. The occurrence I allude to happened at Lexington in 1893, the year we went up against the panic and built the new track, also the first year of the Kentucky Futurity, which was won by the three year old black colt Oro Wilkes, driven by Goldsmith, after a desperate struggle with Medo, about as great a race as ever was trotted.

"In those days I enjoyed getting to the track very early, often taking my breakfast as the guest of a trainer who boarded his men in a tent, and it was good, too. One morning as I was starting for the hoecako and ham I noticed 'Prof. Milani' on the track with a bay mare that I recognized at once as the three year old Eoline by Anteco, that had not been entered in the Futurity, but was one of the greatest young trotters the world ever saw. I stopped to time her, and before I was through I saw something that almost took my appetite, for she trotted the first quarter in 32½ seconds, then put another on that in 31½ seconds. She looked as though she was flying for the next eighth of a mile, but 'Milani' pulled her up before she had gone a third quarter. That was enough for me, and as Goldsmith had once befriended me in California I determined to overstep the discretion of a secretary and give him a pointer. So I advised him to rest on the Futurity laurels with Oro Wilkes and not go against a hard game in the Kentucky Stakes. Before I was well started on the merits of the filly John interrupted me by saying:

"To-morrow the track will be heavy and the day probably bad. Both conditions will help my colt, a race horse that can beat that filly on any kind of a track and he is good. I shall bet on him and will advise my friends to bet on him."

"That staggered me, for it was said in a friendly spirit by a man whose judgment I respected above that of any man in the profession—a man who generally knew his own horse and always gave due credit to the ability of his opponent. As it turned out his judgment as to the day and track was all right, but he was woefully mistaken about the race. It was a two in three affair and the first part of the first heat, going considered, was blood-stirring and fast. The followers of the Wilkes, and there were plenty of them were about ready to yell, but the colt was not fast enough and had to succumb to the inevitable, the filly jogging home in about 2:16½. The second heat Goldsmith tried to win by waiting for a brush through the homestretch, but that was the filly's long suit. She outbrushed him easily and Goldsmith had to acknowledge that he had underrated her ability and made a great mistake.

"But wasn't she great? McHenry says Impetuous was the greatest three year old ever bred in Kentucky, Marvin says Extacy, others say Ferenno, but quite a number still stand for Eoline."

A Woman Trainer at Denver.

[Denver Times, May 29th.]

One of the interesting features of the horse training going on at Overland Park is the working of the bay Superior colt, Orphan Boy, owned and trained by Maud Halthusen. Every morning shortly after day-break the well known bay colt makes his appearance on the track and in the bike back of him is the familiar figure of a woman in pink calico wrapper and pink sun-bonnet. New trainers as they arrive at the track first express surprise to see a woman training a horse, and as they pass give her a wide berth in order to avoid having a wheel taken off, but as they become familiar with her ability as a driver, she is the one picked out for the dashes down the stretch, and she figures in many of the most exciting finishes.

She handles the ribbons as well as most of the men at the park and a great deal better than many with reputations. She has the utmost confidence in the horses in her string, and thoroughly believes that some day they will bring her fame and fortune. She has never met with an accident on the track, and it is seldom that any of the horses she drives attempts to cut up funny capers with her. She has had a heart-to-heart talk with most of them, and they fully realize that when she is in the sulky she is the pilot.

She takes the entire care of her horses, feeds, works, walks and rubs them down after they have been sent through their daily exercise. She is one of the first trainers at the track, and none have worked more faithfully to get their horses into condition than she. Her long experience and familiarity with horses has made her an expert, and frequently the experienced trainers on the track seek her for information or advice.

During the race meeting she is always a familiar figure in the betting ring. Then she discards her pink wrapper for a well fitting tailor made gown and with a little hand bag strapped to her waist goes around putting down her money where she thinks there is a chance to win. Many a wise one gets into lino back of Maud Halthusen and puts his money down the same way she does without even questioning her judgment. After working at the track during all the preliminary raining she has a pretty good idea of the ability of the various horses and she is willing to back her judgment with her money.

The colt she thinks the most of is Orphan Boy and he is a magnificent animal with great possibilities. The name of the horse means a great deal and to those who are familiar with the horses at the track recalls a very precarious existence during the first few months of the fast colt's life. He was born on the stock farm of Du Bois Bros., about five miles east of the city. When the colt was two weeks old his mother, Silver Queen, was killed by a bolt of lightning while walking around the pasture with the colt by her side. The colt was not harmed, but left motherless.

He was brought into Denver and brought up on steamed oats in C. J. Stoddard's back yard. For a time the colt did not take kindly to the new system of feeding and it was feared that he would die, but after the first month he commenced to grow at the rate of thirty pounds a month and now he is as well developed as any colt that Superior ever boasted of and he has some of the finest in the land.

The colt will make his bow to Overland crowds this year as a two year old. In his work at the park he has been going miles in 2:55 as though he was going to the mountains with a picnic party. Almost every day he lets out another link of speed and if nothing happens to him before the meeting he is quite likely to demonstrate that he is a Superior colt by name and in action.

Anaconda and Jasper Ayers.

Trainer Jack Trout has a safe lead on all others to date in the manner of holding the New England record as he worked Anaconda a mile last week in 2:15, says the Boston Traveler. Outside of California and Iowa this beats anything attempted in the way of fast work in this country. Trainers situated inland can safely step their horses earlier in the spring than those on the sea coast, as they have not to fear the dreaded east winds which prove so disastrous by knocking out so many race horses every year. Trainer James Carpenter let Jasper Ayers 2:09 have his head a little the final quarter of a slow mile on Friday at Readville. He did the quarter in 36 seconds and the last eighth in 17½ seconds. This is the best time made by any horse at the track this spring. Because the Ayers horse is going so sound and good, does not entirely convince Manager George Leavitt that he will prove his ability to go to the races later on. "I want to see him get several weeks more 'prep' under his jacket before I will have faith in his ever getting to a race," said the genial George. "Why, last year I thought he was the best thing in sight for the 2:09 trots, when he suddenly went lame on me, and I am afraid the same thing may happen this season." Carpenter also allowed the queen of road mares Armila, to have a "breather" through the homestretch. She went an eighth in 18 seconds, and was simply jogging.

Zombro 2:11 Goes to Oregon.

Geo. T. Beckors has taken his great young race horse and sire, Zombro 2:11 by McKinney 2:11½, to Salem, Oregon, where the horse will make a summer season in the stud. Zombro has the distinction of having sired a three year old filly that without stake engagements has sold for more money than any filly sold for years. It is hard to figure just the exact amount she brought, as she was offered for $9000 and sold for $10,000 with another mare on which the price of $1500 had been set. At any rate the price can be fixed at from $8500 to $9000 and for a young horse to have one of his first crop of colts sold at that price as a three year old shows that he is a superior sire. The breeding and performances of Zombro are known to all our readers and it is not necessary to repeat them here. The owners of good mares in Oregon should not miss this opportunity to breed to one of the greatest young horses in America, as the value of his foals will be large as soon as they are grown, and will increase from year to year. Mr. Beckers will be located at the Fair Grounds, near Salem, Oregon, until September 1st.

SULKY NOTES.

Nearly 500 horses are now stabled at the Denver track.

They say The Abbot has been a quarter in 30½ seconds already.

Sacramento race track is in perfect condition for training and stalls are free.

Myron McHenry has Dan Patch 2:16, the horse that won all his races last season, in his string at the Cleveland track.

Have your horses all ready to start by July 29th, as that is the date of the opening of the Breeders' meeting at Sacramento.

Sunol 2:08½ has a bay colt foal by Oro Wood, a son of Oro Wilkes 2:11 and Mystic, dam of Fred Kohl 2:07½ by Nutwood.

Mr. A. B. Spreckels of this city who recently went East on a trip for the benefit of his health, arrived in New York City May 29th.

Directum Kelley 2:08½, is going well in his work and Scott McCoy is confident that the Butler horse will be a tough proposition this year.

Bill Donathan has McBriar 2:14 at Oakland preparing him for the races which open July 29th at Sacramento, when the Breeders will start the circuit.

A. G. Stice, of Monmouth, Illinois, who raced in California last May, has leased the stallion Sir Charles 2:10½ and will enter him through the Mississippi valley circuit.

The green mare Neva Simmons by Simmons, Tom Price's M. & M. candidate, recently stepped a mile over the Louisville track in 2:15, last half in 1:05½, last quarter in 32 seconds.

John Shepard, of Boston, is going to try for the team record with Senator L. 2:12 and Altro L. 2:11½, and will soon send them to James Golden, to shape up for that and matinee work.

Marvin has about abandoned hope of ever being able to get Battlesign 2:13½, who broke down in last year's M. and M., to a race again. He is still lame, after ten months' careful nursing.

The American Hackney Society will offer a handsome prize for stallions, to be shown with three or four of their get, at the horse show to be held in connection with the Pan-American exposition at Buffalo.

C. A. Durfee has the Palo Alto colt Monbells, the last foal of Beautiful Bells, in his string at San Jose and will race him on the California Circuit. Monbells is four years old and was sired by Mendocino.

There are seven horses entered in the 2:09 pace at Denver with records better than 2:12. There should be some fast miles at Overland Park if the weather remains favorable. The meeting opens next Saturday.

Dr. Hagyard, of the Bitter Root Stock Farm, has broken all records as a horse shipper. His latest feat was to send 241 head from Montana to New York, a distance of nearly 3000 miles, and out of the lot he sold 239 head, losing only two.

James Butler has sent Directiva 2:16½, to be bred to Baron Wilkes 2:18. Directiva is by Direct 2:05½, out of Stemwinder 2:21, the dam of Directum 2:05½, and if the produce of Baron Wilkes is not able to go some there is nothing in breeding.

If anyone wants a very handsome, stylish black horse that can trot fast for a road horse and has the kindest of dispositions he should go to Alameda track and look at Direct Fils. He is an elegant roadster and would make a great saddle horse.

Sunol 2:08½ by Electioneer, dropped her first foal recently at Parkview Farm, New York, but pneumonia carried the little fellow off before he was a week old. He was a bay colt, sired by Ora Wood, son of Ora Wilkes 2:11 and Mystic by Nutwood.

At Gillett, Colo., arrangements are being made for a race meeting, which will occur early in June, directly after the Colorado Springs meeting, or immediately after the Overland Park meeting. Gillett has the best half-mile track in the mountain country.

Any person who puts a new performer by Roy Wilkes in the list this year may breed a mare to that sire next season free of charge; also any person who lowers the record of any of the get of Roy Wilkes this year has the same free breeding privilege.

The Kentucky Trotting Horse Breeders' Association will offer, in addition to the $7000 purse given by Thos. W. Lawson, for a race in October between Charley Herr and Cresceus, a $500 trophy to the champion stallion. The trophy will probably be a handsome cup.

H. D. Brown who is training a small string to race in California this year, has the pacer Doc Wilkes 2:15½ looking better than ever and if this horse keeps right he will win money in his class. Brown has a green trotter in his string at Oakland that will bear watching whenever it starts.

Sunday mornings between 9 o'clock and noon the new track built by the Oakland Driving Club at Sixteenth street station, is pretty well patronized by the amateur reinsmen and others. With plenty of water and work the track can be kept in good condition for speeding during the summer months.

The common error of calling every coach a tally-ho is attributed to the fact that this was the name of the first public road coach run in America by amateurs. Colonel Delancey Kane imported the Tally-ho from England just twenty-five years ago and put it on the road between the Hotel Brunswick and Pelham, New York.

The California trainers who shipped their horses to the Oakley track at Cincinnati, all left that place for Cleveland on Wednesday of this week. The Oakley track is not as good as the one at Cleveland for fast work, at the present time, and for that reason the Californians, together with many others, concluded to move.

The Oregon Stake is the name given a $1500 stake for trotters and pacers, the former to get $900, the latter $600, and which is to be raced for at the Oregon State Fair of 1902 by foals of 1900. Entries are to close July 10th, this year. Good money for two year olds will put many into training in the northern country.

The fastest mile of the year up to last Saturday at Overland Park, Denver, was made by the pacer Winfield Stratton on that day. He was driven a mile in 2:13 by his trainer Frank Loomis. Winfield Stratton is by Saraway and his record is 2:22½, made last year. He is entered in the 2:25 and 2:23 classes at the meeting which opens June 15th.

Geo. A. Ketcham, the owner of Cresceus, is a great admirer of Grattan, of which he recently said: "There is as game a trotter as ever came down the stretch and he would to-day hold the honor of having trotted the three fastest heats if it were not that there was a horse by the name of Cresceus in the race. Beat Charley Herr? Yes, sir; every time."

The proposition made to Mr. J. C. McKinney by Mr. C. A. Winship at Cleveland, was as follows according to a correspondent of the Horse Review. Mr. Winship offered to sell Zephyr for $9000 and Velvet Rose for $1500, or both for $10,000. Mr. McKinney accepted the latter proposition, and every person can figure out for himself what each mare sold for.

George Garth, the man who, when a heavy mortgage was pressing on his farm down in Alabama, offered a prayer to the throne of grace for relief, and afterward bred Jessio McEwen, which he sold for $4000, is at the Baltimore track with eight head of horses. George believes in prayer, and when he meets a scuffer he tells him how he lifted the mortgage on his farm.

Harry Byrne, of Chicago, who owned the little spotted trotter Sheppard Boy 2:23½, and who brought that horse to California to winter in 1877-78, died recently at his home in Chicago. Sheppard Boy was a white horse with brown spots and during the World's Fair at Chicago was kept with the Arabian horses in the Bedouin concession and passed readily as one of them. Sheppard Boy died several years ago.

The Yreka Jockey Club will hold four days racing from July 3 to 6, 1901. The purses for harness horses range from $200 to $250 and are advertised in our issue this week. All entries to both harness and running events are overnight, and the conditions are two to enter and three to start. The entrance is ten per cent of the purse and the money will be divided 60, 30 and 10 per cent. R. S. Taylor, Yreka, is the Secretary.

Ed Lafferty left Alameda for Sacramento Wednesday with four horses. He had Boydello 2:14½, the green pacer Durfee Mac, a chestnut trotting mare by Sablo Steinway, and a three year old by Silver Bow, dam Grace by Buccaneer, that is entered in the Occident Stakes. He will have the four year old brother to this colt that Geo. Fox sold last week to Geo. E. Stickle of Angels Camp for $1700, and may have one or two more soon.

The Oregon State Board of Agriculture intend establishing a futurity for foals of 1903 to be raced for at its State Fair of 1905. The stake will be for both trotters and pacers, and will aggregate $5000. To be eligible the colts must be from mares nominated in 1902. It will be the richest futurity for two year olds ever offered this side of the Rocky Mountains. The Oregon Board is both progressive and energetic and is doing much for the breeders of live stock.

The stallion owner who does not advertise simply because his grandfather did not, ought to wear knee breeches and a queue, says "Columbus." The breeder who does not advertise because it costs money, should quit paying rent for the same reason. The dealer who does not advertise because he tried it and failed, should keep on trying it until he succeeds. Anyone who will not advertise because he don't know how, should stop eating because he can't cook.

The Stark stable of Colorado Springs is in training at Council Bluffs. Porto Rico, the Electrite colt that went to the half in 1:04 in the Kentucky futurity last fall, will be started in the M. & M. if he comes along in his work. Mr. Stark bought this colt recently. At the present time he looks like a cripple, as his hind toes are cut off and he does not strike his heels when walking. Last year he had speed to burn but was exceedingly rough gaited when going slow.—Denver Field and Farm.

At the Blue Ribbon sale at Cleveland, the chestnut stallion Thompson 2:14½ by Boodle 2:12½, dam Flora H. by Jim Mulvena, was sold to Dick Benson for $700. The brown gelding Boodler, seven years old, by Boodle 2:12½, dam Bossie S. by Prince Albert, brought $1100 at the same sale. E. P. Whitcount of Bradford, Pa., being the purchaser. Both these horses were taken East and sold last year by B. O. Van Bokkelen. Mr. Benson will campaign Thompson and Red Seal 2:10, which he also purchased at the sale.

Many of the get of Saraway, the premier stallion of Valley View Stock Farm, near Denver, are showing great speed. Winfield Stratton, the horse that worked in 2:13 at Denver the other day, is by Saraway, and Vioway, a two year old by him worked a mile in 2:30. There are four or five others that are fast and will be started this year. Saraway was bred at Oakwood Park Stock Farm in California and is a full brother to Chas. Derby 2:20.

The lately closed "Kentucky Stock Farm" purse of $7500, to be trotted by foals of this season in 1904 received 750 entries representing over 200 stallions. Allerton 2:09½, leads with thirty-eight of his colts and fillies eligible. Boreal 2:15½, comes next with twenty-eight. Moko, Ashland Wilkes and Bingen 2:06½, follow equal third with twenty each, while the sires following next in the line of popularity as evidenced by the entry list are Adbell 2:23, Prodgal 2:16, Baron Wilkes 2:18, Directum 2:05½, Constantine 2:12½, San Mateo 2:13½, Sphinx 2:20½, Pilatus 2:09½, Wilton 2:19½, Jay Bird 2:31½ and Ponce de Leon 2:13.

Charles Caffrey, the sulky builder, says the fastest thing he ever built in the wagon line is the 55-pound skeleton wagon made for Robert J. and John R. Gentry in 1897, and which they drew a mile in 2:08 at Glens Falls that season. The rear wheels were smaller than the front ones, thus securing a more direct draught of the weights. "It was a perfect line of descent from the yoke to the rear hubs," said Mr. Caffrey, "and I was convinced long ago I could better distribute the weight, also absolutely prevent 'slewing' on the turns. It did both. To-day there are not as many skeleton wagons used as formerly, yet I believe a man can make better gaited youngsters sitting lower and where he can see their every stride better than when above them when jogging and giving them their initial speed lessons."

Parkville Farm, one of the most famous trotting horse breeding farms in America, has been sold by its owner, John Shults of New York, for $480,000. Mr. Shults sold, it is said, in order to devote his time to his other farms at Goshen and Port Chester. It is thought to be the intention of the new owners to devote the plant to its present purposes for some while yet, though in the near future the tide of travel and growth of suburban Brooklyn will, through its value, it is thought, necessitate its cutting up into building plots. The building, stables and track proper are all in first class condition and could not be reproduced for $75,000, exclusive of the land. The track is one mile in extent and is one of the most level in the country. Over two hundred horses, the property of Mr. Shults, are at present in the stables, among them some well bred broodmares and stallions. For over a generation the Parkville Farm has been one of the show breeding places of the country, and if it is continued on the same broad spirit of Mr. Shults, it will continue to be.

Early last season drivers, trainers and critics of the methods of preparing trotting horses made several comments on "Uncle Davy" for the manner in which he prepared Charley Herr for the grand circuit campaign. They declared that it was almost criminal for a man of his experience to risk the preparation of as great a horse as was Charley Herr. This year the criticisms are even more severe. They say that Uncle Davy is going along with the horse in a manner that will utterly ruin his racing career, and one or two bots have been made that he will not win a race during the coming season. Everywhere there are suggestions that the horse should be put in the hands of some one of the master reinsmen of the country, but the dairyman owner continues to prepare his charge despite all comments. Some foundation has been made for the complaints in the fact that Lucy Carr, a mare with a record half a dozen seconds slower than Charley Herr, has outbrushed the great horse when they came together at the end of the mile in their training work this spring. Friends of Mr. Cahill, refuse to credit the rumor that the horse will not be good, and point to the fact that year after year just the same thing has happened in Charley Herr's early work. Men would give much to know whether Uncle Davy or his critics are right. Thousands of dollars hinge on the question as Charley Herr is already entered at Readville with Boralma and Cresceus at $10,000 a corner, in the $10,000 free for all at Brighton Beach, and the $7000 match with Cresceus at Loxington. The season's racing will answer the question.—Boston Globe.

In the untimely death of William E. Spier, owner of the Suburban Farm, Glens Falls, N. Y., the trotting turf loses a staunch patron. The breeding interest loses an even stouter prop. Suburban Farm has sheltered many notable horses. At one time Robert McGregor 2:17½, the "Monarch of the Home Stretch" which did so much for the light harness horse in so many ways, was premier at that farm and then came Delmar 2:16, son of Electioneer. After that horse died Adbell 2:23, champion yearling trotter of the world and a son of Advertiser 2:15½, and the famous Beautiful Bells 2:29½, dam of Chimes (sire of The Abbot 2:03½, champion trotter of the world, etc.) took his place but only a little while afterwards Mr. Spier went right to the top of the tree and for $20,000 purchased Directum 2:05½, champion trotting stallion. Always a good buyer of mares likely to produce winners Mr. Spier had a handsome collection to mate with the black champion, but he did not rest there. As soon as he had installed Directum as premier he set about buying every really top mare he could get a figure on and to-day the harem surrounding Directum is almost without an equal. Many winners of stakes were bred at Suburban Farm. Mr. Spier had his full share of success as a breeder of colt trotters. His death resulted from mastoiditis, a disease causing the formation of an abscess at the base of the brain. He was a man of sterling qualities, very successful in business and very wealthy. He took a keen interest in trotting and pacing sport for the sake of the sport and spared neither time nor money to get the best. He was honored and respected in racing and breeding as well as financial circles. The harness racing and breeding industry can ill afford to lose such men as he. —Breeders' Gazette.

Volodyovski Wins the Derby.

An English bred horse with a Russian name, under lease to an American millionaire, trained by an American trainer, and ridden by an American jockey, won the greatest of racing classics last Wednesday at Epsom. Volodyovski was the horse, W. C. Whitney the lessee, John Huggins the trainer and Lester Reiff the rider. There was as usual a tremendous concourse of people to witness the event, and owing to the fact that many members of the New York Chamber of Commerce now in England as guests of the London Chamber of Commerce, were present, Americans were more prominent than ever before on Derby day.

The starters were Volodyovski (L. Reiff), Floriform, Handicapper (Martin), Revenue, William III., Royal Rogue, Veronez, Sang Bleu, Wargrave, Pietermaritzburg, H. R. H., Veles, Ian, Royal George, Cottager, Olympian (Henry), Orchid, Tantalus (Maher), Lord Bobs, St. MacLeu, Rustic, Derecles, Clacquer, Prince Charles II. (Turner), and Osboch.

The betting was 5 to 2 against Volodyovski, 100 to 7 against William III., and 40 to 1 against Veronez.

There was some delay at the start, but eventually an excellent one was effected and Foxhall Keene's jockey, Henry, on Olympian, got away like a shot from a gun. He set a cracking pace and before Tattenham Corner was reached had spread-eagled his field. As they rounded and came into the straight it was seen that Volodyovski was right there, running with great resolution. A tremendous roar went up when it was seen that he had got on even terms a quarter of a mile from home, coming along at a rare clip, with William III. in hot pursuit. "Velly," as he is called, left his opponents in great style, all but Morney Cannon's mount, hard ridden, which was running as game as a pebble at the favorite's girths. And so the pair passed the post.

Volodyovski's victory was very popular, and his success has taken a lot of money out of the ring. He was cheered again and again on returning to weigh in. Time, 2:40 4-5, is the record for the race.

Although Volodyovski is owned and trained by Americans, he is an English bred colt, being by the King's horse Florizell II. out of La Reine. He was bred by Lady Meux, and leased by her to the late Lord William Beresford. At the death of Lord William his executors held the opinion that the lease of the colt did not lapse, but Lady Meux took a contrary view. Litigation ensued and the colt was returned to his breeder. Subsequently he was leased to Mr. Whitney. But for the lamented death of Queen Victoria this son of Florizell II. would have carried the colors of the King.

Death of Dick Clawson.

Richard Clawson, the well known jockey, died Thursday of last week at the home of his parents in Cass county, Missouri. Clawson, who was twenty years old, had been a hopeless invalid, suffering with consumption for more than a year, his lung trouble having been brought on by his efforts to reduce to lighter riding weight than his growing stature would permit. Friends had sent him to the Adirondacks and to Arizona in hope of staying the disease, but all without avail, and a few weeks ago he went to his old home to die. Clawson first began exercising horses at the Woodland, Yolo county track, and signed to ride for Atkins & Lottridge, with whom he had considerable trouble when he desired to ride for Wm. C. Whitney. He sprang into prominence in 1897, when he rode the Thompson filly L'Alouette to victory in the Futurity Stakes at Sheephead Bay, he then being an eighty-pound boy. He success in that one race brought him into instant favor, and the next season he was engaged by William C. Whitney, for whom he rode successfully, after a lawsuit had given his services to that wealthy turfman. After severing his connection with the Whitney stable, Clawson rode for several other owners, and was successful still, until by his excessive reducing he broke his health, his life being the penalty for his three years of fame and success on the turf. In his brief career Clawson earned a great sum of money in retainers and presents, his income for the second year that he rode in the East having been about $25,000. He married a daughter of James McLaughlin, a well-known New York trainer and ex-jockey. Clawson was a great favorite with California race goers and one of the most popular jockeys that ever rode here. He rode Lucretia Borgia at Oakland the day she made the world's record of 7:11 for four miles.

Grandly Bred Ones for Sale.

All the horses and mares owned by the late J. B. Chase, proprietor of the well known Sonoma Stock Farm, are offered for sale. There are a number of royally bred mares, among them Centella, a winner of twelve races and about ten thousand dollars in money; Marigold, that ran a mile in 1:41, two miles in 3:30 1/2 and four miles in 7:20 1/2, the world's race record for mares. Both these matrons are producers and are daughters of famous old Katie Pease. There is also on this farm the imported stallion Trentola, a grandson of Musket and a sire of winners. He is one of the best bred horses ever brought to America from the colonies. None of the thoroughbreds on this farm are to be reserved, but prices will be put on each and all. This is an excellent opportunity to get something good. See the advertisement in this issue.

The Vancouver Meeting.

The spring meeting of the Vancouver Jockey Club was a decided success. The races attracted the largest crowds that have turned out for years. All who attended saw clean sport and got their money's worth. The events were well handled and pulled off without delay. A great deal of credit is due the officers. The weather was fine but the track was a trifle heavy. There has been a good deal of work done on the track this spring, which accounts for the heaviness. The betting was exceptionally heavy throughout the meeting.

The first race was a three-eighths mile dash, in which Al, Mafada, Daira and Harry N. started. Harry N. won easily; Al second. Time 0:39 1/4.

The three-quarter mile pony race was next and had three starters. Bessie Timbler won handily, with Sleepy Dan second. Time 1:30.

A five-eighths mile dash was next, and five good horses started, Hirtle, Aborigine, Pettigrew, Ricardo and Bernardillo. This was a fine race from start to finish. Aborigine won, Pettigrew second. Time 1:08 1/2.

An expressman's race followed and occasioned much sport.

The fifth race, a mile dash, called forth Willowa, Hirtle, George Palmer, J. O. C. and O'Connor. This was the best race of the day and the betting was good. Willowa won, O'Connor was second. Time 1:45.

The second day's racing was a trifle better, although the crowd was smaller.

The first event on the program was a half mile dash which was won by Al, Mafada second and Pat Tucker third. Time 0:53 1/2. This race was run twice as Al and Mafada fouled in the first race.

A three-quarter mile dash followed and had six starters. The start was good and the finish was better. Pettigrew won, Hirtle was second and George Palmer third. Time 1:24. Bernardillo, Ricardo and Daira also ran.

The third race was one and one-eighth miles and was a good race throughout. Aborigine won, Faversham second and O'Connor third. Time 2:07 1/2. Willowa and Hirtle also ran.

A hurdle race for a mile and a quarter was next, but was a farce. J. O. C. was the winner, while Aborigine and Ricardo were distanced, as they refused to jump the hurdles. No time given. All bets declared off.

A three-quarter mile consolation race followed. O'Connor won, Ricardo second, George Palmer third. Hirtle also ran.

This closed a very successful meeting.

Where are Our Hero Horses?

All wars, down to our with Spain and England's war in South Africa, have produced heroic or hero horses as well as hero soldiers. But the war for free Cuba is ended, and the war in South Africa is nearing a finish, and the only war horse on either continent, or in either war, that has had conspicuous mention is the shaggy-haired and hog maned pony that has carried through so many unequal fights the remarkable Boer soldier, Gen De Wet.

Perhaps some poet or romancer of heroic verse may yet be found to put into rhythm or tropical jingle the cavalry exploit of General Funston in the capture of Aguinaldo, or some sculptor may carve into the eternal marble Funston and his horse, as we now see in our National Capitol Thomas and his horse, and in front of the White House General Jackson and his horse.

All our great soldiers, whether of cavalry, artillery or infantry, were enthusiastic devotees of the horse. Gen. Joe Hooker was the finest rider in the Federal army, and Stonewall Jackson and General Lee were both riders and devotees of the saddle horse, both in peace and war.

Before the war of the American Revolution Gen. George Washington was a reckless follower of the hounds in Virginia, astride his noted war horse Greenway. He rode his English-bred charger in the old French war. In the disastrous battle of July 9, 1755, known as "Braddock's Defeat," Washington, who was on the staff of General Braddock, had four bullet holes shot through his coat, and two horses shot under him. Greenway, then owned by General Braddock, was mounted by Washington after General Braddock received his death wound. But the game horse survived the battle unscathed. Ever afterward Greenway nipped the greenest pastures at Mt. Vernon, and when the War of the Revolution broke out Washington refused to take the old war horse into the conflict.

Washington rode twelve different war horses during the War of the Revolution, and three of his most noted battle chargers have gone on the shining canvas, or into the eternal marble, and into history with their great master. Those are: Nelson, a superb chestnut, 16 hands, with four white legs, presented by Governor Nelson, of Virginia; Fairfax, a blood bay stallion of high finish and metal, that was fatally shot at the battle of Trenton and left on the field. The last and most famous is a milk-white mare, so often shown in engravings. She died from exhaustion in the battle of Monmouth. Nelson was made immortal in pictures, as Washington rode him for the last time in war at the surrender of Lord Cornwallis at Yorktown. This horse outlived his immortal master, and ended a life of indolence at Mt. Vernon at the age of thirty-six.

We have already some vague ideas of the heroes of the war just ending, but who has any idea, however vague, of the hero horses? And without the hero horses, where will be our equestrian statues to commemorate these heroic achievements? Or shall we conceal them in a Trojan horse?—Western Horseman.

SADDLE NOTES.

The first of the get of the young stallion Ben Brush was sold at auction in New York last week. It was a nicely turned bay filly out of Rose by Falsetto, and was purchased by William Lakeland for $1350.

Commando won the Carlton stakes at Gravesend last Saturday, and on a dead track galloped the mile in 1:39 2-5, making a new record for the track. He looks to be the best three-year-old of the year, and mayhap the best in several years, although his stable companion, Conroy, ranks pretty close to him.

"From advices I have received," says Secretary Schuckman of the Overland Association at Denver. "I believe that there will be at least 300 runners on the track during the coming season. There will be three ear leads from San Francisco, three from St. Louis, two from Nebraska, there are sixty-five at the springs which will come to Denver, about fifty head at the track now and in all I expect about 300 runners out for the money. Last year there were only ninety-seven, so you see there will be a great improvement in the number."

The One Thousand Guineas stakes, the first each season of the important races for thoroughbred fillies exclusively in England, was won three weeks ago by Aida, by Galopin. This filly was begotten when her sire was no less than twenty-six years old. The Two Thousand Guineas, to which colts and fillies are eligible, was won by Handicapper, by Matchmaker, grandson of Galepin. Dericles, which ran second, is also by a grandson, and Osbeeh, which was third, is by Oberon, a son of Galepin. Fleur d'Ete, which came second in the fillies' race, is by St. Florian, grandson of Galopin, and Santa Bridga, which finished third, is by St. Simon, son of Galopin.

Banastar has been declared out of all the stakes for the year. Trainer Hill says: "Dr. Sheppard has attended him, and he is doubtful whether he will ever train again. It is thought that he was hit during his last race, the bone below the hock being bruised. The tendon was not cut to any extent. Until he had cooled out we thought that that was his only trouble, but later on he showed a decided lameness in his off fore leg. There is the serious trouble. His injured hind leg could be fixed up easily, but it looks as though he has gone for good in front." According to general theory, Banastar broke down in front in his efforts to favor his hind leg during the race. Dr. Sheppard explained the pain the horse went through by describing the effect of a kick on the shin bone from a man with an iron toe on his shoe. Banastar's retirement is a loss to the turf, as he was one of the few good horses in anything like decent shape. With Ethelbert, Kinley Maek, McMeekin and Banastar on the sick list, there is actually nothing left in the older division. Mr. Clarence Mackay showed a true sporting spirit when he told his trainer to make a thorough explanation of the accident and not allow cause for unjust criticism of any kind from the public. Mr. Mackay runs his horse for sport, pure and simple, and he feared some one might think that Banastar was not injured nearly as badly as he was; hence his declaration from all stakes, even though there is a remote possibility of his being brought round in time for the late season.

The French trotting derby, for a purse of 20,000 francs, will take place at Reuven on June 30th. The race is for three year olds of all sexes bred and owned in France. The government contributes 8000 francs of the purse, the Society for the Improvement of the Half-Blood 5000 francs, and the track association the balance of 7000 francs. The distance is 3200 meters, nearly two miles (less 20 yards). The purse will be divided as follows: 10,800 first, 4200 second, 2500 third, 1500 fourth, and 1000 fifth. A total of 107 are eligible to start. Weight, 143 pounds for colts and 136 for fillies.

At the Traps.

The Olympic Gun Club members will shoot live birds and the San Francisco Gun Club program will embrace blue rock shooting at Ingleside to-morrow. Shooters from both clubs will alternate between the two sections of the shooting grounds and indulge their fancies for each style of trap shooting.

The Empire Gun Club shoot for June is billed for the club grounds at Alameda Point. This is the last shoot for entry in the Yellowstone or Schumacher trophy events, as not more than three back scores can be shot up. The Allen handicap and Sweeney record medal races, postponed from the 26th inst., will also be on the program of events for to-morrow.

M. J. Iverson broke 132 out of 150 blue rocks last Sunday at the Union Gun Club shoot. In 25 bird practice he broke 18 and 22. In the club event he broke 23 out of 25, he also won the first class medal for the month with 24 out of 25, the ability medal for June he won with 23 out of 25 and in the added money event he divided first money on 22 breaks out of a possible 25. Mr. Iverson has been showing a steady improvement in his trap shooting this season.

The first of a series of three twelve-man team matches between the Empire and Union Gun Clubs will take place to-morrow on the Empire Gun Club grounds. The Union team as announced by Captain C. M. Wollam is composed of P. McRae, M. Burnell, M. J. Iverson, F. Walpert, A. M. Shields, F. Feudner, J. B. McCutchan, F. W. King, O. Fischer, A. G. Flickinger, Joe Bickerstaff and F. Knick. The substitutes are P. J. Walsh, J. Pisani, E. S. Michels, J. Gordon, H. Hoyt, C. T. Mitchell, D. C. Ringle, R. Cooper, L. Javette, Jr., G. Sylvester, C. M. Wollam and E. Olsen. The second race will take place at Ingleside, the shooting grounds of the third contest, if necessary, will be decided by the toss of a coin.

The Lincoln Gun Club regular monthly shoot was held on the 2d inst at Alameda Point. In the club race E. L. Forster was high score with 24 breaks, D. Daniels, A. J. Webb and J. L. Bruns each score 23 out of 25 targets. Webb was high gun in the Neustadter trophy race and Daniels made the best run in the continuous break medal race. The scores made during the day were:

In the club shoot at 25 targets, Fred Feudner won first class money, second class money was divided between Mitchell, Burnell, Hoyt, Walpert, Cooper and Herring. Third class was won by Thomas and Francis took the purse for the fourth class. In the medal race following M. J. The California Wing Club shoot last Sunday was not as well attended as usual. Possibly the pleasant June weather made outings in other fields more attractive for some of the members. The birds supplied were a very strong lot. In the club race, Otto Feudner scored the only straight string; he missed two birds out of fifty-five during the day. The shooting of Haight, "Slade," Williamsou and Dr. Barker was excellent. "Slade" caught a number of swift left quartering outgoers that were hard birds to kill. Achillo Roos has a faculty of herding birds into the retrieving pit that is marvelous. After the club race eight bird sweeps prevailed; Williamson, Feudner and Haight made most of the straights. Donohoe, Walsh and Simson also grassed full scores. The scores during the day were as follows:

The third event of the day was the regular club match at twenty-five birds each, and Adams and Stevens each made a score of twenty-two. The last match was at ten birds, F. Ruhstahler, Jr., and A. A San Francisco Trap Shooter in England.

Reports from England show that Clarence Nauman is more than holding his own with some of the English experts. He won two cups on May 6th, shooting from the 30 yard mark. The English load of shot is a little less than our shooters are accustomed to use. In blue rock shooting the handicapping is done with extra birds. Pigeon shooters in England favor hammer guns for the sport. On May 18th, Nauman shot pigeons at the Gun Club grounds, Notting Hill. The sport is an expensive one in England as compared with our live bird shooting here. The events on the date above mentioned were a miss and out shoot, $15 entrance; the winner's purse amounted to $125 besides the pool; another miss and out, $15 entrance, with a $50 purse to the winner and also the pool amount. A run of ten straight birds nets the shooter a purse from $150 to $300. Pigeons cost 55 cents apiece, and are said to be the fastest birds procurable. Nauman claims they are the fastest and strongest he ever shot at. The amounts (large when compared with the pool shoots here) are not comparatively so great when, if a shooter does not figure in the events, it will cost him from $75 to $125 a day. Much betting is indulged in on the gun and also on the result of a shot. The Gun Club holds a shoot on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays of each week and is a very exclusive club. It is somewhat difficult to shoot with the club, a necessary condition being membership: this costs the new member $125. Mr. Nauman has been elected a member of the club. Among the English trap shooters he is looked upon as a very clever shot. On May 13th he killed 26 birds straight. He is shooting at present from a greater distance than any other trap shooter there, the 35 yard mark. They have a practice of placing a shooter back a yard or half yard every time he makes a good score in certain events. On May 20th Nauman won another cup, shooting from the 34 yard mark, this cup must be won three times by a shooter to become his personal property, he will have to shoot, finally, from the 36 yard mark to win. On May 21st he killed 8 birds and divided a pool of $42 with Thomas Freahe, a crack English trap shot, he next divided with Mr. Roberts, another celebrated shot, on 5 birds straight. The entrance money in the events, mostly miss and out, range from $5 to $25. Nauman also beat one of the leading English blue rock shooters, using one barrel to the other's two, winning out by five birds in a 100 bird race. This race took place at the Middlesex Gun Club grounds, there were thirteen entries in the race, Nauman scored 88 and Capt. Johnson 85 targets. The live bird boundary is 30 yards at the Gun Club. The betting has been 6 to 1 on Nauman, greater odds than is usual on the individual gun.

In the 100 clay bird race above referred to Clarence Nauman had a special match with J. H. Butt, of the Middlesex Gun Club, for £20 on the same conditions as the Anglo-American match. Nauman used one barrel and his adversary both barrels. This race was run concurrently with the weekly 100 bird competition. Mr. Butt scored 78 breaks.

In describing the shooting at the Middlesex Gun Club grounds on May 11th, The Shooting Times states: "The centre-trap sweepstakes of 18 entries was divided by Messrs. Nauman and Butt. Eleven shooters now gave in their names for the 100 bird sweepstakes. Capt. Johnson and Mr. Paul shooting off their match at the same time and considerable interest was taken in the crack American's (Mr. Nauman) shooting, and his performance—93 out of 100—was certainly a very fine one, but it must not be lost sight of that he made considerable use of his left barrel, which in the match on June 11th will not be allowed. Mr. Butt won the Irvine Scratch cup, with ten straight; Nauman scored 9 in this and three other events, Capt. Johnson, Mr. Borer and Mr. Gale being the winners respectively.

Pigeon Shooting at Monte Carlo.

A letter from an English sportsman at Monte Carlo to a Calcutta paper gives some interesting chat concerning the live bird shooting at the famous resort on the Mediterranean and is as follows:

There are three reasons for starting this paper "buck." First, because I have nothing in the world to do, that's about the only disadvantage of this rest for the weary. Unless one can fancy oneself weary enough to stay in bed till near noon, the time is apt to hang heavy on one's hands. Second, I am vain enough to fancy some chums in India may find some entertainment from a perusal of my yarn regarding the slaughter of doves carried on here at this season. Third, I am sanguine enough to hope that the editor of The Asian may be good natured enough to send me a little check which will enable me to have a bottle of wine now and then on my return voyage to Bombay. The return voyage is provided for, as I see my ticket is not "transferable," and consequently, I presume, not a negotiable draft. My holiday in England is provided for by funds, which are in the hands of one who I know quite well will not remit them to Monte Carlo, be my request to do so ever so urgent. "For the rest," as they say in this country, I have brought all available funds with me, and, as long as they and my Indian grown liver hold out, I intend to enjoy myself. These are the circumstances under which I recommend a visit to Monte Carlo. Anxiety as regards finance takes away all the pleasure, but if proper arrangements are made for a retreat if necessary, and only the money which one is prepared to spend on the visit is taken with one, there is nowhere in the world where such a maximum of comfort can be obtained. Now, as regards pigeon shooting. I think I may say I am a fair shot; I have always been considered so in India at any rate, and traps have been opened to my call in places other than India. But they have contained birds, and reasonable distances have been allowed within which one has a chance of getting on terms with those birds. At Monte Carlo, goodness knows what the things are they put in the traps! I saw a man carrying what I certainly took to be a pigeon to the trap, before I took up my stand to fire at my first Monte Carlo rock, but that's about all I know about it. I gave the order to pull, I heard a sound of rattling machinery behind me, was conscious that one of the traps had flattened itself out and that something had come out of it. I fired off both barrels as quickly as I could, not wishing to be thought a perfect novice, but I might just as well have fired at the rock of Gibraltar for all the damage I was likely to do, and even if I had killed this phantom by some lucky chance with my first shot, it would have fallen far beyond the limits. Yet one sees men scoring bird after bird, and I could not help wondering how they would get on with snipe in India. Fortune favored me the second day I tried and I killed the first two, I don't quite know how, for probably the poor pigeon was not more surprised than I was, the third also fell to my left barrel, but a good twenty yards beyond the railing. After this performance I felt so puffed up with pride that I determined to enter my name for the big shoot. The eight pounds sterling which I had to fork out for this bit of conceit did not much matter, as it had been won at the tables and might just as well go back to the administration via the Grand Prix entrance money, as over the green cloth, but my next act of folly I did rather regret. A polite "bookie" asked if I would like to back myself; for curiosity I asked the price. A hundred to one made me think a bit, but I declined with thanks. An insinuating whisper followed me, two hundred to one! This was more than I could stand. For the credit of India something had to be done and why not do it well. Four thousand to twenty in sovereigns had the desired effect. Master Bookie looked serious and eventually climbed down a bit and suggested £2000 to £10, much to my delight, as my bluff had saved me the price of about six dinners, vins compris.

The great day came, the 25th of January, but alas! before it came the sad news of the death of our good Queen. All Monday and Tuesday (21st and 22d January) there was a general feeling of tension which seemed to spread itself throughout all the people present of whatever nationality, and the nationalities at Monte Carlo are certainly numerous; every one read with anxiety each telegram as it was posted up in the Casino Vestibule. Even the tables were deserted to some extent and people wandered in and out watching for news as it arrived. At 10:10 P. M. on Tuesday the final sad message was posted up, which put an end to the hopes which a few of the most sanguine had cherished that this sad calamity might still be averted. All the Englishmen present at once left the Casino, and the sad news soon spread itself throughout Monte Carlo. The theatre was closed on Wednesday and there was no band, all and every nationality seemed to feel the great blow which had fallen, and to be anxious to contribute in some way to the memory of the great life which had passed away.

All Englishmen who were here to compete for the great prize on Friday, at once withdrew their names, and those from the Colonies, as well as from America, joined with them in this token of respect for our great Queen. Not a gun, owned by an English speaking sportsman, was used that day, and the bookmakers, not to be outdone in their loyalty, agreed to cancel all bets.

The weather on the 25th was splendid, sunshine and a warm spring day, but no wind, which was a pity, as the birds trapped were of the very best, and had there been a little wind to help them they would have tested the shooting powers of the competitors to the utmost. At the end of the ninth round M. Moncorge's name was the only one on the board without a miss and things looked pleasant for him, only three more to score and he must win. But the tenth round created a change. M. Moncorge's bird did not look a hard one but he let it off. Nerves perhaps, for they do trouble even the coolest of shots at a time like that. At the start of the eleventh round there was only six who stood with one miss only to their debit, and bar breakdowns it looked as if the game was in their hands. This view was correct, and the following eventually tied for the big shoot of the year: M. Guyot, M. Moncorge, Signor Catenacci and the Count de Robiano. There was a proposal to divide, but M. Moncorge declined and preferred to shoot it out, which was all the more sporting of him as he was penalized a yard as a previous winner. In the fourteenth round the Count de Robiano missed in a most unaccountable manner as he had been showing great form, and this was quite an easy bird compared with what had fallen to his lot previously. In the next round Signor Catenacci and M. Moncorge both came to grief, but the birds they let away were such that would have tested most men's shooting. This left M. Guyot, the winner, with a score of fifteen kills out of sixteen birds fired at. The win meant a beautiful object d'art and about 18,000 francs. M. Guyot is almost a novice at pigeon shooting, and has never shot at Monte Carlo before this year. He must have good nerves besides a good eye, and we shall probably hear more of him.

Second and third money amounting to 14,000 francs, was divided by M. Moncorge and Signor Catenacci.

This is only the fourth time that a French name has been recorded on the tablet during the twenty-nine years this big prize has been shot for.

The fourth day of the shooting was devoted to the big handicap. Whether the "weights" were not satisfactory, or whether the stake was not a big enough one, I don't know; but many of those who are here for the shooting did not take part in the sport on the 28th of January. The entry money was only £2 but I had come to the conclusion that what sovereigns I had would find a better use at the tables, and having obtained my ticket for the Stand by entering for the Grand Prix, I abstained from making further exhibition of myself by missing (to me) invisible pigeons. The weather was just perfect and the birds had the benefit of a little wind, which seemed to make them fly faster than ever, if possible. There were a fair number of Englishmen shooting, amongst whom was the famous shot, Mr. Roberts, who shot at 28 metres, a cruel distance when there is only about 21 yards in which to account for one's bird, and he failed in the seventh round. The bird he missed seemed to me to have been specially trained to cause misses, for it knew exactly the right moment to dodge, and though I thought Mr. Roberts hit it, it got away to sea. Mr. Robinson, the champion from America, did not fail till the ninth round, though some of the birds which fell to his lot were regular little marvels. The terms were, one miss out, but it was not till the eleventh round that the field began to thin out, and there were then only three left who had killed all. Curiously enough all these three were Belgians, namely: M. Paul Lunden, M. Van Den Bosch and Baron Montpelier. It was late ere this result was arrived at and as the light was beginning to fail these three sportsmen decided to divide the money, which amounted to 5000 francs. The fifth day, January 30th, brought out a good field, no less than sixty-eight answering to their names. The terms were, one bird at 27 metres; which gives the good shots a chance, and did not seem to deter the novices (except me!) from entering. Half of the number shooting were forced to retire before the fourth round, which seemed a good thing, for the bookies, as it seems to me that the custom is when a shooter has lost the excitement of taking part in the business himself he transfers his excitement to individual shots by means of betting, and when a well known man is at the mark the wagers run to very big figures, odds of as much as five to one being laid on the shot. At the end of the seventh round there were only five left in, all of whom except one were English. Mr. Walters, who was certainly shooting to perfection and killed some birds which to a novice looked simply impossible, headed the list at the end of the ninth round, having secured all his birds. Mr. Brascom and Mr. Barker came next, they having failed to stop their eighth bird, but by previous arrangement, the pool, amounting to 4000 francs, was divided by these three.

The weather this year has been perfect, an occasional mistral which drives the visitors into the gambling rooms, but as a rule it has been too fine to go indoors and the tables are only crowded in the evening. Every day brings fresh arrivals and most of the hotels are full.

The administration, who are never backward in providing amusement for their guests, are going to give another big prize to be shot for later on, so as to give the English, American and colonial shooters, who abstained from shooting for the Grand Prix, a chance. I will send an account of it, if circumstances do not necessitate my departure before them! Let us hope fortune may smile her best.

Mausie Wauch was not only a garrulous Scotch cobbler but tradition credits him with being an expert angler. Once on a stream, upon being importuned by an ambitious novice, who wished to learn the art of casting the fly, old Mansie's whimsical advice was to—"Mak' your cast and drap your fly on yonder bank, noo pu' it aff and let it drap on the water o' its ain accord. Mak' anither cast an let it fa' down on the watter as if it waur cemin' frae the bank—practice that weel mon, an you'l be vera expert in ne time at all."

Trouting.

The speckled trout,
The mottled sprite of mountain brooks,
That hides 'neath rocks and covered nooks,
So shy of human kind and hooks,
Darts in and out,
And snaps anou the heedless fly,
The white-winged moth that flutters by,
And luckless hopper floating nigh.

My youthful joy,
To see the silvery beauty glide
In babbling brook and shyly hide,
Whene'er I came the brook beside;
Then coax him coy,
With worm hid hook or other bait,
Impatient that he made me wait,
But in the end to land him straight.

The boy's delight
Is now the joy of manhood's prime,
When I would flee the tug and grime
Of office work and checked-off time;
In rubbers tight,
With rod and reel, with laugh and shout,
To mountain river hurry out,
And cool my blood by landing trout.

Doings in Dogdom.

Phil C. Meyer is well pleased with a nicely marked, strong and promising litter of puppies out of Alta Rachel.

A high bred and handsomely marked Pointer puppy can be obtained at a reasonable price, by addressing the Kennel Editor.

Alec Truman has sent two Derby candidates to W. B. Coutts, who will put them in trim for the field trials next January. The dogs are a Pointer bitch, Patti of Kent (Bang of Croxteth-Kent's Amy), winner of first in puppies last month, and an orange and white English Setter dog Orion (Cavalier-Fanny Gladstone T.).

Phil Fay, the President of the Pacific Bull Terrier Club, a prominent and well esteemed gentleman fancier of this city, has recently felt the rod of infliction in the passing away of his father, the late Phil S. Fay, Sr., a gentleman widely known to the business community of the Coast for many years past. Mr. Fay, Jr., has the sympathy of his many sportsmen confreres as well as those of a large circle of other friends.

Dog owners seem to be singularly unfortunate these days in losing valuable dogs. P. D. Linville recently lost his English Setter bitch Maggie F., and despite every effort at recovering her, not a clue has turned up as to the location of the bitch. Mr. G. J. M. E. D'Aquin last week lost his Fox Terrier Aldon Artist. The dog when last seen was chasing a Divisadero street car, possibly believing he was following his master. This dog has also disappeared completely, nor can any surmise be made as to his whereabouts. Fred H. Johnson's Jubo (or Purcell J., his registered name) escaped from Mr. Johnson's residence on Jackson street Monday, nothing has been heard of the dog since. Rewards for the return of any of the above dogs will be paid. There is no doubt but what a class of miscreants exist in this city; each of whom will take charge of or steal any good dog, whenever or wherever opportunity offers. We know of quite a number of well bred, and good ones of different breeds that have disappeared from owners in this city within the year nor have the dogs ever been heard of again.

A good story is told concerning a specialty club here and the "buncom" enterprise shown by a local fancier. Dr. Lougest, a Boston breeder who has the reputation of having bred some of the best Mastiffs in the world, had heard repeatedly of the local specialty club and read many glowing accounts of the important business transacted at club meetings and also perused, possibly with pleasure, the fulsome and pretentious list, of club prizes repeatedly published, prior to a bench show, by the "Johnny on the spot" secretary. The impression created was so strong in favor of the "one man" club that Dr. Lougest was desirous of doing something that would materially advance the interests of the Mastiff fancy on the Coast. He thereupon notified the "club" that he had a most promising young dog that he would send out here at a reasonable price, in fact, would sacrifice the major portion of the money consideration in a good cause. After voluminous correspondence, the Doctor agreed to let the dog come out here for $100. Another lot of correspondence and delay, from the Coast end of the deal ensued, and finally, when a bed rock price was asked for, the response was that the dog would be sent for $25. The offer was accepted by letter on the condition that the owner would send the dog out here, all the way from Boston, on approval. The dog here referred to was a winner at the bench show of the New England Kennel Club this spring and is a better Mastiff than has ever been brought to the Coast. The enterprise and true fancier's spirit shown by Dr. Lougest hardly merited the shabby treatment he received. With such material composing, in part, the personnel of the would be leaders of the fancy here it is no wonder that our bench shows do not pay (the recent show fell behind over $900.00) and that the Eastern fancy look upon us as of the "wild and woolly west."

Dog fanciers generally do not agree with the able physician who is quoted as saying that the presence of foreign substances, like pebbles, glass and feathers in a dog's stomach makes it certain that the animal was affected with rabies. Mr. Thomas J. Sheubrooks, who has made an international reputation as a breeder of St. Bernards, was once asked for his opinion on this subject, and said:

"The presence of the foreign matter is by no means an indication of rabies. On the contrary, it shows that the dog was suffering from some stomach trouble, which may have given it convulsions and caused it to act in a manner which gave rise to the belief that it was rabid. When a dog is suffering from one or a complication of the disorders of the stomach and intestines, it will swallow bits of most anything that comes to hand, hoping to find a counter-irritant which will bring relief. It is really surprising to know what they will swallow under such circumstances and live. I have known several cases where large pieces of glass were swallowed without doing any damage."

Mr. Luke W. White, another Baltimore fancier who was, as he says, "born in the kennels," his father having been a famous kennel keeper in Ireland and for the last thirty-three years he has been an acknowledged authority on matters canine, and has had much to do with rabies, not only from the standpoint of a dog expert, but as a graduate of medicine, says in regard to this subject:

"My opinion is that the mere fact of finding foreign substances in the stomach is almost a positive proof that the dog did not have rabies. If it indicates any brain trouble it indicates cerebro-spinal meningitis, which in its outward form is much like violent rabies, and is apt to make the dog behave more in accordance with popular conception of rabies than the rabies themselves. The fact that a dog swallows grass and occasionally a small stone does not indicate a radically disordered system. The acids in the stomach of dogs are very strong and very plentiful. Sometimes the lining of the stomach becomes so charged with these acids in excess of that required to digest the food upon which it has been living that the dog seeks an irritant which acts upon the walls of the stomach and causes an artificial flow of the acid. Grass is the counter-irritant provided by nature and the one the dog prefers. It does not select smooth grass, but that which has prickly edges and tickles the little vessels containing the acids. If grass is not at hand it will take hair, which never kills. Lacking grass, or hair not being effective, it takes other substances, of which wood is the most dangerous."

The After Effects of Distemper.

Although during the past few years a great deal of trouble has been taken by scientists to investigate the cause of distemper, we still seem to be a long way from a satisfactory solution of all the difficulties connected with that complaint. Distemper in itself is not so serious a matter as are the troubles which follow in its wake. The most deadly of these is the complaint known as Chorea or Paralysis sometimes called "Twitche," which is an involuntary jerking of the nerves, affecting sometimes the head, sometimes the legs, sometimes the whole body. It usually comes about in this way. A dog has distemper and, as the owner believes, has it very mildly; he merely shows signs of a little cold, or perhaps he is merely "off color," as the expression is, loses his appetite, and seems not to be himself for a few days, no other symptoms in particular making their appearance. After a few days he is better, and the owner thinks he has had distemper and is getting over it, and nothing more is thought of the matter until a little later on—probably after the lapse of a week or two he has a fit, and on recovering from the fit it is found that he is twitching all over. This is not always what happens. In many cases the first symptom of anything being wrong takes the form of this involuntary twitching of the muscles; the disease is very insidious and comes on in various ways, but that it seems to be almost entirely connected with distemper, and the moral to be learned from this, therefore, is that any case of distemper however mild should be treated as seriously as if it were a bad attack, because this chorea or paralysis ought almost to be described as a sort of suppressed distemper which if the case is thoroughly treated is brought out of the system instead of being allowed to lie dormant there until it affects the brain and causes the distressing symptoms of twitching, which in many cases last till the end of the dog's life. The treatment of the disease consists in giving powerful nerve tonics, and there is nothing much better, according to some English fanciers, than powerful doses of Easton's Syrup (which is a mixture of iron, quinine and strychnine). The dose of this ranges from ten drops for a small pet dog to a drachm and a half or two drachms for a St. Bernard. The remedy will have to be continued for several weeks—in many cases several months' treatment is necessary before any impression is made on the dog. He must be carefully dieted, fed on most easily digested foods (avoiding much meat) and should have all the outdoor exercise he can possibly endure. Many of our local breeders and owners have found Dr. Glover's remedies to be rapid and efficient in both the incipient and advanced stages of the disease.

PASSING OF THE NEWFOUNDLAND.

This Breed of Dog is Nearly Extinct in America.

Twenty-five years ago the two breeds of dogs most commonly seen in this country were the Dalmatian or spotted coach dog and the Newfoundland, writes Hu-ul in a Boston exchange. To-day both varieties are rare, although the Dalmatian is rapidly coming into favor again. Not so the Newfoundland, a breed which threatens to become extinct in this country although still popular in England.

As an example of the rarity of the Newfoundland dog in this country may be cited the fact that out of 16,278 dogs registered in the American Kennel Club stud book only 31 are Newfoundlands, and of these three are registered as black and white. At the bench show of the Westminster Kennel Club, held in New York last year, 2111 dogs were shown, of which only three were Newfoundlands, while this year, although 1534 dogs were exhibited at the New York show, only two Newfoundlands were among them.

Since 1890 classes for Newfoundlands have been discontinued by the New England Kennel Club at its annual dog show in this city. In 1885, 19 Newfoundlands were entered for the Boston show; in 1886, 9 were shown; in 1897, 12; in 1888, 13; in 1889, 3, and in 1890, 1; when the class was discontinued.

Of course, when Dame Fashion frowns upon a breed of dog, the demand for it falls off, and breeders who are in the business for profit, are obliged to turn to some more popular type. Ten years ago there were several extensive breeders of Newfoundlands in this country. To-day the writer does not know of one. The St. Bernard supplanted the Newfoundland in the affections of the dog-loving public, and breeders turned their attention from the "sailor" to the "saint."

Mr. J. A. Nickerson of Boston, formerly a breeder of Newfoundlands, says that the pure Newfoundland is now rarely met with, though every large black dog is commonly called by that name, and he goes so far as to state that it is doubtful whether a typical specimen could be found on the island of Newfoundland to-day.

It is doubtful if the Newfoundland ever becomes popular as a city dog on account of its proclivity for water, its intense curiosity and its impatience of confinement, but in the suburbs and country, and especially at the seashore, it seems as though the dog ought to meet with greater favor.

The characteristics of the typical Newfoundland are intelligence, kindly disposition, power and buoyancy in the water; love of children and remarkable discretionary powers. This dog is also very sensitive, and should be managed carefully while young.

As a water dog the Newfoundland can hardly be excelled, his powerful formation and partially webbed feet making him an especially strong swimmer. Well authenticated instances of life-saving by this dog are numerous, and at a seashore bathing place a well trained Newfoundland, if kept under proper control, should be extremely valuable. It is necessary that the dog be kept under control, otherwise his zeal for life saving is apt to outweigh his discretionary powers and the dog become a nuisance by trying to pull bathers out of the waters who do not want to be "saved."

The writer has a Newfoundland who frequently accompanies him in the water, swimming around among the other bathers apparently unconcerned; but let any one cry out or utter what to his intelligence seems an exclamation of fear, and immediately the dog is off to the rescue, no matter if the person be an entire stranger.

On account of the water and retrieving propensities of the Newfoundland, this dog has been used in England to strengthen those qualities in the retriever. The blood of the Newfoundland has also been largely used in this country in producing the celebrated Chesapeake Bay dog, so popular with duck shooters.

Water trials for this dog have been held in England, the competitive tests being as follows:

1. Courage displayed in jumping into water from a height to recover an object.
2. Quickness displayed in bringing the object ashore.
3. Intelligence and speed in bringing a boat to shore. The boat must, of course, be adrift and the painter have a piece of white wood attached to keep it afloat, mark its position and facilitate the dog's work.
4. To carry a rope from shore to a boat with a stranger, not master, in it.
5. Swimming races to show speed and power against stream or tide.
6. Diving. A common flag basket with stone in it to sink it answers well, as it is white enough to be seen and soft enough for the dog's mouth.

The Newfoundland not only excels as a water dog, but is very valuable as a watch dog. In fact it is doubtful if in this respect he is equalled by any other variety with the possible exception of the Mastiff. Alert, quick of sight and hearing and with a keen sense of smell there is no better protection from burglars than a full grown Newfoundland on guard. His loyalty and courage are proverbial, and in defense of his master or his master's property he would readily risk his own life.

The early history of the Newfoundland is veiled in obscurity, and there is considerable difference of opinion as to what was originally recognized as the true type. Many of the early Newfoundlands differed widely in color and in other respects from those now held to be of the true type.

In early times there were many large dogs in Newfoundland that were called Newfoundlands, but the inhabitants of the island looked only on such that were black or rusty black with thick, shaggy coats as being of the true type,

Some early writers declare the true breed to be only of intense black with a small streak of white on the breast. This white patch on the breast, it might be said in passing, is found in 99 out of 100 specimens of the pure blooded Newfoundland dog, and one very rarely sees a Newfoundland without it.

Other very early writers say that the predominating color is white with black head or face mark, a black saddle mark and other black markings. Still other authorities hold that the dog should be of a rusty dun shade. Some say that it should be curly; others, shaggy; others, wavy.

Sir Edwin Landseer in his painting entitled "A Distinguished Member of the Humane Society," represented a black and white dog of the Newfoundland type, which made that variety very popular for a time in England, but as only jet black was recognized as the pure type, separate classes were made for the black and white dog at the bench shows under the title of "Landseer Newfoundland." They were never imported to this country.

The only recognized color for the true Newfoundland in America is jet black, with the exception of the white patch on the breast previously referred to, which does not disqualify.

When King Edward VII, then Prince of Wales, visited Newfoundland, in 1860, before his tour through Canada and the United States, he was so much charmed with the dogs for which the island is noted that he took away with him a magnificent specimen called Hero.

The dog was a source of considerable anxiety to the prince and those whose duty it was to take care of him. So long as the prince remained upon the troopship which brought him over from England constant watchfulness had to be exercised to prevent Hero from going overboard for a swim. Even when Hero was allowed to take exercise between decks, an open port-hole giving him a glimpse of the water was quite sufficient to make him jump through it into his beloved element. At last it was found that Hero must be permanently tied up, or a boat, fully manned, must always be kept in readiness to go after him when he chose to take a dip. The former plan was adopted.

Following are the recognized points for judging:

1. Symmetry and general appearance. The dog should impress the eye with strength and great activity. He should move freely on his legs, with the body swinging loosely between them. A slight roll in gait should not be objectionable, but, at the same time, a weak or hollow back, slackness of the loins or cow hocks are decided faults.

2. Head should be broad and massive, flat on the skull, the occipital bone well developed. There should be no decided stop, and the muzzle should be short, clean cut and rather square in shape and covered with short, fine hairs. Eyes should be small, of a dark brown color, rather deeply set, but not showing any haw. They should be rather wide apart. Ears should be small, set well back, square with the skull, lie close to the head, and covered with short hair and no fringe.

3. Body should be well ribbed up with a broad back, neck strong and well set on the shoulders and back. Loins strong and muscular. Chest should be deep and fairly broad and well covered with hair, but not to such an extent as to form a frill. Bone should be massive throughout, but not to give a heavy, inactive appearance.

4. Coat should be flat and dense, of coarsest texture and only nature, and be capable of resisting the water. If brushed the wrong way, it should fall back into its place naturally. Color, jet black, a splash of white on breast not objectionable.

5. Fore legs should be perfectly straight, well covered with muscle, elbows in, but well let down and feathered all down. Hind-quarters and legs should be very strong. The legs should have great freedom of action and a little feather. Slackness of loins and cow hocks are a great defect. Dew claws are objectionable. Feet should be large and well shaped. Splayed or out-turned feet are objectionable.

6. Tail should be of moderate length, reaching down a little below the hocks. It should be of fair thickness and well covered with long hair, but not to form a flag. When the dog is standing still and not excited it should hang downward with a slight curve at the end, but when the dog is in motion it should be carried a trifle up, and when he is excited straight out, with a slight curve at back. Tails with a kink in them or curved over the back are very objectionable.

7. Size and weight are very desirable as long as symmetry is maintained. A fair average height at the shoulder is 27 inches for a dog and 25 inches for a bitch. A fair average weight for a dog is 100 pounds and 85 pounds for a bitch.

A St. Bernard bitch 34½ inches high at the shoulder is a canine giant an Eastern exchange gives us the credit of having on the Coast. The bitch, Beauty of the Joaquin, is a large one, but not so high as reported. We remember, Beauty, when she was recently brought to this office, stood alongside an office table, her shoulders were not on a level with the top of it, which is just 32 inches from the floor. We much doubt that there is a dog in the United States who stands as high as the figures first given.

We note a recent whelping of some red Cockers to Pine Hill Cocker Kennels' Dusky Bullo. Uncas, the sire, was the winner of first in puppies at the recent bench show; he is an Eastern dog and a promising one.

THE FARM.

An Error in Feeding.

The importance of the right kind of food for the dairy cow is not as fully appreciated as it should be, even in our so-called leading dairy states. Prof. T. L. Haecker of the Minnesota Agricultural College brought out this point very clearly in a recent address before the Agricultural Society of that State. He said:

The error that our farmers are making is not so much in under feeding as it is in not providing their cows with the right kind of feed. This fact was very clearly demonstrated in a letter from a dairy farmer stating that he was feeding good millet hay, all they would eat, a bundle of unhusked corn, averaging about ten ears to the bundle, and five pounds of roots. In examining the chemical composition of the food stuffs and the quantity given, we find that the cows were receiving all they could eat.

A cow fed with such a ration is to all external appearance well fed. But when we examine the amount of protein provided by this ration, we find that for a milch cow she is only half fed. Cows require of the group of nutrients known as proteins from two to two and a half pounds a day, according to the amount of work they are doing. This ration furnished only .98 of a pound, being only a trifle over what is needed daily for bodily maintenance. An animal weighing 1000 pounds, kept quiet and comfortably housed, needs .65 of a pound of protein per day for rebuilding the body tissues that break down daily, so there was left available for milk or meat only .33 of a pound of protein, or about enough to make a pound of gain, or to produce the amount of milk required for half a pound of butter daily. This is not an exceptional case, but is a fair illustration of the almost universal practice among farmers. That such is the case is confirmed by the statistics, which show that the average cow yields only 165 pounds of butter per year. Allowing half a pound a day during 300 days, which is the time ordinary cows are expected to give milk, we have 150 pounds per cow. The 15 pounds additional for which statistics give her credit is made up during the short period in the spring when she is in good pasture.

A new record price for Hereford cows was set last week at Chicago when the show cow Dolly 2d sold for $5000. Mr. John Hooker was the seller and Mr. N. T. Bowen, Delphi, Ind., was the purchaser. Dolly 2d had a beautiful heifer calf at foot which was included in the purchase, incidentally indicating that show-yard condition is not necessarily a barrier to satisfactory maternal functions. This famous cow was looking very fresh and the bidding was keen. Other strong prices were made at this sale, but the sensation in the present upward movement in "white-face" values was the record-breaking price of $5000 for the cow and her calf. At the January sale at Kansas City the mark for Hereford females was set at $3700 by Carnation, but the contest on this occasion between old time breeders and the new comer who outlasted them pushed the mark much higher up. The chief significance of this high price is the determination evidenced on the part of breeders to seek the best at whatever cost in order that this may forward the work of improvement. This is a case where a long price is based on show-yard record, backed up by approved blood lines and demonstrated breeding ability of a high order.—Breeders Gazette.

The New Zealand method of branding cattle without the use of a hot iron has recently been made public in this country. Satisfactory tests have been made of a branding composition which is applied with the ordinary iron and leaves its mark sufficiently for all purposes of identification.

tification and durability. The composition consists of equal parts of barium sulphide and coal tar, preferably thinned by a mixture of potash and water in equal parts by measure and spirits of turpentine, each equal in measure to the original composition. Sulphides of the alkalis or alkaline earths are often substituted for the barium sulphide. The liquid resulting from this mixture is applied to the hair or wool of the animal with a cold branding iron and destroys the hair and brands the hide in a substantially permanent and conspicuous manner, with out injury to the hide. This testimony is unqualified and the idea is certainly worthy of careful test on our ranges. Leather men will hail the day when the disfiguring brands will no longer cause hides to cut to waste and it will be money saved on all hands if this New Zealand fashion of branding can be successfully introduced on our western ranges.

The Dairy Commissioner of Iowa in his last annual report says that the average wages paid butter makers at the creameries, $53.80 per month, is none too high for anyone who is worthy of the name, and greatly too much for one who does not know how to make good butter. The abilities of a man cannot always be judged by the wages he wants, but the chances are that there will be better results with a man who thinks he is worth $60 a month than with one who thinks he is worth only $35. He instances one creamery which had a butter maker to whom they paid $75 a month. They had under his management always received the money for their butter almost as soon as shipped, and the farmers got their money on the first of the month, basing prices on market quotations at that time. They let that man leave and hired a cheaper man from motives of economy, and after a while wrote to his office for advice, as they found themselves $1400 in debt. The advice given was to hire a competent buttermaker and pay him enough so that they could keep him. A poor buttermaker is like a poor cook at a hotel, it drives away custom, and wastes good material, thus causing double loss.

An ingenious dairyman is now promising to give his customers noiseless milk. It is only another term for a new method by which the delivery of lacteal fluid at one's back door can be done without rousing the neighborhood by the clanging of milk cans, rattling of wagon wheels, ringing of bells, slamming of gates and the pounding of heavily shod feet on the back stair. The demons of the dark are to have their vehicles rubber-tired, their boots shod with rubber and have rubber mats for measuring out, with rubber bumpers on the cans. It seems a dairyman was kindly taken sick and came to the city for treatment. While lying at the hospital he was greatly annoyed by being awakened at an unearthly hour each morning by the man delivering milk. As soon as he recovered he had all his milkmen shod with rubber shoes and then began to exploit his scheme as described. The result has been immense. His business has quadrupled and his milk service has gained great popularity.

Mr. John H. Garber, who is collecting statistics for the Department of Agriculture touching the manufacture and consumption of oleomargarine, recently stated while in Kansas City that the use of this substance is increasing all over the country. He is quoted thus: "In Chicago, where half the butterine made in the country is produced, its use is increasing. I think the increase all over the country is not confined to the working class alone but to the people of better circumstances also. Illinois had laws prohibiting the coloring of butterine but they have been declared unconstitutional by the county court of Cook county and because of the system of counts there, this decision is final and...

not be appealed to the Supreme Court of the State. The oleomargarine business is attractive on account of the large amount of business that may be done on a small capital."

It often occurs to dairymen whether or not it is profitable to feed and turn off veal calves. In a careful test covering a feeding period a little over six weeks in length the average veal calves paid 95.7 cents a hundred for milk testing approximately 4.05 per cent or 2.09 cents for butter fat thus consumed. The average yearly price paid for butter on the Elgin board of trade in 1898 was 18.8 cents. If from this is deducted the cost of making the butter the net price will be a little more than 15 cents or about six cents less a pound than could be obtained for it if fed to veals and sold at 4½ cents a pound at six weeks of age.

Division of Immigration.

According to cable and forecasts by the steamship companies, forty thousand Italian immigrants will have arrived in the United States by the end of May. The Italian immigration so far this season is unprecedented. Charles G. Eichler, chief of the bureau of statistics on Ellis Island, estimates that fully fifty per cent. of the Italian peasantry coming to this port is from the southern portion of the peninsula and from Sicily and Sardinia. Of the immigrants forty-eight per cent. remain in New York city for periods varying from three days to permanent residence; twelve per cent. go to Pennsylvania, eight per cent. to Massachusetts, five per cent. to Illinois and five per cent. to Connecticut. The remainder is divided among the other States. Of the immigrants from Northern Italy eighteen per cent. are bound for the vineyards of California and the mines of the Pacific slope. These immigrants are of a more prosperous class than formerly. Of the total of about fifty thousand immigrants who will have arrived at this port in the six weeks ending May 11th, nearly one-half will be Italians. The males are coming in a preponderance over the females of about two to one. The grand total of immigration last year was 448,572.

Alfalfa for Sheep.

It has been demonstrated that a good growth of alfalfa will keep from eight to ten ewes and their lambs per acre, says the Nebraska Farmer. It is easy to see that there is scarcely any other crop that will give such returns as this in pasturing sheep. This is certainly a better return than could be realized from an acre of alfalfa made into hay. The best results will be realized by feeding a little grain with the alfalfa. Bran is an excellent grain to feed with alfalfa pasture. Shropshire-Merino cross-bred lambs have been made to weigh 90 pounds at eight months under this method of feeding.

Dry Grain or Wet Food in Swine Feeding.

That the addition of milk to meal in the feeding of pigs is of high value has long been established, but in the absence of milk it is questionable whether it is worth the while of the feeder either to pay the cost of feeding grain which has been ground or of mixing it into a paste, writes Agricola in the Michigan Farmer. In some cases where grain is not ground the feeder soaks it in water; in others it is given whole, and water is provided in a separate vessel. Here is a case in which pigs were fed both upon dry and wet grain, in this case maize. A group of four pigs were fed upon white maize, water being supplied separately; the second group of four received maize which had been mixed with its own weight of water; a third four received maize which had been soaked in twice its weight of water; while a fourth group of four received a similar quantity of grain with thrice its weight of water. It should be added that all the groups had water at their command in addition; feeding took place twice daily, and continued for 146 days, at the end of which the animals consuming the dry grain had consumed 634 lbs., those receiving grain with its own weight of water 644 lbs., those receiving grain with double its weight of water 650 lbs., and the last group 614 lbs. Practically speaking, the weights gained per day were almost identical, slightly more than a pound per pig. It is still more interesting to notice the quantity of grain which was required to make a pound of gain in weight. The first group consumed 3.59 lbs., the second 3.80 lbs., the third 3.74 lbs., and the fourth 3.75 lbs. Now, in spite of the fact that the second group of pigs gained the greatest weight during the feeding period, they ate the most food, and their gain cost the most money; indeed, 100 lbs. of gain cost $3.12, as against $2.95, which was the cost of 100 lbs. gained by the lot that consumed the dry grain, the other lots being practically alike. The third and fourth groups of pigs required no additional water, whereas the first and second groups consumed water separately.

We may take it apparently, as a result of this work that a young pig obtaining pure water to the extent of twice the weight of the grain it consumes, obtains enough. We are not yet at the end of our knowledge in the simple matter of feeding swine. It has been shown most recently that sour skim milk, contrary to the belief of many, is less economical than sweet skim milk. Now we once more find that the plan which is the least trouble is more economical than the plan which is the greatest trouble; in other words that it is more economical to provide pigs, where a particular grain is employed, with the whole grain and water separately, than to pay for the cost of grinding the grain and taking the trouble to mix it into slop with water. From a point of view of physiology this is quite comprehensive; pigs receive sloppy food consume it ravenously and assuredly with results in some cases which cannot be advantageous, whereas pigs consuming dry grain are compelled to grind it, and as a result there can be no doubt that they masticate it better.

Building and Filling a Silo.

The main thing in building any silo, either of staves or boards, is to secure timber that is free from rotten knots and decayed centres. Select good chestnut, which will outlast most lumber, and have it cut from comparatively old, well-matured trees. If well-seasoned timber, there will be little likelihood of the structure warping and drawing in summer when empty.

As a foundation for the silo make an excavation fully three feet in depth and at least two feet wider than the silo walls. Fill this excavation with small stones, and mix enough good cement with them to make it solid and firm. Then top over with a mixture of one part cement to two parts clean, coarse sand. On this foundation the frame of the silo can be built. Such a flooring will be permanent and not give way until several structures have rotted and tumbled down. With good chestnut staves or lumber fitted and matched snugly together the silo will be well built and air-tight. The inside of the silo should be painted with hot gas tar the outside with metallic paint. The roof should be made double, with roofing paper spread between the walls and painted with graphite paint. In this way the silo will shed water and prove practically as tight as needed. Tarring the inside of the silo not only helps to exclude air and moisture, but it prevents rotting of the wood and destroys insects that live in many woods.

In filling the silo the corn should be cut at the glazing period. The cutting and filling should then be carried on as rapidly as possible, so that the last of the crop will not get too old before it can be harvested. The corn for the silo should be planted in rows about three feet apart, and one foot apart in row. If properly planted and replanted early enough every stalk should reach a good size and produce an ear. The silo should be filled as soon as possible after the corn has reached the proper stage, and then, if handled rightly, not a pound of it should be wasted. A good deal of the waste in the silo comes from carelessness. The rain, moisture and air must be excluded from the silo, but freezing and thawing should not injure the ensilage in winter or spring. Good ensilage should be as nourishing and palatable in the spring as in the early part of winter.

Connecticut. JAMES S. WILSON.

Thoughts for the Present Dairy Season.

Many dairymen possessing common cows get discouraged, because they say they cannot compete successfully with more fortunate farmers owning blooded herds.

To such let me say, the remedy for improvement lies in your own hands.

If you think you cannot spare the money to purchase a blooded bull, attempt to secure the services of one this season for at least a portion of your herd.

Select only your best milch animals to be the mothers of your future grades, and you will soon have a herd of the latter of which no dairyman need be ashamed.

In the meantime, do not wait idly for the future and improved bovine generation to work wonders for you, but treat those you now possess as though they too were blooded animals.

You don't know how it increases a common cow's self respect, and incidentally her milk yield, to have a sweet, clean stable to walk into night and morning; to be turned into a pasture with succulent feed up to her eyes, and with plenty of pure, cool water to drink; to see the shepherd dog chained up instead of snapping at her heels, and to receive gentle words rather than kicks, and have the atmosphere free from cuss words at milking time.

It is the little attentions that go to make up the successful management of dairying, and he who does not study the needs of the common cow and her environment, need expect no success with her better blooded sister.

Now, before you are fairly launched into the dairy season of 1901 take heed of these things, as their observance may mean the very essence of dairy profit to you before the summer is ended.

Another thing, I have no patience with a half-hearted dairyman, one who lacks enthusiasm in his work. Such a one never has or never will make cows pay. Enter with spirit into your work or don't work at all.

Take as good care of the calves as you do of their dams, for they form the nursery of the dairy.

A poor, pot-bellied calf raised on slop in a small bare enclosure, with green pasture just out of reach, is enough to make an honest dairyman weep, and yet how many such do we see!

Is it any wonder the land is full of "common" cows? They would be uncommon ones, indeed, if they could evolve from such infancy into robust, profitable animals.

GEORGE E. NEWELL.

We think there is little doubt but that if both ewe and ram are each one of good strong vigorous twins, and are well cared for, that the tendency to obtain twins will be much greater. We know an experienced sheep breeder who would not use any ram in his flock that was not a twin lamb, and he much preferred that it should be one of twin ram lambs from a ewe that was one of twins. Thus he claimed to be very sure of at least 150 lambs from 100 ewes. We used to have some doubts about the advantage of twin lambs, as one good lamb is better than two poor ones, but now we think it possible by liberal and judicious feeding of the ewe to keep her so that she will give milk enough for two until they are old enough to eat a little grain at the trough, and when one can do that the more twin lambs the greater the profit in the flock.

The sheep seldom dies in debt to its owner; its matters not when it does, its pelt will pay for its keep.

Fowls need a variety of food and some animal food is essential.

P. J. WILLIAMS, of Land's End Stock Farm, Milpitas, sat in the office of THE BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN last Monday and "talked horse." Mr. Williams is one of the veteran breeders and trainers of the Coast, and the horse business would be better off if we had a few more like him. He is one of those men who breed with a purpose and have a plan laid out before they begin. He sat by my desk and did something that the majority of stallion owners seldom do—praised the stallions owned by others, and thereby showed the broadness of his mind. He had words of praise to say for McKinney 2:11½, Cupid, 2:18, Nutwood Wilkes 2:16½ and several others. When the fact that the get of Silver Bow 2:16 were making a good showing this year at the training tracks was mentioned, Mr. Williams said, "I believe that Silver Bow was one of the fastest trotting stallions ever in California and I do not know of any horse, bar none, that has a greater license to be a sire of extreme speed." In speaking of Monterey 2:09½, he stated that he had been bred to about twenty-five mares so far. "I have a yearling," said he, "by Monterey out of Leap Year 2:26½ that is one of the fastest natural trotters I ever saw, and I am certain will be a great one. It is coal black and one of the best dispositioned yearlings ever foaled. The oldest of Monterey's get are two year olds and there are but two of them, both owned up north, one in Seattle and the other in Oregon, I think. I guess I went too fast with him the first year I raced him. He came to his speed so fast that he acquired the habit of going to a break because he was afraid of his own speed. I believe that is the principal reason so many horses get to be erratic. They get speed so suddenly that they do not know what to do with it. In my opinion the reason the Wilkes are such good race horses is that the most of them make speed slowly, the trainer having to persevere and urge them at every succeeding workout to drop a second or two off their previous showing. When one works a colt in 2:30 and the next time out the youngster shows a rate of speed six or seven seconds below that, the probability is the colt will get frightened at the clip he is going and break into a run before he has carried it far. If the trainer will go slowly with one of that kind and teach him to have confidence in his own abilities he will make a race horse out of him. I think I went too fast with Monterey, and as he could brush a two minute clip he learned to rush to a break. I still think him the fastest stallion I ever saw trot. Mr. Eph Simmons of Kentucky says he is the only trotting stallion he ever saw, and told me if I had taken him to his town in the spring of the year I was over there he would have bred all his mares to him. I hope to race him this year if there are any purses offered for his class. He is looking better than he ever did in his life, and I don't think there is a better dispositioned horse in America. Although he is in the stud, Mrs. Williams can go to his stall, take him out, hitch him up and drive him to town with perfect safety, as he never offers to do a mean thing and is afraid of nothing."

"There are many Californians," continued Mr. Williams, "who never miss the opportunity to throw mud at Sidney, his sire, saying they are quitters, etc. Well, when I came back from the East last summer, I heard considerable about the fast trotters that had come out during the summer here, but when I got a chance to see them all go late in the season there were two mares that stood out above all others for speed and gameness—Dolly Dillon 2:11½ and Jamie 2:13½, both by sons of Sidney. Take his opportunities into consideration and Sidney was a most remarkable sire—one of the very greatest. Without the help of great mares he got more colt trotters and more fast ones than any other of his day here. He was used on the Flaxtail or Blue Bull mares a great deal. That blood is fast, but it does not go the route, yet he sired trotters and pacers from them that went faster than the get of any other stallion from the same cross could show, and they were able to go more heats. I never studied the history of Sidney until recently, and it astonished me. He is one of the greatest sires we ever had in California and I don't know but the greatest."

Mr. Williams is one of those men you don't meet every day. He is uneasy if he owes a debt and is unable to settle it promptly. For this reason he wants to sell two or three of his brood mares. He does not want to sell them, but says he wants to get square with the world. Some enterprising horse breeder in this State should buy Hattie, the dam of Monterey 2:09½ and Montana 2:16. Mr. Williams has put a low price on her, and if ever there was a chance to breed a 2:10 trotter it is offered to the person who owns her. She is now in foal to Billy Thornhill and it is better than an even money bet that the produce will trot in 2:15 i, it lives and is trained properly. Hattie should be good for seven or eight foals yet. Mr. Williams would not part with her and would much rather sell some of the other brood mares he owns, and he has some royally bred ones, but will let her go at a price that a poor man can afford to pay rather than remain in debt. She has proven that the Sidney nick is a good one, and there are several sons of Sidney in California that she can be bred to. If that strain does not suit, there are plenty of others, and it is a foregone conclusion that any three year old out of her by a well-bred horse will sell for more money than Mr. Williams now asks for the mare.

A good story always results when Charley Durfee McKinney's owner, gets started on racing reminiscences. He has been through many a campaign and has had many interesting experiences, and as a raconteur few can equal him. His style is all his own—there is not another like him, and his stories lose much when repeated and put in cold type. Ten or a dozen members of the Breeders Association sat in the office of THE BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN the other evening awaiting the arrival of enough more to make a quorum. Something was said about the wonderful speed of Gossiper 2:14½, and as Durfee formerly owned and raced that erratic son of Simmons he was asked about it. "I drove Gossiper faster for a short distance than I ever drove any horse except Clipper," said he. "Clipper's official time the last quarter of the first heat at Santa Rosa, the day he made his record of 2:06 was 29½ seconds. That's the only time I ever drove a horse a quarter better than 30 seconds and he is a pacer. I drove Gossiper an eighth in 14½ seconds trotting. I had a peculiar experience with him up in Woodland in '94. There was a small purse offered for the free for all trotters and the starters were Shylock, Adelaide McGregor and Gossiper. My horse had worked awful fast and several of my friends came to me and asked about backing him. I told them what an erratic devil he was, and that if he took a notion to break he might go over the fence with me. So I told the boys that I would go easy with him the first heat, and that if he went steady and all right we'd play him in the book's for the second heat. There was only one way to drive Gossiper and that was to let him have his head—throw the lines on his back and let him go, and then he could show a two minute clip. We got the word in the first heat and I let him go along as he wanted to. He was on his good behavior and never made a break in the mile. Adelaide McGregor won the heat in 2:16 and I was third. When I got out of the sulky I told the boys that Gossiper was awful good, that I intended to play him myself for the next heat and to get their money down. I bet $30 and thought that was a pretty good sum to risk on him. When we got the word in the next heat we were scoring pretty fast, and as we reached the quarter pole Gossiper made one of those jimmies and I thought sure he would take the fence. It took my entire strength on one line to keep him away from it, and when I got him settled it looked as though Shylock and the McGregor mare were about seven miles in the lead. As soon as he caught I laid the lines down and how he did trot. He caught them before he reached the far turn, but as he did he made another lunge in the air and struck for the fence again. I said to myself "Good-bye to the money," and tried to get him on his feet. When I succeeded they were nearly out of sight again. Gossiper needed no coaxing. He lit out like a whirlwind and I nipped the mare at the wire and got the heat in 2:15½. In each of those breaks I lost at least a hundred yards, and I think Gossiper must have trotted pretty close to a two minute clip all the time he was on his feet or he would never have won in that time. I had won the money but he was all out. The effort had cooked him. I knew he could not win another heat and told my friends so. Shylock won it. Gossiper was too tired to break, and when we entered the stretch I saw I had the mare beat and kept on with the hope that I might win if Shylock made a mistake. I took the chances of tapping Gossiper a few times with the whip although it was dangerous. But he could not respond and Shylock beat him. When I came out for the next heat you can imagine my feelings when President Adams called me up and told me that Millard Sanders would drive my horse. The judges had concluded that I had laid up the heat. Millard came out, I turned Gossiper over to him and as I did he asked me what I wanted done. I said, "Go on and drive to win and shut them both out if you can." He had no more than received the word until Gossiper made one of his worst ones, and everybody thought Sanders would be killed. He got him stopped, however, but the horse made one or two more and when the heat was finished he was at the half and did not get to the wire for such a long time that I thought it was an hour. The Irish cross in my pedigree came to my relief, however, and I went to the judges and told them that I claimed my position and damages to the sulky if Sanders broke it in the next heat. I had second money wen up to the time they took me out, and after consulting the rules they turned the horse back to me, and the race was finished the next heat by Shylock winning. They paid me second money, which, together with the money I managed to win on the second heat, helped me to regain my temper. I found out afterwards that the person who complained and had me taken out was a trainer named Crawford that was handling a string of horses for Senator Fair. I got even on him by selling him the horse soon after and he never won a heat with him. But Gossiper was a fast trotter, the fastest trotter I ever drove, and will make quite a sire, especially of brood mares."

Sunday forenoon is a busy time at the new five-eighths track which was recently constructed on the marsh near Sixteenth street station, Oakland, by the Oakland Driving Club. I was there last Sunday and twenty-one members of the club were there working their horses and indulging in brushes that were often exciting and worth crossing the hay to see. There are no cooling-out sheds, stalls or even a fence around the track and the only place the rail birds can find to perch on is the low two-foot levee which was thrown up on the east side to hold the mud which was pumped from the bay to make the ground on which the track is laid out. Out in the infield there were ten or a dozen rigs of all descriptions filled with people watching the workouts, and if a shaded stand could be erected I do not doubt but these Sunday morning exercises would draw a large crowd of people who enjoy seeing the trotter and pacer in motion. The track is in good shape for fast work and President Bollingall tells me there are many new members coming into the club and a very large membership is assured for the near future. I managed to get a number of pretty fair snap shots of some of the horses being worked there last Sunday, which will be published on the front page of the B. & S. next week and made the subject of a few remarks.

There are many persons in the horse business, as there are in all other walks of life, who are chronic kickers and knockers, but who never get beyond pointing the way, as they are constitutionally opposed to traveling it. The annual members meeting of the Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeders Association which was called for last Monday evening had to adjourn because there was no quorum present. The constitution provides that there must be fifteen members present to transact business at the annual meeting, and but ten showed up. New the object was to elect a board of directors, and unless a quorum of the members can be got together the old board will have to continue in office. During the past year I have heard several members of the Association growling about matters that they think should be changed in the manner of giving meetings and telling how they would manage things if they were in power, but not one of these kickers was present, nor do I believe one could be hauled to a meeting by a pair of draft horses. I look upon the absence of a quorum as an endorsement of the present management, as if a majority of the ninety-two members of the association in good standing desired a change they would certainly get fifteen of their number to attend the annual meeting and thus accomplish the result wished for. The present board has done very good work when the condition of affairs on this Coast is considered, and although I think a few new members with enterprise and enthusiastic energy are needed, the sort of individual is not readily found who will devote his time without pay to such affairs as harness meetings. The annual meeting was adjourned until next Wednesday. I hope every member who has been a kicker in the past will be on hand and present his grievances, or forever after hold his peace.

Stanford Stake Has 91 Entries.

A letter from Assistant Secretary Harry Lowden, of the State Agricultural Society, contains the following:

"In entering up the Stanford Stake entries for 1903, from the books for the list sent and printed by you, our typewriter omitted two entries as follows:

Vendome Stock Farm's ch c by Iran Alto, dam Laura R.

S. C. Tryon's & Co.'s b c Sir Knight by Knight, dam Regina T.

The total number of entries is 91. Sorry the omission."

While the mistake in copying the list was unfortunate and thus prevented us publishing all the entries in one list, we are glad to know that the mistake was discovered in time to make an early announcement of the same. Ninety-one entries in this stake means that there is already in the stake $455, which with the $300 to be added by the society makes the sum of $755 as the nucleus for the stake of 1903, which should certainly be worth considerable over two thousand dollars when it is decided.

Cleveland Track Notes.

[American Sportsman, June 6.]

Millard Sanders is training his brother's sorrel filly Captivity by Sidney Dillon, dam by Piedmont. He drove her a quarter Wednesday in 34½ seconds.

Lolita (p) 2:12½ by Sidney is being prepared by W. L. Snow at Syracuse for her match race against Emma M. (p) 2:12½ during the Cleveland Grand Circuit meeting.

Orrin Hickok, the veteran reinsman, who has been visiting friends in Cleveland and Glenville for the last two weeks has gone to Lexington, Ky., to visit Potor Duryea of the Patchen Wilkes Stock Farm.

Visitors to the Glenville track are much impressed with the actions of a John A. McKerron colt, out of Czarina Wilkes. Although the colt is only six weeks old he has already shown that he is a natural trotter.

Charley Jamison got in some good work on his string last week. Monday he sent Florist by Dexter Prince a mile in 2:26, the gelding making the last half in 1:10. Whips Jr. 2:27½ was worked out in 2:27½.

Jim Thompson, the California trainer, arrived at the Glenville track Thursday with Little Thorne (p) 2:07½ by Hawthorne, the much touted green pacer Thornway by Steinway, with a half-mile trial of 1:04, and Rajah, a green pacer by Charles Derby, with a trial of 2:13 to a cart. He came to Glenville from Cincinnati where he has been training for several weeks. He was accompanied by G. Lapham with Phoebe Childers 2:10½ by Sir Roderick.

Scott McCoy has not commenced to give his horses any fast work. The best he has done with Directum Kelly 2:08½ and Hetty G. 2:05½ is to repeat them in 2:30, with the last quarters in 36 seconds. He says Directum Kelly was never in better form and looks and acts as if he would make them all hustle to take the money. McCoy is paying considerable attention to two two year olds by Direct, which he brought along from East View Farm. Neither had ever been broken to harness until February, but have been driven quarters in 40 seconds. McCoy will keep them here until the inaugural of the Grand Circuit, when they will be sent back to the farm. This will leave McCoy four good campaigners, Directum Kelly, Hetty G., Cole Direct and Direct Light.

Sandy Smith, the well known California trainer, arrived Monday with Funston, a roan pacer with no record. Sandy is not saying much about him, but the reports that have come from the coast are to the effect that the Kansas general's namesake is a remarkably fast horse. Sandy says he broke all records for fast freight traveling, coming from Denver to Cleveland in four days. When he left Denver there were 300 horses training at the track, more than ever before. Many of the best will be brought East after the Denver meeting, June 15th to 29th, stopping off at the Davenport meeting, July 9th to 12th, and then starting in at Detroit to go down the Grand Circuit.

European Derbies.

Of the recent trotting performances in Europe the German Derby at Berlin and the Austrian Derby at Vienna were the most notable. The event in Germany was for three year olds; worth $3000, and the winner turned up in Emilia, who trotted 3200 meters at the rate of 2:38 for an English mile. Among other starters were three of the get of Potential, and they finished third, fourth and sixth, respectively, while a daughter of Chimes was fifth and a son of Refero was sixth. Emilia, the winner, was sired by Emigrant, a son of Electioneer and Lady Beecher by Gooding's Champion, while her dam was by Frace's Alexander out of a thoroughbred mare. The Austrian Derby, worth about $8000, was for four year olds, and the winner was Enamel, sired by the French trotting stallion Email, out of the American mare Lizzie Woodnut by Woodnut. In each event the winner reduced the best previous record, the three year old in Germany trotted her three miles at the rate of about 2:38, while the Austrian four year old trotted the distance at the rate of 2:29½.—Chicago Horsemen.

Holiday Races at Santa Barbara.

There will be racing at Santa Barbara on July 4th and 5th, open to horses in Ventura, San Luis Obispo, and Santa Barbara counties. Eight purses have been offered, $250 being the amount for the free for all class, and $200 is given the pacers of the same class. Three year old trotters and pacers will compete in the same race for a purse of $100, and $50 is offered for buggy horses whose records are not better than three minutes. For the runners $100 is to be given for a mile dash, $75 for a half mile dash, $50 for one of three furlongs and $75 for a consolation race at six furlongs. All the harness races, except the buggy horse race, will be best three heats in five and will be under National Association rules. The purses will be divided 60, 30 and 10 per cent. The entrance fee is five cent., and entries close June 25th with the Secretary at Santa Barbara.

News from the North.

[Portland Rural Spirit.]

Robert Prior has moved his stable of horses from Ellensburg to North Yakima.

From reports coming from over the river, J. W. Tilden is fairly warming the earth around the pruno orchard at Vancouver with his trotters and pacers.

Zombro 2:11 is now at the Fair Grounds near Salem, Or. Mr. Beckers arrives there this week with him, and will be pleased to show the Oregon breeders one of the greatest stallions, combining breeding and individual merit, that has ever been in this State. He will be in the stud until September 1st.

Sam Casto has gone to the Fair Grounds with his stable of youngsters. He has Altacora, a full sister to Chehalis 2:04½; a three year old pacer by Del Norte; a two year old pacer by Del Norte, and a two year old trotter by McKinney. They are all well entered in stakes and are a very promising lot of youngsters.

Perhaps the horses at Pendleton are in better condition to race than those anywhere else in the State, though some of them are temporarily indisposed at the present time. James Erwin's stable seems to be in the best condition as they have escaped sickness so far. He is working Starkey 2:15½, John Edison 2:16½, Oveta 2:21½, and they are all in the pink of condition. Besides these he has Saltese, by Caution; Sancio, a green pacer by Caution, that is said to possess more speed than anything on the track; Kinley Mack, three year old by McKinney, dam by Gossiper; Ollie M., Oregon Sunshine and Unclo Remus, all two year olds and entered in the Breeders' stake at the State Fair.

Cris Simpson is working Alta Norte 2:16½; Phil N., 2:21; Santiam, 2:26; Mack Mack, green trotter by McKinney, and Charles S., two year old pacer. Both Phil N., and Mack Mack have worked miles in 2:28 this spring very handily. Charlie S. is going in 2:34, eighths in 18 seconds.

Gus La Fountaine is working the runners Gracie W., Pauline and Gus L.

Frank Frazier is working his green pacer Hassalo, the trotter Mt. Hood and the two year old trotter Promise, all sired by his stallion, Westfield.

Hassalo has worked an easy mile in 2:22, Mt. Hood in 2:24 and the two year old can trot fast enough so that they will all have a chance to throw their searchlights on her from behind.

The McKerron Case Reopened.

In response to the petition of George W. Archer, Frank Bower and other officials of the National Trotting Association, President P. P. Johnston has ordered that a special meeting of the board of review be held at the office of the association, in Hartford, June 27th. The meeting is for the purpose of reconsidering the ruling made by the board in the John A. McKerron case at its session in May in New York.

This will be the third time the Turf court has considered the performance of H. K. Devereux's trotter in the cup race at Boston last year. At the first hearing in December, the board decided that, having competed for a valuable prize that could be won, McKerron's performance constituted a record. But prominent horsemen interested in amateur sport succeeded in obtaining a rehearing at the meeting last month and with a bare quorum present, the board by a vote of three to two, reversed the December ruling of the full board, holding that no record was made.

This ruling caused a commotion among horsemen. George W. Archer and Frank Bower, members of the December board, petitioned President Johnston to call another meeting. The turf tribunal at the special meeting will probably consist of Messrs. Johnston and Archer, ex-Governor Morgan G. Bulkeley of Connecticut; Frank Bower, Philadelphia; Henry Smulbach of Wheeling, W. Va.; Senator J. W. Bailey of Texas, and perhaps A. B. Spreckels of San Francisco.

A Golden Rule Horse Ad.

A gentleman who has a Christian spirit and a horse for sale advertises as follows in a Minnesota paper:

We have a good family driving horse for sale, providing you carry insurance.

He is not over particular as to feed. In fact, he prefers our neighbors' haystacks and corncribs to our own.

We feed him whenever we can catch him, which is seldom.

He is partly gentle. The other parts are not, and you must govern yourself accordingly.

We will throw in the derrick and telegraph pole combination which we use to hitch him up with.

If you are fond of driving we would advise you to engage a cowboy that owns a fast horse to do your driving, and be sure and get on top of the barn before he begins to drive the horse.

For price and coroner's address apply to the owner.

The horses purchased for the Gorman Government, and which were not taken to China as intended, are being sold at auction in small bunches at various points in this State. A band of twenty-five was sold last week at Salinas. They brought from $15 to $60.

FAIR GROUNDS, Salem, June 10, '01.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN—I arrived here June 4th and found that the trainers here have only just commenced to work their horses, owing to the rains which have been almost continuous during the spring. Stamboul Belle 2:21 got her first workout the day I reached here. It was in 2:51. She was bred to Zombro the same day.

Mr. I. C. Mosher has charge of the track and grounds here and keeps everything in fine shape. He has five or six colts in training, all by his horse Couer de Alene 2:19, and they are showing lots of speed. A two year old by this horse worked a quarter in forty seconds this week, which is fast for this time of year up in this country.

Sam Casto has five horses in training, but I have not had time to learn how they are bred or how fast they have gone.

The Salem Fair Grounds is a grand place and the track is, in my opinion, the best on the Coast to train on. It is very fast and at the same time safe in every way. The center field is a lovely sight, with clover and grass over two feet high. There are about 160 acres in the enclosure, and within it, but just outside the track, there are oak trees in large numbers, giving it the appearance of a beautiful park, which it in reality is. The State is making a large number of improvements in the buildings, etc., and there is a spirit of thrift and enterprise which shows that the present board of directors, with M. D. Wisdom as secretary, is at earnest in its efforts to make the Oregon State Fair one of the best in the United States. The railway conductors held a picnic here to-day and there were at least five thousand people on the grounds. Everything looks most encouraging for a big meeting during fair week.

I was kept busy to-day showing Zombro, and booked twenty mares. I have been here six days and have bred seven mares. The dam of Alameda 2:09½ will probably be bred to Zombro, as it is not likely that she is with foal, although she has been bred this season.

By the way, this is the first time in twenty years that I have been squared away with the points of the compass. In Kansas, where I was raised, the sun rose in the east all right. When I moved to Arizona it seemed to get up in the south, and I never could move it back where it belonged. In Los Angeles it also rose in the south, and at Sacramento it got up in what seemed to me to be the southwest. The first morning after my arrival at the Fair Grounds, however, Old Sol rose in his proper place, so you see I am going square again, and do not need a side pole to enable me to point to any of the cardinal points.

I saw a letter to-day from Mr. Mosher of Los Angeles to his father, I. C. Mosher of Salem, advising him to breed some mares to Zombro, as he is the coming horse. He says the Zombro filly which Joe Desmond bought from Wilhoit of Long Beach is trotting miles in 2:20, and stepped a quarter in 31 seconds. He says she can do 2:15 sure, is a regular whirlwind, and he thinks she can beat Zephyr.

Lady Mack 2:23½ and another mare have just arrived from Tacoma, Wash., to be bred to Zombro, and Anna T. 2:16 is here from Portland on the same mission. She belongs to Tom Condon, who will send a couple more.

Hoping that I will have more news for you in my next, I remain,

Yours truly,

GEO. T. BECKERS.

Match Race at Melbourne.

Mr. R. Matchett, proprietor of the Adelaide Hill Stud Farm at Bendigo, Province of Victoria, Australia, writes the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN that a match has been made between the Australian bred stallion Osterley 2:25 (Victorian record) and the California bred stallion Digitalis 2:25½ (American record) to trot mile heats, best two in three, at Melbourne, in July next, for $500 a side. The match has entailed about as much newspaper work and correspondence as the Abbot-Boralma match. Mr. Matchett figures that if Osterley can trot as fast as his Victorian record of 2:25, that Digitalis will have to be several seconds faster than his California record of 2:25½ to beat him, as he considers the Australian tracks fully eight seconds slower than the best American ovals. Digitalis is by Daly 2:15, and was bred by the Rose Dale Stock Farm, Santa Rosa, and made his record at Potaluma in 1896. He is now twelve years old. He was sold, together with several other horses, to an Australian gentleman last year. Osterley is by Child Harold, a son of Harold 413, that was sent to Australia several years ago.

A match trotting race took place Sunday, June 2d, at Butte, Montana, between James Johnson's Mike P. and William Holtenhoff's May Bird. The race was for $300 a side, and was won by Mike P. in straight heats. The fastest was 2:26½.

THOROUGHBREDS.

THE ANNUAL MEETING of the members of the Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeders Association, which was called for last Monday evening, failed to secure a quorum and an adjournment was necessary. The date of the adjourned meeting was fixed at June 19th at 3 P. M., which is Wednesday next. By reference to the books of the Secretary it is found that there are sixty-two members of the association in good standing, entitled to take part and vote at the annual members meeting, and surely out of that number there should be fifteen who will attend and show that they take enough interest in the organization to elect a board of directors for the ensuing year, which is the principal business to come before the meeting. A prominent member of the association remarked to the writer this week that the absence of the members from the meeting last Monday evening was conclusive evidence to him that the work of the present board of directors is endorsed by the members and that they do not desire any change in the management; that a very large majority of the members are willing that the present board hold over another year and therefore see no urgent necessity for attending the meeting to simply re-elect the present directors. This is all very well as far as the members go but the directors themselves should be considered. One or two for business reasons desire to resign, and the remaining members of the board would rather that the vacancies be filled by the members than to take upon themselves the responsibility of selecting them. There are others who feel that they can perform their duties during the coming year with greater enthusiasm and spirit if they have the expressed endorsement of the members for their actions in the past. The directors have many responsibilities on their shoulders and perform them without pay, while they go to considerable expense and devote a great deal of time in attending meetings, arranging dates and purses and performing the various duties that devolve upon directors of an organization like the P. C. T. H. B. A. During the past five or six years it has required hard work and close figuring to hold meetings, pay purses and keep the association out of debt, yet this has been accomplished and every obligation incurred has been promptly met. Thousands of dollars have been distributed among the horsemen, and it is no idle boast to say that but for the Breeders the harness horse industry on this Coast would have been in a very much worse condition than it is at present. It has kept the interest alive and never failed during all the years of depression to give a meeting which has been profitable to the horsemen and created large values in trotting and pacing horses. Many horses have been sold for large prices which would never have been trained or heard of had the Breeders failed to give its annual race meetings. There have been criticisms of the management, some of them just, others malicious and false, and it is now due the board of directors that the members attend in sufficient numbers next Wednesday afternoon and show by their presence and votes whether they desire the association to proceed as it has in the past, or take a new course under new management. Every member of the association is more or less interested in harness horse values and there is nothing that will aid more in keeping these values up in this State than successful annual race meetings conducted by the Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeders Association. The directors have been able to give them in the past and will strive to make them still more successful in the future, but at the same time they are entitled to something more than the mere passive endorsement which permits them to "hold over" because a quorum of members will not meet to re-elect them. Let every member who possibly can, attend the meeting at the office of the Secretary Wednesday next at three o'clock in the afternoon.

THE BREEDERS MEETING, which will be held in Sacramento during the last three days in July and the first three days in August, promises to be one of the best harness meeting held in California for years. While it is not expected that very fast time will be made in the slow classes, yet there are so many horses without records in training for these races that large fields should result in each event. At the present writing we do not know of a green trotter in training in California that will be raced here which has shown form sufficient to justify any person to predict that it will be able to do three heats in 2:15 by the time the Breeders meeting is held. Last year we predicted that any trotter that could beat 2:18 three times would be able to win a fair sum on the California circuit. One of the best winners at the close of the season was Charlie Mac who ended the year with a record of 2:17 and there were several others with slower records that won over $1000 net. In the pacing division the result was about the same, and horses earned a fair profit for their owners that lacked speed to secure a mark as low as 2:15. We do not desire to disparage the California harness horses in the least, nor to intimate that all the future crackorjacks that are in training have gone across the mountains to race. We believe there are green pacers now in California that will beat 2:10 this year, and trotters that will get records below 2:12, but the idea we wish to convey is that any horse that can pace in 2:15 or any trotter that can do a mile in 2:18, can win a snug sum for his owner if he is a steady horse and has the gameness to go three heats in the time stated at either gait. An owner or a trainer should not permit himself to be frightened out of making entries because his neighbor owns a horse that is showing quarters at a two minute clip. We are acquainted with a breeder and trainer who owned a horse that could pace to the half mile pole almost any day in 1:04, and he sold him for $350 as a road horse and considers he got a good price. The best that horse could do for one full mile was 2:17 and the next would be about 2:25, while a cow could beat him in the third. Steady going, game trotters, with 2:20 speed, that they are able to sustain for a mile are worth entering in any class from the green classes down to 2:17. It is the same with the pacers. The well mannered horse often wins from a field that is composed of faster but less reliable horses. The Breeders start the circuit this year with six $1000 purses and will on July 1st advertise ten or twelve additional classes for slightly less purses. Woodland will give a week of good racing and the State Fair follows with two weeks, Stockton and Salinas will have a week each, and Los Angeles is already advertising nearly fifteen thousand dollars worth of purses for harness horses to compete for during its two weeks meeting. Here then are eight weeks of harness racing with good purses every week and owners should prepare now to start in at the Breeders meeting and follow the circuit clear through. The entries to the six $1000 purses offered by the Breeders Association will close Monday, July 1st, and it should be the earnest endeavor of every breeder, owner and trainer of trotting and pacing horses to make as many entries as possible and to induce his friends and neighbors to do the same. The reputation of California horses is made, but it must be kept up. Every fast and game race horse developed on the circuit this year will attract several buyers from the East next winter.

THE YEAR BOOK is not infallible, and the contention by some of the writers on Eastern turf papers that all the records contained in it are "official," and must stand, is absurd. Mistakes creep into the Year Book as they do into any other publication. When clerks and copyists and compositors and proof-readers reach that state of perfection in their work that mistakes by them are impossible, then the Year Book may become a record of harness racing that is exempt from error. Every person who has occasion to use the Year Book frequently finds mistakes. It is almost impossible to keep them out. Some of the records marked "official" which it publishes contain errors made by the clerks or the printers, while those that are otherwise labeled surely cannot be relied on with entire confidence. The publishers of the Year Book do not claim it to be infallible, but that it is as near correct as their efforts can make it. It is an invaluable publication, one that cannot be dispensed with, and answers the purposes for which it is compiled as nearly as any publication can, but the contention that associations and individuals should be compelled to accept its every statement as unalterably correct is a very absurd proposition.

Cap and Bells Wins the Oaks.

Another of Britain's great racing trophies has been captured by America, Foxhall P. Keene having won the Oaks at Epsom with Cap and Bells, ridden by Milton Henry. The owner, horse, and jockey are all thoroughbred Americans, so the victory was not diluted, as it was in the case of the Derby.

Cap and Bells, the first American filly to win the Epsom Oaks, was bred by James R. and Foxhall P. Keene at their Kentucky nursery for thoroughbred horses, Castleton Farm, near Lexington, and is one of the best representatives of the great horse Domino, now dead, who raced successfully for three years under the Keene colors in America, winning $180,085 as a two year old in 1893, the largest sum that has ever been won by a single horse in one year, Domino finishing his two year old form unbeaten. His owners retired him to the stud at the end of his racing career, and his success as a sire was as pronounced as it was on the turf, the first of his get winning, while last season the young Dominos were responsible for the placing of the Keene stable again at the head of the list of winning owners in America. Domino also was the sire of the great colt Commando, now racing in America.

The dam of Cap and Bells is Ben-My-Chree, by Galopin, one of the mares imported by James R. Keene when he established the Castleton Farm, and dam of the good race horse Ben Ronald. The filly Cap and Bells, foaled in 1899, was developed and trained by James Rowe, trainer for the Keene racing stable, and made her first appearance on a race track just a year ago, at the Gravesend spring meeting, where on June 4th she won the Criterion Stakes from a field of nine, running four and a half furlongs in 0:55 2-5. Her victory caused a sensation at the time from the manner in which she won, Cap and Bells breaking out of the crowd at the fall of the flag and in half a dozen strides having a lead of nearly as many lengths, she having only to canter the remainder of the distance to win as she pleased. From the time of her first start Cap and Bells was regarded as one of the best of the fillies of the year.

Cap and Bells in winning the Oaks has simply verified the promise she gave as a two year old, Foxhall Keene having had the Oaks in view when he selected the filly to be sent to England.

Milton Henry, who rode Cap and Bells to victory in this race, got his first lessons in riding at Woodland in this State, and rode but one season in New York before going to England to ride for the Koenes. He has not yet reached his majority and a part of his earnings go to his mother.

The Oaks is one of the most valued prizes of the English turf, and is regarded as the final test of a mare's class, the winner of the Oaks always commanding preferment in selection for breeding purposes, while the race in itself is second only to the Derby as a great and popular racing fixture. The race is older than the Derby, in fact, it having been established in 1779 by Lord Derby, and won at the first running by Lord Derby's filly Bridget. It became a permanent fixture at once, and ever since has been regarded as a companion event with the Derby, which was established a year later, in 1780.

After the race Mr. Keene announced that half the $4500 purse would go to London hospitals and the rest to hospitals in the United States.

Millard Sanders Writes From Cleveland.

GLENVILLE, O., June 6, 1901.

EDITOR BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN—I thought I would drop you a line and let you know how the trotting horse business looks here. There are, all told, forty-eight trainers located in Cleveland and there are two hundred horses working on the track. There are quite a number of California people here at present.

Jas. Thompson arrived here this morning from Cincinnati, where he has been rusticated for the past two weeks, with Algoneta, Rajah, Goshen Jim, Little Thorn and last but not least that good Steinway colt of Col. Kirkpatrick's, Thornway. They are all looking well and hearty. In the same ear with them was the little black demon Rey Direct, in charge of Wm. Cecil.

Mr. Breuner of Los Angeles is here with three good ones. Mr. Chas. Winship of Los Angeles has four horses left yet. He made one of the biggest sales of the season when he sold his three year old filly Zephyr for nine thousand dollars.

Phoebe Childers and The Roman are still at Cincinnati. Sandy Smith arrived here last Sunday with the green pacer that he bought from Mr. Hodges and he has been placed in my stable to be campaigned this year.

Mr. Scott McCoy is here with Directum Kelly and others of Mr. Butler's horses, and Geo. Ketcham is here with the king of stallions, Cresceus.

The Cleveland Open Air Horse Show is now in progress. There were several hotly contested classes to-day, of which I will send you a newspaper report to-morrow. The Cleveland track is one of the finest in the land. We have had a great deal of rain since my arrival but every indication points to good weather from now on. I arrived here from Pleasanton on May 17th, after a very safe and pleasant trip, making one stop of twenty-four hours at Albuquerque, New Mexico. The consignment that I had charge of was a repetition of my last year's sale. Last year I sold the highest priced horse at the sale, which was Princess Derby, $4100, and my average for nine head was $871. This year the highest price was for Eula Mac, $2700, and my average was $651 for ten head. So California still leads. The Santa Rosa consignment all sold well. I was greatly assisted in this sale by Mr. Ira Pierce, as he was very familiar with the breeding and could give the bidders considerable information. At the present time I have in my stable the following horses, which I will campaign this year. I expect to start at Detroit July 13th: Venus 2nd 2:11½ and Czarina 2:14½, property of Mr. Adolph Spreckels; both are working and doing very nicely.

Dolly Dillon 2:11½ and Janice 2:13½, owned by Santa Rosa Stock Farm. I have these two mares entered in about eighty thousand dollars worth of stakes this year. As it is very early in the season I will not make any predictions but I expect to make some money with them.

Eula Mac 2:17½ and the pacer Funston (the Hodges horse), both the property of Mr. Struber of Erie, Pa., and last but not least Captivity 2:28½ by Sidney Dillon, dam by Piedmont, second dam by Electioneer. Very truly yours,

MILLARD F. SANDERS.

To Save the State from Imposition.

[Sacramento News]

The State Agricultural Society has felt compelled to take measures to defeat the trick whereunder sundry horse owners impose upon it in the matter of free stalls and training quarters. This practice has come to be such a nuisance that when men come with horses that they entered to race at the State Fair they are unable to get accommodations, and the society has to hire outside barns for them.

The new order provides that horses shipped here without notice to the society's secretary shall not be allowed to take stalls until application has been made to the secretary and approved. When the bay counties racing closes owners are given five days to get away, and some of them come here because the state society offers free quarters and free use of its superb track. Where owners intend to race or show horses for prizes no objection is made, but the privilege has been abused so often that it has grown to be a big item of expense to the society.

The second clause of the order posted yesterday provides that "from and after this date all applicants for stalls will be required, before being admitted to the grounds, to deposit with the assistant secretary, H. Lowden, at the pavilion, $5 for each stall occupied, and the same will be refunded if the horse starts in races at the State Fair meeting, or is shown for premiums. This rule will be suspended only in the cases of horses that are in training and entered in the Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeders' Association meeting held at Sacramento from Monday, July 29th, to Saturday, August 3d; after that date they must make the deposit or vacate."

The Chicago Horse Sale Co. sold a total of 224 horses last week for an average of $227, and only two horses were sold over $1000.

The Pierce Sale.

One of the most successful auction sales of trotting and draft stock held in this city for years took place at the Occidental Horse Exchange, 721 Howard street, last Friday. The attendance was large and the bidding on all the good ones spirited. Wm G. Layng seemed in his element expatiating on the merits of the trotting sires whose representatives were offered and his knowledge of pedigrees and performances of trotters and pacers was quickly recognized and held the crowd until the last horse was sold. The stock was in excellent shape though many were unbroken. Below is a list of those sold and the prices obtained. The total amount of sales for the forty-three head was $4322, an average of a little over $100.

The Good Ones Sell.

The breeder of to-day who will make up his mind what the market wants, and will work with that end in view, and will get the best mares he can afford, and use the best sires he can get, will succeed in raising either light or draft horses. After a breeder has made up his mind what he expects to do, and after looking over his mares, he should look for the best sire he can find (as the best is none too good) and breed for one purpose, and try to get his stock uniform, so that when the buyer comes to see the matured horses he can mate them up. And this reminds me of a story told me by one of the largest buyers in Central Kansas. He said he was in a country town one day, and a large farmer came to see him and asked if he wanted to buy horses. He told him he did, and asked what he had. He said he had all kinds. The buyer went out to see them, and he said the farmer told the truth; he had forty-five head, and they were all kinds. Out of the forty-five head he found only two he could use. The remainder was not marketable stock and would not match up.

Now, this man made a failure of the horse business. He bred to a sire because he was handy and cheap. In the same county was another farmer who had some horses to sell, and he also saw the same buyer and asked him to come out to see his stock, saying he had thirty head of high-grade Percheron horses. The buyer went out and bought from him nearly one car of good, fat, marketable horses. This man made a success of the horse business, for he had an object in view, and bred to the best all the time. The buyer could afford to pay him more for the stock, as he did not have to run over the county, and his stock was fat and ready for market.

One thing I wish to impress on the mind of the farmer breeder who depends on others to furnish sires, no sire is too good for your mares, and when you get a good sire that produces good, uniform colts, stay by him, and do not leave him because some smooth talker comes in with a new one and says he is the best ever imported. Use full-blooded horses, if possible, as by doing this you are more sure of getting a uniform class but it is not necessary to use an imported sire to secure a good progeny. When you are getting something good from a sire stay with him.

About a year ago I was attending a sale, and among others sold was a large Percheron sire, and when the horse was brought into the sale ring the owner made the statement in public that there were not two carloads of matured horses from him in the county. Now this I thought strange as I knew the horse had been a successful breeder, and he had had him eight or ten years in this county; so I asked him if this was the truth, why it was. He said the colts all made good, salable horses, and the buyers gave more for them than the owners thought them worth, so they were sold and shipped out of the county.—T. H. Terry, before Kansas State Board of Agriculture.

Big Entry List at Lexington.

LEXINGTON, Ky., June 10.—The stakes for the 29th annual meeting of the Kentucky Trotting Horse Breeders Association here in October closed with a heavy list of entries. Six hundred and forty-eight entries, comprising 473 horses, have been received, an average of 50 to each race.

The Transylvania Stake received 20 subscriptions, and while the number of starters to be named September 17th is more of a mystery than usual owing to the large proportion of nominators hitherto unknown, the famous stakes will undoubtedly retain its position as the greatest annual trotting race of all ages division. Among the probable starters are Lady Geraldine 2:11½, Onward Silver 2:14½, Henry S. 2:12½, Dreamer 2:14½, Idolita 2:12, Chestnut King 2:12, Dolly Dillon 2:11½, Susie J. 2:17½, Volo 2:16, Lady Thisbe 2:16½, Laura S. 2:15½, Lita W. 2:13½.

There are 37 paid up entries for the three year old division of the Kentucky Futurity for this year, and 103 for the two year old division.

The association is disappointed at the entry in the McDowell Stake, a sweepstake for 2:10 trotters. The defection of the owners of York Boy 2:09½, Lady Geraldine, Idolita and Idra kept the list down to 12 horses, which will make the race worth only $5400.

The Walnut Hall cup race has 43 entries, many of which have been tried in from 2:09½ to 2:12, such as William J., Ebba, Next Siumons, Susie J., Free Silver, Lady Thisbe, Norvina, Axtello, Endow, Lucy Carr, Ives Dee, the Roman, Yarrum, Decamer, Laurel S. Quaddy, Girl, etc.

The Tennessee Stake for 2:08 pacers received but 14 nominations, owing to fast class fixed and the barring of hobbled pacers. The starters will include Will Leyburn 2:07½, Charley Hoyt 2:07½, The Admiral 2:07½, Major Muscovite 2:07½, Gambre 2:08½, Elastic Pointer, the great green brother to Star Pointer, Richmond and Beauseant, the sensational pacer that trialed last year as a three year old in 2:07.

The other veteran stakes received entries as follows: The Bluegrass, 2:19 trotters, 30; Johnson, 2:24 trotters, 42; the West, 2:29 trotters, 44; the Kentucky, three year old trotters, 19; the Lexington, two year old trotters, 25; the Wilson, 2:20 pacers, 34.

Nearly every high class horse in America has been named in these stakes and together with the match races between the champion The Abbot and Boralma for $6000 and between the champion stallion Cresceus 2:04, and his rival Charley Herr 2:07, for $7500 and the class purses to be opened in September, the $120,000 Lexington meeting will furnish a great occasion for the devotees of trotting sport.

Origin of the Basuto Pony.

Many times since the war between the British and the Boers broke out in South Africa the statement has been made that the Basuto pony is by far the best suited to service on the "veldt," as the prairie lands are called in that country. Investigation develops the fact that these ponies have a history. Sixty odd years ago a Scot having settled on the veldt imported two Shetland pony stallions. Soon after their arrival on his pioneer farm the natives stole the stallions and carried them off to their strongholds in the Drakensberg mountains where they were crossed with the native small mares. The progeny was so much superior in point of substance, hardihood and endurance that they were almost all retained as breeders and thus the present excellent breed was formed.

Charles Griffith left for Denver last week with Bonnie Direct 2:05½ and Domino by Rect 2:16½. He will go from Denver to Detroit, and will race his horses through the Grand Circuit. On reaching Denver Mr. Griffith was quietly married to Miss Adelaide Beardsley of this city, who reached Denver a few days after his arrival.

The Overland Racing & Training Association, with Robt. A. Austin, Ed Chase, Ed Gaylord, Joe Osner, and W. H. Shuckman as directors, filed articles of incorporation last week for a term of twenty years, with a capital of $20,000, to do business in Arapahoe and other counties in the State of Colorado. The new company has a three-year lease on Overland Park.

At San Angelo, a few days ago, the O 9 Cattle Co. sold to G. D. Sleeper of Muskogee, Indian Territory, 200 stock horses at $20 round and 40 saddle horses at $40 round. This is the best price that has been paid for stock horses in San Angelo in ten years.

SULKY NOTES.

Denver meeting opens to-day.

California trainers are heading for Sacramento.

The Breeders will offer purses for three year olds this year.

Tommy Britton 2:06½, may attempt to lower his record late in the season.

Over 50 high-bred pacing mares have been booked to Directly 2:03½ in Tennessee.

Parties are now offering to book mares to C. W. Williams' stallions for next season.

Will Durfee will start either Dr. Book or Charlie Mac in the 2:14 trot at Denver to-day.

Nearly a hundred horses are in training at the Sacramento track, which is in perfect condition.

Murray Howe says that he would not be surprised if Free Bond 2:04½, pulled a wagon in 2:02 or better this year.

The Fasig-Tipton Co. will hold another sale at Cleveland during the Grand Circuit meeting at that point.

McKinney has been bred to 103 mares. We doubt if any trotting stallion in America will beat that record this year.

As hinted in these columns two weeks ago, Millard Sanders will campaign the green pacer Funston, by Dictatus.

Geo. Beckers booked twenty mares to Zombro 2:11, the first week after he arrived at the Fair Grounds, Salem, Oregon.

James Geldeen, the Boston trainer, for the first time in several years, will this season take a stable through the Grand Circuit.

Admiral Dewey the three year old colt by Bingen 2:06½, dam Nancy Hanks 2:04, has been bred to five mares this season.

Says Columbus: "The truth is that the real lucky man is the one with a first-class trotter, or one suitable for track or road."

At the Cleveland Horse Show last week John A. McKerron 2:12½, by Nutwood Wilkes, won the first prize in the trotting stallion class.

Effe Powers 2:08½, won in 2:09 at a Baltimore matinee last month. The cold winter of the East has not kept her back much evidently.

It is stated that the noted show horse Lord Brilliant is by Johnny Mac, a standard-bred son of Egmont, and that his dam is by Stevens' Uwharrie.

The noted old mare Tempest 2:19, by Hawthorne, is to be bred to the fashionably bred stallion Baronot 2:11, owned at Etwinoma Steek Farm, Albany, N. Y.

From present returns it is known that out of 53 mares bred to Red Wilkes last year, 43 are with foal. This is a remarkable showing for a stallion of his age.

All the California horses that are over East have been in good health thus far. They should make a good showing in the races in which they are entered.

It is said that Thos. W. Lawson is considering entering and driving Boralma 2:08, in the challenge cup race when that event is decided at Readville next fall.

Star Pointer 1:59½, has been bothered greatly by rheumatism this spring, and it now looks as though he would never be seen at speed on the track again.

Few would guess from his pictures that Cresceus 2:04 is as large a horse as he is. He stands sixteen hands and half an inch high, and two weeks ago weighed 1140 pounds.

Allio Trout, the Boston trainer, fully expected to buy the California mare Dolly Dillon 2:11½, and was greatly disappointed when she was withdrawn from the Cleveland sale.

John Splan owns the chestnut trotter Eureka 2:15 by Ira. When he drove him in 2:14½ at Cleveland the other day Eureka wore no boots, and came the last quarter in 32½ seconds.

Miss Glencoe, four years old, says an exchange, is considered to be the fastest filly in the country. She is by Prose, dam by a son of Happy Medium. Ed de Cornea, New York, paid $2500 for her.

A special meeting of the Board of Review will be held at the office of The National Trotting Association, 650 Main street, Hartford, Conn., at 10 o'clock A. M., on Thursday, June 27, 1901, by order of the President.

The race for the Amateur Challenge Trophy may take place at Cleveland the first week in September. The contest now promises to be a great one. Some of the best trotters in the country will be named for it.

The 2:09 pace with which the Denver meeting will open to-day has eight entries, but there are no California horses among them. Six of the pacers entered have records of 2:12 or better. It should be quite a race.

Many entries will be made for the meeting to be given on the Fourth of July by the Golden Gate Park Driving Association at the Oakland track. Entries can be made every Tuesday evening at the club's room in the Palace Hotel.

One of the best members of C. A. Thompson's stable at Empire City Park is a two year old pacer by a son of Bow Bells, dam by a son of Red Wilkes. He has only been trained a couple of months but can pace an eighth at a two minute clip.

A swarm of bees attacked a pair of horses being driven by an employee of Miller & Lux near Los Banos last week, and both horses died from the effects of the stings. They were a very valuable pair of draft animals weighing about 1700 pounds each.

I. H. Mulholland of Independence, Inyo county, arrived at the Sacramento track this week with the stallion Osito 2:13½, the mare Edna R. 2:13 and four others that he will train and race at the Breeders meeting and other places on the California circuit.

Every California horseman who has the harness horse interests at heart, and who want to see prices kept up and a ready market for trotters and pacers, should enter his horses in training in some of the events advertised by the P. C. T. H. B. A. for its meeting at Sacramento. There are six stakes of $1000 each and entries close July 1st.

Good prices were paid for the Pierce Bros. consignment to the auction ring at the Occidental Horse Exchange last Friday. While the animals sold were a pretty fair lot as far as looks and breeding are concerned, there was quite a large proportion of unbroken horses from five to seven years old among them, and a few old mares of uncertain age.

There was not a quorum at the annual meeting of the Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeders' Association called for last Monday evening. The meeting was adjourned to next Wednesday, June 19th, at 3 P. M. Under the rules it takes fifteen members for a quorum and no proxies are allowed. There were about a dozen present last Monday night, and it is hoped that the requisite number will show up next Wednesday.

Scratches are caused by poor blood and dirt, a combination that should not be found existing in well regulated stables; but there may be found many cases of scratches every season. Mild cases can be cured by keeping the legs clean and dry and applying oxide of zinc ointment. Severe cases should be treated for some time with flaxseed poultices, and after the fever has subsided the ointment mentioned in preceding cases may be used.

Mr. A. W. Bruner of Los Angeles, who was formerly the Sacramento manager of the Earl Fruit Company, concluded to take his string of horses over East this year, and reached Cleveland three weeks ago. He has Harry Madison 2:27½, Our Lucky 2:13½ and the green but fast pacer Stanton Wilkes by Nutwood Wilkes 2:16½. Harry Madison and Stanton Wilkes are well entered through the Grand Circuit. It is stated that McHenry will pilot Mr. Bruner's horses in their races.

Alix 2:03½, queen of trotters, dropped a bay filly June 1st to Handspring 2:26½. It is to be hoped that this youngster will fare better than Sunol's colt, which died when it was three days old. Handspring, the sire of the filly, is the son of Prodigal 2:16, the brother of Patronage, Alix's sire, and him dam, Annie Wilton, is a double-producing daughter of Wilton 2:19½. His second and third dams were also great brood-mares, and as all their produce were trotters this royally bred youngster could be styled a thoroughbred trotter, if any one can.

There is a notice posted at the State Fair Grounds at Sacramento to the effect that owners occupying stalls with horses will be required to deposit with the Assistant Secretary $5 for each stall so occupied, the money to be refunded if the horse starts in races at the State Fair. The notice states, however, that "this rule will be suspended in the case of horses that are in training and entered in the Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeders' Association's meeting, which will be held from July 29th to August 3, 1901, but after that date they must make the deposit or vacate."

Hattie, the dam of Monterey 2:09½ and Montana 2:16, was bred to both Iran Alto 2:12½ and Billy Thornhill 2:24 last year and last month dropped a big lusty foal, which unfortunately got badly injured in the pasture and died. Hattie was bred back to Billy Thornhill and is thought to be certainly with foal. Billy Thornhill is an inbred Wilkes, being by Beverly Wilkes (son of Geo. Wilkes) and out of the great broodmare Emily by Geo. Wilkes. He is the sire of four trotters with records of 2:20 or better, and with better opportunities should rank high as a speed sire.

B. O. Van Bokkelen left San Jose last week for Denver, where he has a few entries in the races which begin to-day, and at the close of the meeting will go to Detroit and race through the Grand Circuit. He took with him Stamboullette 2:10½, the four-year-old McKinney colt, Tom Smith, and Vic Sheller, a son of Hambletonian Wilkes with no record. Both these unmarked horses should win money over East, as they are steady-going trotters and fast. Tom Smith worked a trial of 2:16½ last year, and is one of the stoutest bred and best moving colts ever raised in California.

Ed Geers has at least four in his stable at Louisville either one of which is faster than The Abbot or Lord Derby was with the same amount of training. Not one of these young horses was ever trained until last fall, and now each can show a half mile in 1:06. They are the brown stallion Shadow Chimes by Chimes, dam Charmer by Mambrino King, foaled in 1896; the bay stallion The Jeweler by Athanio, dam by Almont Jr.; the chestnut gelding King Charles by Mambrino King, dam by Almont Jr., foaled in 1896, and the chestnut gelding Lord March by Mambrino King, dam by Almont Jr.

The string of horses and carriages which Attorney-General Knox took with him to Washington contains fourteen head of high-bred ones. Among them is one team for which he paid $9500. It is said to be the finest road team in Washington, although there are several teams there whose owners place a higher value on them. The stable contains all kinds of carriages, and the harness used on the Attorney-General's horses is the finest that can be obtained. Mr. Knox says horses are his fad, and that after a hard day's work a person can get more enjoyment in a wagon behind a good team than by any other recreation.

The Stockton Mail says: Ex-Deputy Sheriff McCulloch, who has charge of an extensive farm on one of the islands, is suffering from anthrax, a disease which attacks horses and cattle, and he says he must have caught it from handling old harness. A swelling appeared on the back of his neck. At first he supposed it was a carbuncle. It continued to grow worse, and he finally applied to Dr. Dameron, who informed him that he was suffering from anthrax, which is a very dangerous malady. The physician removed the affected flesh, cutting away a piece as large as the palm of one's hand and about as thick.

C. C. Jerome, one of the best known of the old horsemen of Chicago, is dead. Exposure on the voyage to Europe brought on an illness which proved fatal directly after his arrival at Mannheim, Germany, on May 24th. He owned many noted horses, the most celebrated being his most recent purchases, Phenol 2:07½ and Tom Ogdon 2:07. Mr. Jerome was born in Canada sixty-eight years ago. He served in the Civil war as a surgeon, and, going to Chicago in 1869, he amassed a fortune in a few years. Nearly all he had was swept away in the great fire. He was a genius, however, and through inventions again became wealthy. He was known in the railroad world as the inventor of the metallic packing for locomotives, in the medical world as the inventor of a sanitary flour, and in the turf world as the inventor of the Jerome horse-shoe, the latter being made of aluminum, and had a passing popularity. Four years ago Mr. Jerome retired from business life in order that he could devote all his time to the horses and the farm at Wheaton, which were uppermost in his mind.

Trotting Editor Cogswell of the Boston Traveler has had a talk with trainer Jack Trout who, among other things, said: "How have I worked Anaconda? Well, the fastest milo has been in 2:14½, and the slowest 2:18½. Last Thursday I stepped him three miles in 2:18½, last half in 1:08½; 2:17½, last half 1:06½, and 2:16, last half in 1:05. He is a bad horse to work slow. If I tried to have him step slower than 2:20 he would have to be checked high, and even then I would be compelled to take hold of him a good deal harder than would be wise. But I will tell you one thing, he is broken now, which is something he was not when I got him. I jog him anywhere I please, around electric cars and down in the city of Dover, and he isn't afraid of a thing, nor wants to do anything mean. On the road I can let him move along a 2:40, 2:30 or 2:25 clip, as I please, and he is willing to obey my very wish. He is all right, too, when asked to speed the wrong way of the track. His speed can be controlled the same as on the road. It is when turned the right way of the track that he asks for his head, and you can bet I am not going to pull him double to go a slow mile when one in 2:18 or so is simply a good big jog for him."

Fasig-Tipton Co. have sprung a sensation on the trotting horse world by the announcement of the absolute dispersal sale of the Suburban Stock Farm. The executor has decided to dispose of all of the trotting horses belonging to the estate of W. E. Spier at the Old Glory auction in Madison Square Garden next November. The collection is one of the most select and celebrated in the world, comprising as it does such great horses as Directum 2:05½, champion four year old trotting stallion; Adbell 2:23, the champion yearling trotter; Keeler 2:13½; Jefferson Wilkes 2:14½; Copeland 2:09½; Sally Toler 2:06½; Amby 2:16½; Dainty Daffo 2:13½; Adabella (2) 2:25½; Jumbye 2:20½; Miss McGregor 2:13; Sappho 2:15½; Crescent 2:24½; Etiquette 2:18½; Nellie A. 2:13; Janie T. 2:14; Rose Croix 2:11½; Bermuda Girl 2:21½; Lulu Wilkes 2:22½; Mary Celeste 2:17½; Lady Elsie, Georgie Gaines, etc. It is believed that there are a larger number of stake and futurity winners among the brood mares in the Suburban stud than on any other farm in the world, and all of them will be bred to the champion Directum. Since the Glenview dispersal of 1886, no such valuable trotting stud has been offered at auction. The entire lot consists of about 130 head.

Maplewood Farm horses are being trained at the Dover, New Hampshire, track. Tom Marsh is handling them and there is grand material in the string, writes a correspondent of an Eastern journal. Idolita 2:12, the largest money winner of 1899; Kingmond 2:09, the contending horse in the M. and M. of 1899, and who finished first or second the entire seven heats; Who Is It 2:10½, the only gray horse in the entire outfit; Belle Curry 2:18, who proved the most consistent race horse the stable had out last year; Phoebe Onward 2:12½, one of the latest purchases at a Chicago sale; and Axtello 2:15, a money winner in the M. and M. last year, are all the record horses that represent the farm this year that are at the track. The only missing member is Betonica 2:10½, who is taking his early "prep" at the farm track. He is the only pacer in the Jones string and was purchased at a Cleveland sale in '98 for a long price, with a big story. He has trained off each season since, and is booked for another trial this year, having been entered in the Grand Circuit. The green element in the stable is something swell, and all of them were carried over last year without hearing the bell tap officially. The first one of importance is the M. and M. candidate, Eleata, by Dexter Prince. She is a large black mare that looks fit to start in any stake and is doing fine in her work. The King, by Clay Green, is a gelding that has been entered in quite a number of Grand Circuit meetings. Carria Caswell and Juntorio, both by Altivo, have been kept over for two seasons, and the same can be said of Katrinka G., sister to Klatawah 2:05½, by Steinway. Although an own sister to a former pacing champion, Katrinka G. takes to the trot. All the horses have been liberally entered in the Grand Circuit and start in at Detroit.

THE SADDLE.

Triumphs of Inbreeding.

In view of the fact that the struggles of the thoroughbred race horses are daily followed with the utmost interest by thousands of Americans who are deeply interested in the problem of breeding champions, it is worthy of especial note at this time that the season of 1901 is witnessing a series of utmost unequivocal triumphs for the policy of inbreeding.

Beyond all questions the most important winners at Morris Park were Banastar in the senior division, Commando among the three year olds, and Blue Girl and Cunard among the juveniles. The pedigrees of these horses, therefore, become of thorough interest and importance, and a study of their blood lines will reveal more than one astonishing combination. No less than three of the quartette are desperately inbred amounting almost to incest in one instance, while the fourth—Cunard—is evidently the result of a 'nick' of inbreeding which is eminently scientific. Indeed these pedigrees are so remarkable that they must necessarily possess no little interest for the average reader who takes comparatively little interest in breeding matters to say nothing of their genuine importance to those who are directly concerned in the production of the American thoroughbred.

Commando, the sensational three year old of the year, possesses no less than five crosses of Lexington His sire, Dominio, was by Himyar, a son of a Lexington maro. Dominio's dam, Mannie Grey, was inbred in two free generations to Lexington, being by Enquirer (son of a Lexington mare), out of a daughter of War Dance, who was also by Lexington. Thus we find three of Commando's five Lexingtons furnished by his sire.

Commando's two remaining crosses of Lexington are found in the pedigree of his grandam, Guenn, who was herself inbred in two free generations to the 'blind hero of Woodburn.' Her sire, Flood, was by Norfolk, son of Lexington, while her dam Glendew was out of Glenrose, a daughter of Lexington. Commando traces in tail female to the Montague mare, which is also the female ancestress of Lexington. Commando does not trace through the Levity line, however, as erroneously stated of late in several journals, but is from the Maid of the Oaks branch, tracing to imp. Diamond.

Banastar's most notable inbreeding is to the orthodox Leamington-Lexington cross. His sire, Farandole, was by Enquirer (by Leamington, out of a Lexington mare), out of Waltz by Lexington. Banastar's dam, Blessing, was by Onondaga, he by Leamington, out of Susan Beane by Lexington. Blessing's grandam, Mariposa, was by Jack Malone, a son of Lexington. Banastar, therefore, has four crosses of Lexington, along with double Leamington, to which later horse his parents both closely trace in male-line descent.

Both Commando and Banastar have two great female lines in common. Their sires each trace to the Dance family, founded by imp. Gallopade, while Commando's fourth dam, Glenrose, is a full sister to Susan Beane, whose son Onondaga sired Banastar's dam.

Blue Girl, winner of the Juvenile and Eclipse at Morris Park, is desperately inbred to Maggie B. B., the dam of Iroquois, Harold, etc. This is the case amounting almost to incest, to which reference has already been made. Blue Girl's sire, Sir Dixon, is by imp. Billet, out of Jaconet, she by imp. Leamington, out of Maggie B. B.

Bonnie Blue II., dam of Blue Girl is by Hindoo, out of Red and Blue, she by Alarm out of the same Maggie B. B., who was herself by imp. Australian, out of Madeline, she by Boston, out of Magnolia by imp. Glencoe.

Hindoo, Bonnie Blue's sire, was himself by Virgil (son of Vandal, he by Glencoe), out of Florence, by Lexington, and his blood, therefore, provides a triple affinity when combined with Blue Girl's double Maggie B. B., for Boston was himself the sire of Lexington.

All this is obviously true of Blues, the three year old full brother to Blue Girl, but the two are totally different in color and individuality. Blue Girl evidently strains after Maggie B. B., and should be an equally great mother of winners when relegated to stud life.

Cunard, winner of the National Stallion race, has a much more inbred pedigree than might appear at first glance. He is by imp. Goldfinch, out of Lucania. Goldfinch is by Ormonde, out of Thistle, she by Scottish Chief, who was by Lord of the Isles, son of Touchstone, Lucania is by imp. Sir Modred, out of Schoolgirl, she by Pat Malloy, out of Glenluine by imp. Glenelg.

The potent "nick" or inbreeding in the pedigree of Cunard consists in the strength with which we find the Touchstone blood of Goldfinch's dam returned in Lucania's sire. This is the accepted "colt nick" in scientific breeding. Imp. Sir Modred's sire, Traucer, was by The Libel, he by Pantaloon, out of Pasquinade, full sister to Touchstone. Sir Modred's dam, Idalia, was by Cambuscan, he by Newminster, son of Touchstone.

Cunard also possesses a steady "outside" return of his male line descent from the Stockwell line of Eclipse. Lucania's grandam, Glenluine, was by Imp. Glenelg, he by Citadel, son of Stockwell. Goldfinch, as we all know, traces through the great Ormonde Bend Or-Doncaster to Stockwell in tail mail.

Conroy, the sensational three year old winner of the Brooklyn handicap, is also an inbred animal, and was plainly produced by returning to his sire, St. Leonards, the best strains of his dam. To illustrate: St. Leonards is by Imp. St. Blaise, out of Belladonna, she by Kingfisher (son of Lexington), out of Bellona, she by The Ill Used (son of Breadalban, he by Stockwell), out of Beatrice, she by Kentucky (son of Lexington), out of Imp. Bernice, by Stockwell.

It is evident to the veriest tyro in breeding matters that Belladonna's double Stockwell and double Lexington at once become (even if only by sheer strength of numbers) her "best" strains, and we have only to make a cursory examination of the pedigree of Conroy's dam Lady Invercauld, to realize how nicely she returned to St. Leonards the best strains of his dam. Lady Invercauld, in short, is by Powhatan, out of imp. Invercauld, by St. Albans, and we find her strongest affinity for Sir Leonard's dam in the fact that Powhatan was out of a Lexington maro, while St. Albans is a son of Stockwell.

The Withers hero, The Parader, is also inbred on much the same plan. He is by Longstreet, out of Pretense, she by Plenipo. Longstreet's dam, Semper Idem, was by Glen Athol (son of Blair Athol), out of Semer Vive, she by Waverly (son of imp. Australian), out of Semper Felix, she by imp. Phaeton (son of King Tom), out of Crucifix, she by Lexington.

To all these great individuals Pretense brought a strong nick of individual inbreeding. Her sire, Plenipo, was by imp. Bonnie Scotland (son of Queen Mary, Blair Athol's grandam), out of Dora, she by imp. Australian, out of Lindora, by Lexington. More than this, Pretense's dam, Bonlotte, was by imp. King Ernest (son of King Tom), out of Pouch, she by Harry Bassett (son of Lexington), out of imp. Wombat, she by West Australian, who sired imp. Australian.

Thus do Commando Banastar, Blue Girl, Cunard, Conroy and The Parader, one and all, bear eloquent testimony to the policy of scientific inbreeding.

W. H. ROWE.

Three Remarkable Brothers.

What may be called three great brothers, all three successful sires, their get showing phenomenal speed as well as endurance and stamina, are St. Carlo, Prince of Monaco, and St. Julien. They are all by imp. St. Blaise, out of Carina, by Kingfisher. They come from an illustrious family, and a family with a record, says a writer in the N. Y. Telegraph.

These three crosses have produced no less than seventeen stake winners, a family from which spring racehorses from every branch. The fillies seem to be equally as good as the colts, a trait possessed by the male line from Touchstone, Newminster, Hermit, St. Blaise, and so on down to his sons, and a male line that rarely ever produces a rattle-headed representative, even among the fillies.

As an evidence of the phenomenal speed sired by all three of these distinguished brothers, it is only necessary to note that, young as the present racing season is, these three brothers already have to their credit five 2-year-old performers that have scored track records in 1901, viz.:

Brunswick, by St. Carlo, track record in California, four and a half furlongs in 53½ seconds.

Autumn Leavos, a filly, by Prince of Monaco, four furlongs, at Louisville, winning the Debutante stakes in .47½.

Sting, a filly, by Prince of Monaco, four furlongs in 48½, at Latonia.

Myrtle Dell, a filly, by St. Julien, four furlongs in 48½, at Newport.

The chestnut colt Blonnonworth, at his first start at Chicago, ran the first half mile in 48½, and the five furlongs in 1:01½, defeating among others several of the cracks out in the West this year.

Those three sires not only produce sensational speed but endurance and stamina as well, as is evidenced by the fact that Ruinart, by St. Carlo ran one mile and an eighth in 1:53½, with 118 pounds up, and one and one-fourth miles, winning the Burns handicap (San Francisco) in 2:06½, with 116 pounds up.

Another one of St. Carlo's, Zamar, won no less than nineteen races as a 2-year-old—a record for his year in the number of races won by a 2 year-old.

Fancywood, who won eight races last year as a 2-year-old, ran a mile in 1:40½, close to the record for that distance by a 2-year-old filly.

Colbert, as a 3-year-old, by Prince of Monaco, won twice at two miles, in 3:30 and 3:34, and was never beaten over a distance of ground except when conceding great weight.

Note the record of these four horses alone from this family close up:

King Crab, High Test, Chatbam and Cruiser started in over 500 races and won money in over 60% of their starts, and all raced to a green old age.

Another of St. Blaise's sons, Belisarius, holds the record for the largest number of races won in this country—103.

This family shows great stamina as far back as the fifth cross, Agnes. She produced the great Dalesman, who was the sire of the famous Lowlander, who ran a mile in 1:38 more than twenty-five years ago. He won the Mentmore and Ascot Triennial Stakes, and other races.

As a 4-year-old Dalesman won up to three miles, and Evalina won up to two miles and five furlongs, which goes to show again that it is a family of remarkable stamina as well as phenomenal speed far back in the pedigree.

Back of Agnes to the Walton mare begins a line of winners that runs back to even beyond the days of O'Kelly's famous Eclipse, which cover a period of over 200 years.

A New Lease Made.

The California Jockey Club has leased the Emeryville race track for ten years at $500 a month. The lease provides for an option on the track for seven years more on the same terms. The lease is non-transferable, except as security for the $400,000 indebtedness of the California Jockey Club to the Mercantile Trust Company, which advanced funds to secure the bonded debt of the San Francisco Jockey Club, assumed by the California Club when the recent consolidation was effected. Provision is made that in case hostile legislation should make racing unprofitable the track may be used for some other form of amusement. But no saloons, stores, restaurants or hotels, other than those already conducted at the grand stand, shall be permitted on the grounds. At the expiration of the lease all the improvements made by the jockey club shall become the property of the owner, Mrs. Margaret Mee. The club is bound to carry at least $60,000 insurance with which to replace losses by fire and to provide facilities for fighting fire. All due diligence is to be used by the club in preventing damage or loss from this source. All the present structures, lawns and fencing, as well as any other structures erected in future, must be kept in first class condition by the lessee and no improvements may be added, taken down or altered without the consent of Mrs. Mee. The taxes are to be paid by the jockey club. The lease is signed by T. H. Williams and R. B. Milroy for the club and by Margaret M. Mee in her own behalf.

SADDLE NOTES.

It has been definitely decided not to send Conroy to Chicago to run in the American Derby. The crack 3-year-old will be carefully prepared for the Suburban.

A dispatch from London dated June 6th says that the House of Commons that day appropriated fifteen million pounds to purchase transports and horses for use in the South African war. This means that the Britishers will continue buying horses in America, and if the Boers manage to hold out a year or two longer (and they seem to be doing pretty well just now) the prices of horses in this country will go still higher.

Castleton, the banner farm in the celebrated blue grass district of Kentucky, is for sale. It contains 617 acres, all in grass, has first-class improvements, and is in the neighborhood of the celebrated Walnut Hall Farm, where so many champion trotters are being bred, and also close to Elmendorf, Mr. J. B. Haggins' recent purchase. Castleton is but four and a half miles from Lexington, and is now leased by Mr. James R. Keene of New York. The present owners of Castleton are not residents of Kentucky, and desire to sell that their interests may be divided. See the advertisement in this issue.

Doings in Dogdom.

We are pleased to note the recovery by Mr. D'Aquin of the Fox Terrier Aldon Artist. The dog returned to his master's residence of his own accord after several days' absence.

We announced, three weeks ago, the service of Woodcote Wonder to L. A. Klein's Bull Terrier bitches, Belle Balsamo and Nancy. The latter bitch was sent to Bayview Brigadier instead of Wonder. Both stud dogs are owned by Mr. O. O. Heydenfeldt of this city.

John Tait's The Referee and Phil Wand's Gibson Girl, two English Setter puppies by Count Danstone out of Flora W., both winners of first puppies at the May show, died this week of distemper. The puppies were supposed to have contracted the disease during the bench show.

Phil C. Meyer has shipped Beauty of the Joaquin (Alta Millo—Queen of the Joaquin) to Mrs. Lee of the Alta Kennels, Toledo, O. Beauty will be shown at Buffalo. She will be bred to Alta Watch. Mrs. Lee has expressed to Mr. Meyer her strong desire to keep the Alta Millo type of head in her kennels.

Frank Richards is at Stewart, Minn., and has in training, only the Verona Kennels' dogs. The string is composed of Verona Cap, Verona Diablo, Verona Deva and Verona Wilhelmina, All-Age dogs. The Derby entries will be Verona Polly, Verona Win and Verona Babe, all by Ch. Count Gladstone IV. out of Countess K., and Verona Count Gladstone IV. by Ch. Count Gladstone IV.—Lady of Verona.

Glenwood Kennels at San Mateo has quite a number of youngsters on hand just now. Among them are a St. Bernard litter of three dogs and three bitches out of Alta Maud by Le King. Four young Cocker, one a dog, by Champion Havoc out of La Paloma, Alta Rachael's puppies number five, all dogs, and sired by Le King. The above lot of young dogs have all been sold except five St. Bernard puppies. Two of these Mr. Meyer will keep for future breeding purposes.

Among the kennel matrons who are soon expected to declare canine dividends are two Cocker bitches, a St. Bernard bitch and the Bull Terrier Newmarket Queen which was served by Woodcote Wonder.

The judges at the Pan-American show will be: St. Bernards, Mastiffs, Bloodhounds, Deerhounds, Basset Hounds, Bull Terriers, Boston Terriers, Fox Terriers, Scottish Terriers, Dachshunde, Yorkshire Terriers, Whippets and Schipperkes—James Mortimer.

Great Danos, Russian Wolfhounds, Greyhounds, Field Spaniels, Cocker Spaniels, Clumber Spaniels, Irish Water Spaniels, Poodles, Toy Spaniels and Pugs—Chas. H. Mason.

Foxhounds, Pointers, English, Irish and Gordon Setters—William Tallman.

English Bulldogs, French Bulldogs, Irish Terriers, Airedale Terriers, Welsh Terriers, Skye Terriers, Pomeranians and Miscellaneous Classes—C. G. Hopton. Collies—William C. Hunter (Secretary Collie Club). Beagles—George F. Reed.

The aftermath of the recent bench show is replete with complications of various kinds—among others there is just now a jolly row going on over an award to Bull Terriers. A St. Bernard mix-up was also on the card. Both cases have been settled, temporarily, by the Pacific Advisory Board. The records of the awards in both cases have been sustained. Whatever the merits of either case, we will not here discuss. The wrangle would not have occurred at all had the method of scoring and also the scoring books been properly arranged. Another matter in connection with awards has been the objectionable practice of paying cash prizes and giving out medals three or more weeks after the show closed. Why this system should have been tolerated so long is certainly a matter of criticism against an executive officer who has been the subject of a great deal of unmerited praise.

"In all treatment of a sick dog remember you are dealing with a highly sensitive and nervous patient," writes Dr. Lane in All About Dogs. "Be very gentle, avoid roughness, or anything likely to alarm him. In giving him any liquid medicine do not open his mouth, but, placing him between your knees, with his face looking in the same direction as your own, gently raise his jaw, and, pulling his lips away from his teeth on one side of his mouth, to form a cup or funnel, very slowly pour from bottle or spoon the quantity he is to have into it. Keep his head raised for a minute or two, and if he does not swallow the dose insert a spoon between his front teeth. This will have the effect of drawing off his attention from the medicine, and he will usually swallow at once. If the dose is a pill, bolus or anything solid, hold his head the same way as before mentioned, but with the left hand under lower jaw, press firmly on each side with thumb and finger at the junction of upper and lower jaws. This will usually cause him to open his mouth, when the dose should be put into the mouth as far back as possible over the tongue (or he will spit it out) and close the jaws somewhat sharply, and in most cases the deed is done. If any trouble arises with the action of his front paws this may be got over by wrapping him round with a shawl or coarse apron. When once you have got into the way of it, you will be surprised how simple it is, I am quite sure a practiced owner or kennelsman would dose a dozen dogs while a novice was making a bungle over one."

Early History of Count Gladstone IV.

In a communication to the American Field, John White recounts some interesting history concerning this famous dog, who was a field trial winner himself and produced more winning sons and daughters than any other English Setter who ever ran in the United States up to date:

"In contradiction of some errors made by one of your contemporaries regarding the public performance of Count Gladstone IV, I wish to say that he was bred by Mr. Charles Tucker of Stanton Depot, Tenn. Mr. Adolph Dill of Richmond, Va., got him when six or eight weeks old, and sent him to his farm, about three miles from Richmond. His dogs were in charge of a negro who disliked Count Gladstone and whipped him severely for going out too far while at exercise. This rough treatment came within an ace of spoiling Count permanently, for in order to avoid the licking, he adopted a plan of hiding himself in a ditch or hole and staying there until night or late in the evening, then sneaking into his kennel. When Count was about a year old, Mr. Dill drove me out to his farm to look at his dogs; he had little hopes of ever making a good field dog of Count, judging from the accounts he had of hiding away. I saw the puppy and in spite of the reports of his bad behavior I rather liked him, so Mr. Dill told me I could take him home and either keep him or give him away unless I thought he would make a first-class shooting dog. I do not think Mr. Dill ever expected to hear from the puppy again, as he had so little confidence in his making a good dog.

At the end of two months I wrote Mr. Dill that Count Gladstone was in my opinion the best I ever saw at his age, and that I had almost cured the dog of hiding away, and I advised him to keep the dog, which he did, and he arranged with me to train and run him, if worthy, in the trials. He was very hard to train and develop to a field trial dog in consequence of his bad treatment when a puppy, besides he was very frail and delicate in health and constitution, but he could stand more work than any dog in my kennels, of which there were forty odd. Count was a few months too old for the Derby, hence I ran him in the All-Age stakes of the Eastern and Central trials in 1891. As retrieving was required at that time and Count was not finished and did not retrieve, I think a division of third was not bad for one so young as he. The following season he was taken down with a severe illness a few weeks before the Eastern trials, and was not in good condition for the trials, but nevertheless got second. Before he left me that season, I thoroughly trained him, making him one of the very best retrievers.

It was during the following season that Mr. Hitchcock gave Mr. Avent a half interest in Count for running him through the whole circuit, as I was not going to attend any but the Eastern trials. That Mr. Dill is a thorough sportsman is evidenced by the fact that he sold the dog to me for just what he had cost him, notwithstanding he was offered double the amount by others. After getting the dog I transferred him to Mr. Hitchcock, and for the same price I had paid, although I had some big offers—one, an offer of two hundred dollars, to put a price on him. Count Gladstone was one of the few really high-class field dogs who never blinked and never bolted, and he never tail hunted, or left his handler to follow some other gun, nor did he ever quit hunting, to my knowledge. Thus without any of those vices and possessing, as he did, so many virtues, I believe his blood will tell in favor of the English Setter for many years to come.

The Old English Mastiff.

The falling off in the breeding and exhibition of Mastiffs is not confined entirely to America. The following communication from W. K. Tauton in a recent number of the English Stock-Keeper is interesting. There is, on the Coast, a number of devotees to the Mastiff fancy, but unhappily the penchant for this particular breed here, seems to have been affected by some backward influence, notwithstanding the great amount of advertising and mention the Mastiff specialty club and one or two individual owners or breeders have received and through which an attempt has been made to boom the dogs. Mr. Tauton in the paper referred to says:

I am disappointed that Mr. Redwar's letter has only called forth a reply from Mr. Leadbetter, as it would be interesting to learn the views of others why this breed receives and has received for some time past, so little attention.

Mr. Leadbetter attributes the small number of entries to the fact that, although an exhibitor may own ten, fifteen or twenty dogs, only three or four are exhibited at a time. I hardly think that there has been any one for some time past, until quite recently, who has owned ten Mastiffs at the same time, and very few have possessed even half that number. As the paucity of entries at shows is not a matter of recent occurrence, some other reason must be sought to account for the great lack of interest in the breed. I sincerely hope that the Mastiffs will never be allowed to die out, but that good Mastiffs are getting scarcer and scarcer can hardly be denied. I quite agree with Mr. Leadbetter that exhibitors should receive every inducement to bring out their young stock, and I should be more hopeful that the offer of special prizes for novices would have this effect if I were satisfied that there are a sufficient number of novices in existence to compete for these prizes. Certainly the number of entries in novices classes where these have been provided has been anything but encouraging.

It would be interesting, as well as instructive, if we could ascertain the reason of so little interest being taken in the breed for the last few years, and if any of your readers can throw any light upon the subject, I am sure many would be much indebted to them for doing so.

I believe myself that the rage for abnormally short muzzles which existed a few years since did much to damage the breed, as my experience is that, whatever may have been the views of a limited number of breeders, the public generally were not admirers of the Mastiffs with extremely short muzzles. This fashion brought with it many faults, dogs deteriorated in height, length of body and in other essential Mastiff qualities. I hope that it will not be thought that in raising my voice against an excessively short muzzle I am an advocate for a Mastiff having a long one. I quite agree with all the leading Mastiff breeders that a Mastiff's muzzle should be short, but it should be in proportion to the dog, and not the shortest it is possible to get. I look upon width, depth and squareness—three most difficult qualities to obtain—as of greater importance than mere shortness.

If a few breeders would take up the Mastiff with a determination to improve it and aim at breeding good all-round dogs, much would be done to bring back the popularity of this ancient breed. It must be remembered, however, that no improvement may be apparent for some time, and any one hoping to breed a perfect Mastiff, or anything approaching, at his first attempt will in all probability be grievously disappointed.

Norman J. Stewart has now at his kennels the Irish Terriers Wilmount Highwayman and Champion Endcliffe Shela.

L. A. Klein's Bulldog bitch Baby Jen, in whelp to Ivel Rustic and the Dach bitch Ch. Venlolo, in whelp to Col. W. S. Martin's Rex M. have been placed with J. C. Berrett of San Jose.

Chas. R. Harker of San Jose has taken the Bulldog bitch Chaddy temporarily from L. A. Klein. Chaddy is in whelp to Ivel Rustic.

L. A. Klein has placed the Bull Terrier bitch Belle Balsamo, in whelp to Champion Woodcote Wonder, with O. J. Albee at Lawrence, Santa Clara county.

Laury Adams had the misfortune to lose his Irish Setter Toronto Mike recently. The dog was hurt by a street car and subsequently died of the injuries received.

At the Traps.

The Capital City Bluerock Club of Sacramento held its regular shoot last Sunday at the Kimball & Upson grounds near the American river, where thirty shooters faced the traps. The day was perfect and some very good scores were made. Stevens took all the glory in the club match, breaking 24 out of a possible 25. He also smashed 49 out of the first 50.

The attendance at the Sacramento traps from now on will be larger, for the shooters are going to get into form for the tournament to be held there July 13th and 14th. The encouragement received from the north indicates that the shoot will be the biggest ever held in Sacramento.

The team shoot of six men, for the championship of Northern California, was to have taken place at Red Bluff in May, but owing to their long program they were unable to pull it off. The Chico team, which now holds the trophy, has consented to let the championship be decided at the shoot to be held there. Keswick, Redding, Red Bluff, Chico, Marysville, Willows, Williams and Green Valley will send shooters to take part.

Following are the scores made by the Capital City shooters on the 9th inst:

There was a good attendance at the regular shoot of the Sacramento Gun Club, held on Eckhardt's shooting grounds at East Park, on the 9th inst., resulting in some very good scores.

During the day there was a match at bluerocks between a team from the Oak Park Gun Club and one composed of Sacramento Club members, as a sort of preliminary tryout for the match between teams from these clubs which is to take place on the same grounds to-morrow. It was at fifteen "birds" per man, with five men on each side. It resulted in a tie of 48 birds, and was shot off at 10 birds, the Sacramento team winning by a score of 34 to 28.

*Back scores.

A press dispatch dated June 11th, from London, announces that the American shooters were in the lead on the first day's trap shooting during the great international match. "The Anglo-American trap shoot opened to-day at the Middlesex Club grounds. The weather was bright and there was a fair attendance, including many ladies. A high wind prevented good records.

In a preliminary sweepstakes at twenty-five birds, R. O. Heikes of Dayton, O., killed 15 straight; W. R. Crosby of O'Fallon, Ill., and Fred Gilbert of Spirit Lake, Ia., were the next highest with 22 each.

T. A. Marshall of Keithsburg, Ill., won the next sweepstakes with 22 out of 25.

In the International shoot, W. R. Crosby took 19 out of the first 20 and 17 out of the second 20. At the end of the 400 birds the score was:

Americans 319, British 303.

The total scores of the trap shooters for the day were: Americans 866, British 801.

Frank Parmalee of Omaha won the live bird contest yesterday with 25 straight out of a possible 25.

The betting on the American team, which began at 6 to 5 against, closed to-night at 10 to 1 in their favor. Nevertheless, Paul North and other American sportsmen present declare that all the members of the team are shooting far beneath their usual level. It was fully expected that the team could kill 90 per cent. of the birds, but to-day's result showed less than 87 per cent.

The high winds and the unfamiliar surroundings had much to do with this. Crosby led the American score with 93 birds, Budd secured 89, Tripp and Heikes 88 each and the lowest was 69.

As the British team used both barrels and the Americans only one barrel, it was interesting to note that the British team used 33 to 40 per cent. more shells, with less results in the total score."

The personnel of the American team is as follows: J. A. R. Elliott, R. O. Heikes, Fred Gilbert, Ernest Tripp, F. S. Parmalee, W. R. Crosby, J. S. Fanning, C. M. Powers, Tom Marshall, B. Leroy Woodard, Ed Banks and C. W. Budd.

The second day of the international trap shoot was resumed under handicapping weather conditions. Rain, with varying winds, fell during the afternoon, making good shooting extremely difficult. The American team, however, seemed to have gathered much confidence from their work of the first day and an increasing familiarity with their local surroundings.

At the end of the sixtieth round, when each side had shot at 600 targets, the English team had broken 476 and the American 524. Out of the first sixty targets W. R. Crosby broke 58, Fred Gilbert 56, John S. Fanning 55 and R. O. Heikes 54. This match closed for the day in a driving rain with the following totals: Americans 877, English 794.

When the contest closed on Wednesday afternoon it was believed that Thursday's shoot would surely end the match in favor of the Americans. Their average on the second day was decidedly better than that on Tuesday, but the team will be disappointed if Thursday's averages, under anything like favorable conditions, does not exceed 90 per cent. Crosby led Wednesday's score with 95 per cent. of breaks, Heikes and Gilbert with 93 per cent. each and Tripp with 90 per cent. No member of the American team secured less than 87, whereas the highest English score was 87 per cent. In view of the fact that Thursday's match will decide the contest a number of sweepstakes have been arranged for Friday and Saturday and a live bird contest for Monday, after which the American team will go to Glasgow, proceeding from that city to Germany and France.

The team to represent Great Britain and Ireland in the Anglo-American Clay Bird Match for £1000 on June 11th, 12th, 13th, 14th and 15th, is now complete, and includes with reserves, the following well known clay bird shots: J. H. Butt, Middlesex Gun Club; F. M. Brown, Middlesex Gun Club; J. G. Back, Surrey Gun Club; H. J. Cave, Middlesex Gun Club; H. P. Diple, Middlesex Gun Club; E. Dobie, Scottish Gun Club; W. Ellicott, Middlesex Gun Club; L. Greenhill, Ealing Gun Club; F. Inglis, Scottish Gun Club; F. Izzard, Middlesex Gun Club; W. L. Joynt, Gun Club of Ireland; Capt. E. Pellier Johnson, Middlesex Gun Club; W. B. Morris, Middlesex Gun Club; C. Morris, Hastings Gun Club; D. O'Connor, Middlesex Gun Club; J. Paul, Middlesex Gun Club; C. Palmer, Birmingham Gun Club; J. F. Pike, Birmingham Gun Club; R. F. L. Turner, Surrey Gun Club; W. Williams, Middlesex Gun Club, and W. T. Walkins, also of Middlesex Gun Club.

Spotted Animals.

Perhaps the most interesting of all subjects connected with popular natural history is that of the coloration of animals, its origin and causes, and its present use in the economy of nature, quoted a writer in The Asian, on the various species of white and black animals, both normal and abnormal. We now propose to follow him in his discussion on some of those species whose coats are distinguished by spots and blotches on grounds of various hue.

The most noteworthy group of animals displaying this form of coloration is of course the cat family, the majority of which exhibit spotted markings in a more or less pronounced degree either in the immature or adult animal, if not in both, so that these indications seem to point to a common spotted ancestor of all felines.

The panthers and their nearer allies are so well known as to call for no particular notice, but it may be remarked that the jaguar is distinguishable from the leopard in having a central spot to each rosette. It is also noteworthy that the young of the cheetah or hunting leopard is of a uniform color, the spots being either non-existent or obscured by the overgrowth of fur.

The young of the lion are distinctly spotted, and the same remark applies to the puma—evidence of spotted ancestors, for the growth of the individual may be taken as typical of the development of the race. Tigers also are frequently characterized by an arrangement of spots, and a skin in the possession of a friend of ours is thus marked between the stripes over a considerable portion of the back and sides. Many cats, such as the ocelot, show a combination of stripes and blotches, into which forms of marking the original spots have probably blended by a gradual process of agglomeration.

Of the lynxes, the caracal is marked underneath by indistinct rufous spots, and most animals of this family present similar characteristics of coloration, varying in intensity with locality and season. One of these animals, the pardine lynx, is almost as thickly spotted as the hunting leopard.

A similar coloration prevails among the civets and palm-civets to that obtaining in the genus Felis, some being spotted and some striped in a more or less distinct manner. Of the three existing species of hyena the largest one, found in Africa, is the spotted hyena.

With regard to dogs, the domestic species have become so unnaturally modified that it is difficult to indicate the origin whence they sprung. It is noteworthy, however, that the majority exhibit a similar blotched or spotted character, and in this connection it is interesting to note that the Cape hunting-dog has spots or blotches varying in form and manner of dispersion. Of other carnivorous animals it may be noted that the unsavory skunk is generally striped, but some species are spotted.

The common seal is thickly spotted, and another species is so conspicuously marked in this manner as to have been given the name of sea-leopard.

The various spotted kinds of deer are well known, but it may not be generally known that the young of the swamp-deer are spotted, and that the hog-deer exhibits the same characteristics only during the summer season, assuming a coat of uniform color during the remainder of the year. Many African antelopes are striped or spotted, the face being specially subject to markings which serve to protect the animal from observation when standing "at gaze." Thus the kudu has stripes on the body, but white spots and splashes on the face, throat and limbs.

There are two theories regarding the uses of marking and coloration, one being that this distinction is for the purposes of recognition, so that animals are enabled to recognize others of their own species; the other, and more generally accepted idea, is that the coloration is intended for protective purposes. Presumably natural selection would in both cases be the means of development of particular forms of marking. Mr. Wallace is the great exponent of the theory of recognition marking, whilst however he agrees that it may be combined with protective coloration. Referring to the necessity for recognition marks to obviate the admixture of species in regions inhabited by many species of nearly the same size and general form Mr. Wallace says: "It is interesting to note that these markings for recognition are very slightly developed in the antelopes of the woods and marshes. The wood-hunting bosch-bok (T. Sylvaticus) goes in pairs and has hardly any distinctive markings on its dusky chestnut coat, but the male alone is horned. The large and handsome kudu frequents brushwood, and its vertical white stripes are no doubt protective, while its magnificent spiral horns afford easy recognition. The eland, which is an inhabitant of the open plain, is uniformly colored, being sufficiently recognizable by its large size and distinctive form; but the Derbayan eland is a forest animal, and has a protectively striped coat. In like manner the fine Speke's antelope, which lives entirely in swamps and among reeds, has pale vertical stripes on the sides (protective), with white markings on the face and breast for recognition." There appears, however, no reason to suppose that markings on the face and breast are for recognition more than for protection. They are in fact more necessary for protective purposes on those parts of the body than elsewhere, so that the animal may be afforded protection from discovery when standing at gaze to observe the approach of danger.

There is every probability that spotted animals are all so marked for protective purposes, and it is noticeable that they are generally inhabitants of localities where such coloration is protective. Thus the leopard usually inhabits bush jungle where his spots accord so well with the sunlight and shadows of his surroundings. The lion, frequenting more open plain, has a coat of uniform hue which blends with the color of the ground.

So the spotted deer, inhabiting the sunlit glades on the banks of rivers is afforded protection by its variegated coat, while the sambar, a denizen of deeper forests, is less conspicuous in the depths of the thickets than he would be were he spotted with white. The seasonal variation in the marking of the hog-deer points to the same conclusion, the spots being present during the summer season when the state of the forest renders them desirable for protective purposes, whilst the uniform hue assumed at other seasons is then preferable for purposes of concealment.

ROD.

The Two Fishermen.

Oh, he was a sport of the titled sort,
With a natty black suit and a big black cigar,
And he said that his wish was to land all the fish
That would rise to a fly in the brooks near and far.
His rod was of steel, and his splinter new creel
Astonished the natives that lived thereabout,
While his brilliant-hued flies filled them all with surprise,
He had every device for the taking of trout.

He started at dawn, ere the last stars were gone,
For the head of the brook where the fishing was fine.
"I will not do a thing but bring back a fine string,"
He observed with a wink that was large and benign.
Half a mile up the brook this hot sport overtook
A harefooted boy with a cut willow pole,
Who clearly was bent—from the way that he went—
For the head of the brook—the town fisherman's goal.

They both angled away through the warm summer day—
Went wading through riffles or casting in pools,
Worked over the shoals and dipped into the holes,
Chasing minnows ahead of them, schools upon schools.
The city man's flies loitered off for a rise
On the edge of a riffle, with counterfeit squirm,
While the small country lad, with what tackle he had,
Depended alone on the succulent worm.

They returned to the town as the red sun went down,
Both torn on the bushes, and tired all out;
And the small farmer youth, to be honest, forsooth,
Confessed he had landed all day not a trout.
But the smart city chap took his creel on his lap,
And emptied out strapping big fish by the score.
"I'm no liar," he said, "but I've got on the dead,
There hundred and twenty, perhaps a few more."

The lesson, good friends, that this plain tale intends
Is in its roundabout fashion to try to impart:
Is: Don't always take every old country fake
Of a "swell city fisherman's" story to heart.
No matter what kind of fine tackle you find
In a fisherman's hands, you will have to allow
That the fellow who'll get the fish out of the wet,
Be he bumpkin, or dude, is the one who knows how.

The Fly-Casting Club.

A few more leaves were added to the pleasant pages of the good fellows' book last Tuesday evening, the occasion being the monthly meeting and banquet of the San Francisco Fly-Casting Club. During the evening some routine business of the club was transacted, among other things, was the election of three new members, Mr. Louis Weinmann, Dr. Clark Barnum and Dr. C. G. Levinson. Chairman Walter D. Mansfield also announced the following classification of the members for the coming series of five class contests at Stow Lake. This classification being based upon the casting averages made during the first five contests participated in this season.

After coffee and cigars the social session of the club was happily enlivened by remarks from various club members and invited guests upon topics germane to the sport of angling. An interesting paper on the "Fly-Casters of Yesterday" was read by Horace Briggs, the effort was replete with angling reminiscences of many of the sportsmen of other days, the sentiment of the address was in touch with many of the gentlemen present. When the speaker finished a standing toast was quaffed to the "Boys who have gone before."

A testimonial of sympathy was passed upon and a resolution of condolence extended to an absent member, Carlos G. Young, who for the first time in many sessions was missed at the banquet board. The unhappy reason for his absence being a bereavement in the family of the gentleman mentioned.

During the evening the secretary read a dispatch felicitous in spirit and cordial in well wishes from an absentee, Herman F. Muller, who is at present enjoying a vacation in the Yosemite Park. Among the members and guests present were: Walter D. Mansfield, Horace Smyth, Alex T. Vogelsang, Judge John Hunt, Judge Seawell, John P. Babcock, E. T. Allen, H. Battu, Dr. W. E. Brooks, A. M. Habits of the Large-Mouth Black Bass.

The Board of Fish Commissioners will shortly arrange to place black bass fry in many desirable fishing waters of this State. Black bass angling in Russian River for several seasons past has not been satisfactory. Fishing in the lake near Milton has given good results, the bass being plentiful there although it is not an ideal bass water. A small lake near Rodeo used to afford, early in the season, some pretty good sport, but the bass have almost disappeared, owing to two dry seasons, when the water became so low that nearly all the bass died. Other reservoirs that promised well for bass propagation and plenty of future sport angling for this game fish have been disappointing ventures thus far. A paper by Dr. Morris Gibbs, a well-known Michigan angler and interesting writer on angling topics, appears in The Amateur Sportsman and is replete with interesting information concerning a fish that would add much to the pleasures of many anglers in this State were the distribution of bass more general than at present. One of the ideal bass fishing waters on the Coast is a series of ponds or small lakes in Sacramento County, on the preserves of the Del Paso Outing Club. Lake Merced, in this county, is full of black bass, but the dense and heavy growth of water vegetation covering the whole bottom of the lake makes fishing, from a sportsman's standpoint, an utter impossibility. Besides, the water company officials have invariably interdicted all fishing in the lake. Bass fishing in San Andreas Lake has not proven worthy of the time necessary to make the trip to the lake for two seasons past. The paper above referred to is the following:

The black bass is a species that may be written upon for ages and still be appreciated as a fertile subject for the angler, outer or ichthyologist desirous of appealing to the readers of any paper which will publish fish items.

The large-mouth black bass, Oswego bass, green bass or bayou bass, as it is variously called, is quite generally distributed, but some of its habits are but little known. Thinking that some notes might be of interest to your readers, I send in some observations taken from my store of many years' study.

There is no accounting for names, as each locality has its own nomenclature, and while river bass describes this fish in one section, another locality dubs it lake bass. In Michigan it is abundant in lakes and is rarely found in rivers, while the small-mouth is generally taken in running water in the Great Lakes region. Still we find in the synopsis that this species is given as found in "rivers of the United States, from the Great Lakes and Red River of the north to Florida and Texas; everywhere abundant, preferring lakes, bayous and sluggish waters." This would lead us to infer that the species was taken in both lake and stream. At the mouths of rivers opening into the Great Lakes the large-mouth is abundant, but, as a rule, so far as my observations go, it is only rarely found in streams distant from still water.

In northern waters this bass is occasionally taken of a weight of fifteen pounds, I am credibly informed, while a specimen of a few ounces over ten pounds was captured in Michigan to my knowledge; but it is in Southern waters that the species reaches its greatest weight. One has been recorded from Florida that exceeded twenty-three pounds, while many have been taken there to exceed twenty pounds.

In Michigan the weight of black bass is not so great in proportion to their length as it is in Eastern and Southern waters, if one is to believe the stories that we read. Not long ago I read that a bass of sixteen inches would weigh two and a half pounds, and one of eighteen inches over three pounds. These proportions are not proven here in Michigan, where a sixteen-inch bass never in my experience weighs over one and three-quarter pounds. Observations of many years give me the authority to say that the following proportions are proper as to weight and length of Michigan bass, as well as showing the average catch in that section known as the Great Lakes region:

A bass of sixteen inches will weigh one and a half pounds or slightly over; one of eighteen inches two and a quarter, and one of twenty inches three and a half pounds. From this size up the weight increases proportionately very rapidly, and one that I weighed at eight pounds measured twenty-five inches.

I have studied the habits of these species carefully, as well as the small-mouth, and find that the manner of nesting is quite similar. The spawning season of the two is about the same, but I believe that it is a little earlier with the small-mouth, which, however, appears to be a little longer engaged in preparation. The large-mouth begins preparing the nest or spawning ground in early May, and from this date to well into July some of the fish may be found on the beds, though I doubt not that the large majority of the bass have completed this important act by July 1st. I think, nevertheless, that both our bass should be protected until July 1st, or better still, to the 15th of that month. If this law were followed and spearing stopped at all seasons the bass would rapidly multiply. I have seen bass caught in late June that were heavy with spawn. Many states have laws that protect bass during spawning season, but even then the laws are largely inoperative, as they are rarely enforced, and, moreover, the bass are usually only protected until May 1st, which is next to a futile effort in the strict line of protection.

Everyone has observed the roily, muddy condition of the lakes in the spring caused by the rains and the rising of the debris from the bottom. At this season it is, as all anglers know, useless to attempt to fish. It is when this clouded condition of the lake subsides that the female bass are seen to seek the shallow parts of the lakes over gravelly portions of the bottom and generally near the shore. The males fight savagely for the possession of the females, and it is only after some days that affairs seem settled, and even then the appearance of the interlopers causes the renewal of hostilities.

At the proper time the eggs, few in number, are deposited in the selected quarters and are arranged to the satisfaction of the mother, who hovers near, ready at any and all times to rush upon the intruder. Perhaps the male is at hand and will appear if required, but as to this I cannot say, as the female alone has shown herself in all nests I have examined. The eggs were, so far as my observations go, always placed near the shore and in water from ten to twenty inches deep, generally. In many instances the eggs were placed in a slight hollow, undoubtedly formed by the fish, as I have seen the old ones engaged apparently in an attempt to form a nest in this way. Many times there is no evidence of a hollow to any degree and the eggs are placed, as is usual, among the stones, and I have found them on a gravelly ridge.

The eggs are evidently provided with a coating of some sticky and tenacious substance, as they adhere to the stones or any hard substance they come in contact with, and are only removed with some difficulty. The female evidently prefers small hollows in which to deposit the eggs, appreciating the fact that the depression affords more protection than would result from more exposed situations. This was well illustrated in one instance, where several eggs were found in the half of an old lime-incrusted bivalve shell. My chief difficulty in examining into their habits lay in the fact that the old ones were so shy that they would dart away and remain out of sight as long as I remained near at hand. There was lacking the tameness or fearlessness so evident in the case of the common pumpkin-seed, or sunny, and which made the study of their habits so interesting and easy.

All who have fished for bass in the spring have observed good-sized bass near the shore in situations where one would not expect to see them. These fish were engaged in looking for a nesting site or in guarding their eggs. The wake of a fish swimming away that one sees while strolling along the shore, or when rowing in shore among the reeds, is made by an old bass which has been disturbed in its retreat. If one will wait patiently the bass will beseech to return to the spot again and again.

It is safe to say that the old fish moves the eggs at times, attached to the gravel and other substances as they are, and I have seen one nosing a small stone, which was later seen to have eggs attached to it. Young bass remain in the nest of depression for some time after emerging, and are evidently protected by the old ones, though this is denied by other observers. At any rate, the young continue to stick to the hollow as I have often observed, and old bass were always near at hand to look after them. It may appear like conjecture, but I believe the parents remove the young if they think the locality is not favorable, and several careful observations have convinced me that this is the case.

The large-mouth is a very active fish, and I think he compares favorably with the small-mouth for game qualities. It is, in my estimation, fairer in its style of fighting and taking the hook. My opinion regarding its open way of fighting, compared with the tactics of the small-mouth, may be influenced from the fact that most of my small-mouth fishing has been done in rivers where logs and snags rendered the catch uncertain, whereas the lakes, the home of the big-mouth, offer superior advantages for playing the fish. Nevertheless I cannot forget the many times that salmonides has escaped me by getting into the lily-pades.

This subject is a fertile one for me, and I could continue it for many columns if space permitted and the tolerance of my readers would hold out. As it is, I think it best to close for the time. On another occasion I will continue the biography of the large-mouth bass, and perhaps give notes on the small-mouth as well.

THE FARM.

It is probable that all animals are the creatures of habit to a certain degree and that their physical condition is influenced by the routine of feed and exercise. That this is so with the cow is well known, and regularity in feed, milking and general care has a cash value which a dairyman should take into account. A dairyman's habits are susceptible of change without any results that may influence either himself or his revenue, but the cow is working under pressure. She must be supplied with the maximum food, to produce the maximum results, and when she has elaborated a full supply of milk, it must be removed to permit the work to go on, else it is checked from the clogging of the machine, and this once done, both time and material are lost before it can be set in motion again. How far this habit condition can influence the yield of milk and fat is uncertain, because so many dairy-men object, with the addition of forcible language, to being tied to a cow's tail and the result is that the habits of the herds of such men are regular in their irregularity, to such an extent that any variation of water, feed or time of milking can have but little influence on the small amount of milk that is given daily. But wherever a dairyman, in his eager chase after the dollar, has so far forgotten himself as to pamper his cows in every possible way, by shelter, food, drink and regularity in milking, he has found them most sensitive in any change from an established condition of things, and their owner, once having planted his foot on the path which leads to cow comfort has been obliged to continue thereon for the sake of filthy lucre he found by the way. Verily, the habits of a cow prove a hard master to her owner—but in catering to them he finds his reward.

Some time in the dim future there is going to be a change in our present methods of handling some of our food products, and we are not going to scrimp with one hand and be lavish with the other. At present we pay $400 for a separator that will squeeze out the last few fat globules out of the milk, lest there should be more than a trace of fat left in the skim milk, and then we virtually throw away many times the value, of that last drop of fat, in the skim milk. We do not throw it to the dogs, but the hogs, and considering the condition in which most of it is kept, it might be wasted completely for any good the dairyman obtains from it. One great source of revenue for skim milk is shut off at present. The sapient Boards of Health that regulate the food supply of the large cities, will not allow skim milk to be sold, for fear that it will contaminate the supply of high priced milk and thus both the producer on the farm and the poor of the city alike suffer—the one in the pocket and the other in the stomach through a fool regulation that benefits no one.—Hoard's Dairyman.

Condensed milk has long been a staple article of diet, but was for years sold for itself and at a fair price. During recent years, however, the smart men have found that it can be sold for what it is not. We are now told by a scientist that milk dealers use it to supply the demand for a cheap cream. It doubtless has the appearance of thick cream and when diluted with a thin cream makes a very deceptive combination. An analysis of this pseudo-cream would show in it a very small percentage of butter fat. The people who buy it must wonder at its lack of richness but the eye contradicts the taste and the consumers try to be satisfied. An analysis of some of this condensed skim milk that is being sold for cream showed it to contain only 2.4 per cent of fat.

Holstein-Friesians at Millbrae.

In April of this year the Millbrae Dairy and the Spreckels Sugar Company commissioned Professor T. F. McConnell, of the Agricultural Experiment Station of the Wisconsin State University, to buy and ship to California a carload of a dozen young Holstein-Friesian bulls, ranging from one to two and a half years of age. These animals arrived here in excellent condition. Of the dozen head, six were shipped to the Spreckels Sugar Company, at King's City, Cal., and the remaining six went to Millbrae, where they are to be used in grading up to a Holstein basis the famous Millbrae Dairy herd. Nearly all of the great butter and milk producing families of the Holstein-Friesians are now represented in this herd—the De Kol, Pauline Paul, Hengerveld, Pietertje, Clothilde, Mechthilde and Empress Josephine families being well represented. Five of the six bulls above mentioned, which have been added to the Millbrae herd, are as follows:

Sir Tritomia De Kol, 27,281 H. F. H. B. (see illustration), born December 12, 1899. Sire, Gem Pietertje Hengerveld Paul De Kol, 23,300. Dam, Aaltje Salo 5th's Tritomia, 34,137, official butter record 18.15 lbs. in 7 days.

De Kol Sir Hengerveld, 27,838 H. F. H. B., born January 27, 1899. Sire, Hengerveld De Kol, 23,102. Dam, Inka Darkness 2d's Queen, 40,182.

De Kol Hengerveld Sir Pietertje, 27,729 H. F. H. B., born February 6, 1899. Sire, Hengerveld De Kol, 23,102. Dam, Lady Akkrum's Pietertje, 30,667.

Lakeside Hedgerveld Paul De Kol, 27,439 H. F. H. B., born April 17, 1900. Sire, Pietertje Hengerveld's Paul De Kol, 22,128. Dam, Katherine Electa, 28,919.

Prince Pietertje De Kol Tritomia, 25,193 H. F. H. B., born September 13, 1898. Sire, Prince Inka Pietertje De Kol 2d 22,699. Dam, Aaltje Salo Tritomia, 43,979.

Last year Millbrae Dairy imported from New York the young bull, Admiral Paul Beets De Kol, 26,026 H. F. H. B., a son of the famous cow, Aaggie Grace Clothilde, 39,452 H. F. H. B., 1302 Advanced Registry, official test as a three year old, 462 $\frac{3}{8}$ lbs. milk and 18 lbs. 7.9 ozs. butter in 7 days, averaging over 66 lbs. of milk per day. Her dam, Aaggie Grace 2d's Pietertje, 1222 Advanced Registry, has an official record of 100 lbs. milk in a day (highest one day's yield in any official test), and 651 $\frac{3}{4}$ lbs. in 7 days, and made 23 lbs. 8.2 ozs. butter in 7 days. At the Cattle Show held at Tanforan Park in September, 1900, this bull won First Prize as best yearling bull, and also Sweepstakes, that being the only place he was shown.

There are now at Millbrae about seventy-five head of pure-bred Holstein-Friesians, besides a hundred or so grade Holsteins, and this stock has given satisfactory results. There are some six hundred head of mixed cows in the dairy, but the Holsteins are rapidly taking the lead. The first purchases were made by Millbrae Dairy in April, 1899, when a dozen cows of the Clothilde family and the bull Tirania 2d's Zozo Paul, 22,568 H. F. H. B., were bought from Mr. Frank H. Burke's La Siesta herd, and these with their produce, together with ten others purchased in California and the half dozen bulls recently brought from Wisconsin, make up the present herd. In selecting this foundation herd the intention was to obtain the best representatives of the breed, and the results show that this effort has been successful.

There is a great demand for these animals in all parts of the country. They hold all the world's records for butter, milk and cheese. Pietertje 2d holds the world's milk record of 30,318 lbs. in a year and 112 $\frac{1}{2}$ lbs. in a day. Pauline Paul's famous record is well known: 31 lbs. 13 $\frac{1}{4}$ ozs. butter in 7 days, and 1153 lbs. 15 $\frac{3}{4}$ ozs. in 1 year, or 365 days. Mechthilde gave 112 $\frac{1}{4}$ lbs. of milk in a day, and made 39 lbs. 10 $\frac{1}{2}$ ozs. butter in 7 days. Empress Josephine 3d gave, as a four year old, 91 lbs. milk in a day, and made 31 lbs. 12 ozs. butter in 7 days. De Kol 2d's butter record is 26.57 lbs. in 7 days, with a well authenticated private record of 33 lbs. 6 ozs. in a week. Netherland Hengerveld's butter record, 26.66 lbs., is the highest official test. Clothilde's record of 28 lbs. 2 $\frac{1}{2}$ ozs. butter in 7 days, and 26,021 lbs. 2 ozs. milk in a year is well known. These are the most famous cows of the breed, and are all represented in the recent consignment to Millbrae Dairy.

San Francisco, June 11, 1901.

Dual Purpose Cows.

The Red Polls and Shorthorns are having the field pretty much to themselves as dual purpose cattle. The Devons should of right be included, but Devon breeders of late seem to be losing their grip or at least are little heard from. In early days when work oxen were largely used on the farm, the Devons were without a rival, and they were for these conditions excellent all round cattle, the cows good milkers and the steers making the best of all work oxen and at the end fine beef. But they are rather slow maturing and under present conditions have nearly dropped out.

The race at present seems to be between the two breeds first named. Which is preferable will depend somewhat on the environment and very largely on the individual selections. A first class animal of either breed under almost any conditions will give better satisfaction than a second grade of the other. As a rule, the Shorthorn breeders tend to develop most of the beef side of their animals, and the Red Polled breeders, especially in England, are inclining mostly to milk. Either breed, however, if properly selected and properly handled, should give satisfaction.

Shorthorns, as a rule, to do their best, need better feed and better care. They are not so active or so energetic as the Red Polls. They will not exert themselves so much to get a living, and they suffer more and lose more under adverse conditions. With proper care and full feed the choice is largely a matter of fancy or individual preference, assuming that the cows are equally well selected.

In the tests of late, whether for milk or beef, the Red Polls have fully held their own. Unfortunately we have few official records on this side in milk yield, especially for Shorthorns, but such as we have show that Red Polls at least need not take a back seat. In the last Ohio test, conducted by the Ohio experiment station and the cows tested at home, the three Red Polls entered averaged more milk, more fat and more solids than the six Jerseys tested. In the test under the auspices of the Red Polled Cattle Club last year, the test made by the experiment station, seven more cows from Captain Hills' herd averaged nearly 400 pounds of milk a day with over a pound and a half of fat. In the test of the year before three cows from the herd of the writer, one milking over seven months, gave an average of a little over 30 pounds of milk and one and a quarter pounds of fat.

These are not extraordinary yields, but they are creditable for cows showing good beef quality and show a good profit on the feed consumed. On the home farm of Lord Rothchild at Tring Park, England, where a large herd is kept, all carefully selected and all managed under the best conditions there is little difference in the annual yield of milk, though the Red Polls have always excelled all the mature cows of the Jerseys. Each breed averages 6000 pounds of milk a year, and one year the Red Polls exceeded 7000 pounds. J. McLain Smith.

Feeding Lambs.

The rule in feeding is that a young animal will make more from the same quantity of food in proportion to its weight than it will at any future period in its life. Consequently it is economy to feed the lambs as soon as they are able to digest the food. This is at four weeks old. At this age one ounce of mixed foods, as corn and oats ground especially for this use, and an equal quantity of bran or middlings will be quite safe, and as the food is dry and the lambs weight made up of 75 per cent of water it is quite possible that this ounce of food may add over its full weight of growth to the lamb.

Cow's milk is excellent food for lambs which will easily learn to drink it. One experiment made in this way with Shropshire lambs ten days old, showed that the lambs made 100 gain weight for 579 pounds milk, during twenty-one days. During 115 days after this these lambs made a gain of weight at the same rate for 830 pounds of milk, 110 pounds of ground oats, and 262 pounds of green clover. This shows how the quantity of food for one pound weight increases as the age increases.

The value of cows milk for growth of lambs has been proved very conclusively by the writer in fattening young lambs for the holiday markets, the lambs five months old weighing seventy pounds. The milk fed made more profit than butter at 30 cents a pounds. Skimmed milk fed sweet with cotton seed meal stirred in it, made equally good lambs as the whole milk. The milk was warmed to the ordinary heat of new milk. This fact goes to show that sheep may be very profitably kept on dairy farms.

As compared with the feeding of pigs on milk, it has been shown that lambs will make quite as much gain as young pigs, and as lambs may be sold in the spring for considerably more than the pigs can be, it is very clear that sheep may be very profitably as well as conveniently substituted for pigs, especially in winter dairies. In fact, as compared with pigs, there is much in favor of keeping sheep.

The largest ewe does not always bring the largest lamb. Nor does the largest breed make the most profit in feeding. While the largest sheep does not always bring the largest lamb, but it is the breed which dominates the aftergrowth as to size.—American Sheep Breeder.

A great movement by rail of Oregon sheep eastward has set in and it is estimated that from 1,500,000 to 2,000,000 head will be run on the ranges east of the Rocky Mountains this summer. The sales of feeder sheep last fall were disappointing to the Oregon owners and there is a surplus of nearly 2,000,000 sheep which can not be fed on the range there this summer without endangering the existence of the regular stock. It is planned therefore to load the sheep on trains and take them to Colorado, Kansas and Nebraska to graze them through the summer for the fall market.

Weaning Pigs.

As soon as pigs are old enough to begin to eat food other than that which they receive from their mother a small pen should be so constructed as to admit pigs, but exclude the mother, and a small trough placed in it where milk or slop may be placed with a little shelled corn, so that the pigs can eat at pleasure without being disturbed by their mother, says an Ohio grower in National Stockman and Farmer. By this means the young pig soon learns to rely less upon its dam for nourishment and more upon that which it gets itself.

Besides, when weaning time comes the dams may be taken away from the pigs, and neither will experience any inconvenience from the change. Certainly, if care is taken the pigs will not be checked in growth the least particle, but will keep on growing just the same. Last year we weaned 52 head, and under such treatment as outlined above they weighed an average of 100 pounds at 4½ months old. This was not an extraordinary growth, and yet it was very satisfactory when we consider there were 52 of them.

The main idea is to keep the young pig growing steadily from birth, as any check it may receive at this time will require more labor and feed to develop it than it otherwise would. It is just as easy and decidedly more profitable to the grower to provide such food and conditions as will keep a steady, healthy growth in the pig from start to finish as it is to let them go it on the "root hog or die" plan and have them not only unequal in size, but stunted in appearance and requiring more time and feed to bring them out than are necessary.

We can grow many things to help out alfalfa and in the past few years it has been thoroughly demonstrated that it pays many times over to have silos, even in this country. There are many things we can put into them at very small cost which will feed out in good condition. The first cutting of alfalfa with foxtail, malva, barley, wild oats and other things mixed with it, even if well cured, would not bring enough on the hay market to pay for hauling it off. If these things are cut and put in a silo they will make most excellent feed during the dry summer and fall. Oats and peas sown together will produce a wonderful number of tons to the acre on our irrigated lands and when cut green with the peas formed and the oats in the dough they will increase the milk product very much. Corn of course makes the strongest and best ensilage.

High flavor or quick aroma of June butter is due to the breaking up of the milk sugar, forming lactic acid and is possibly the result of a series of germs getting into the cream during the process of ripening. If cream is churned while sweet considerable butter will be lost in the buttermilk and the butter will lack flavor, no matter what the cows are fed. If cream ripens too much we will get sour butter with the rotten-egg flavor. Cream ready to be churned has a smooth, granular appearance with a rather sharp, acid taste. When cream reaches this condition it should either be churned at once or cooled down to about fifty degrees F. and warmed to fifty-eight or sixty degrees when churned.

The largest bull in the world is being fattened near Merwin, Missouri, for exhibition at the World's Fair in St. Louis. The animal is six feet and one inch high at the shoulders and is fifteen feet and one inch from the tip of nose to the base of tail. The animal weighs 3000 pounds and experienced stockmen say it will not be difficult to fatten it until it brings down the scales to 4500 pounds, which will be a record breaker. The bull is a pure bred Shorthorn.

A small ram of good form and fleece is better than a large one without the valuable characteristics.

Beets for Stock.

I think many farmers, and particularly those who have no silo, lose a great opportunity in failing to plant a field or plot of mangel-wurtzell, or cowbeets. On good land it is easy to grow 12 to 15 tons per acre. These roots will keep without any trouble in any cellar or frost-proof basement, and prove a great addition to the winter's food for cattle and hogs. In no other way have we ever been enabled to winter brood sows at so little expense. We are now feeding a bushel per day to our six calves and they appear to thrive with little or no grain.—I. T. in Ex.

Holstein-Friesians for Beef.

Here on the range I have Shorthorns, Herefords and Holsteins, not pure breeds but high grades, says a Montana man. I butcher usually one or two beefs a week and find that the Holstein will average with the other breeds. In fact the heaviest, fattest animal I have butchered was a Holstein cow that reared a calf the year before last, wintered herself the following winter and dressed out nearly 800 pounds of good beef last September. This was done on the range grasses. She was never fed a pound of anything but salt.

Swine feeding should be just as clean and wholesomely intelligent as that of any other farm animal. The quality of the food must indeed be considered. Do not dump great quantities of refuse in the pen, and then if the animals clean it all up rest content with the idea that they have made good pork off of food that cost you nothing. Sometimes the pigs will eat a great amount to find a very little nourishment.

Avoid in-and-in-breeding and be sure to use none but vigorous healthy fowls.

Monterey also got third money in the great stallion race at New York that year, Bingen 2:06¼ and others being distanced. Monterey won the western Stallion Stake and a $400 silver cup presented by President Henry J. Crocker for horse making fastest mile at Tanforan meeting in 1900.

Monterey weighs 1300 lbs., is 15.3 hands high. TERMS $50 FOR THE SEASON ending July 1st, 1901. All bills payable not later than June 31st, 1901. Usual return privileges for mares not in foal. OAKLAND DRIVING CLUB—SOME OF THE "REGULARS."

1. Mr. Doran with McKinney Filly. 2. Mr. Toby's pacer by J. O. C. 3. Mr. Chesley with mare by Teheran. 4. Mr. Egan and Sylph. 5. Mr. Anderson with Jenny Lind.

JOTTINGS.

THE OAKLAND DRIVING CLUB, by its enterprise in constructing a five-eighths track on the made land near the bay shore at Sixteenth street, Oakland, has created a greatly increased interest in road driving. While the track is in use every day by a few, Sunday forenoon is the time when it is best patronized, and the regular visitor finds that the number of drivers who speed their horses over it is on the increase from week to week. The track is a parallelogram, with the long stretches 824 feet in length and the short ones but 165 feet and 10 inches. The turns measure 330 feet each, and are thrown up so nicely that every trotter and pacer we saw speeded there last Sunday (and there were thirty or more) did not seem to be bothered in the least to get round them. The water wagon had been used the evening previous, but no harrowing had been done and the track was a little slippery in spots. As I walked through one of the stretches and examined the foot prints I could not help thinking what an excellent track it could be made with proper care and work. A light wire nail harrow would have placed a cushion on it, and barring a few spots of loose dirt (unavoidable on all new tracks) the result would have been an almost perfect footing. It is unfortunate that no lease of the ground can be secured by the club. It is true that the permission to use the property for a training track does not cost anything, but it is expressly provided that the club must vacate it on a day's notice, which of course precludes the expenditure of very much money for fences, sheds, grand stand, etc., but if these could be erected the Oakland Driving Park would have one of the most popular trotting tracks in the country, and matinee racing could be given that would draw large crowds to witness the contests. The fact that the track was constructed and the club organized for the sole purpose of securing a place and providing an opportunity for gentlemen drivers to train and speed their horses and not to provide racing for money nor to encourage gambling in any form has attracted the notice of many who care nothing for that phase of the game, but who enjoy the glorious sport of driving a horse fast or engaging in a friendly brush with his fellow road drivers.

While visiting the track Sunday last I secured a snap shot of a few of the horses being driven there. President Bellingall was up behind his handsome bay four year old gelding by Knight, the sire of Anaconda 2:02½. This colt is one of the best gaited and most promising young trotters I have seen this year. Mr. Bellingall has given him all the training he ever had and has driven him a mile in 2:25½, last half in 1:11, and last eighth in 16½ seconds. He has a free open gait, and is a handsome horse. His breeding is of the best, his dam being by Secretary, son of Director, his second dam by the thoroughbred horse Hubbard and his third dam by Lodi, whose famous races with Norfolk in the early 60's are still the talk of the old timers.

Treasurer Jerry Doran drove a two year old dark bay filly by McKinney, out of a full sister to Lady O. 2:15, that showed a nice way of going as well as speed that gives every promise of being of a high order. Mr. Doran has named her Oakland Maid.

Mr. J. G. Chesley was over from San Francisco and drove a brown mare by Teheran that belongs to Mr. William Larsen, who is an enthusiastic amateur driver. Now, Mr. Chesley is considered one of the best amateur reinsmen on this coast and after warming the mare up and shifting her bit and overdraw, turned her over to Mr. Larsen who thereupon engaged in a lively brush with two or three other drivers and boat them out. The mare is a five year old and a trotter.

Mr. Toby of Berkeley was speeding a roan pacer by J. O. C. that is a very racy looking horse, one of the smooth going kind, and one that ought to pace to a record of 2:20 or better with a little training. Mr. Toby handles him well and there are few that can make them get right down to work to keep in the lead when working a mile.

Mr. J. H. Egan of Oakland is out every Sunday with his black mare Sylph. She is a nicely turned mare that can show a 2:30 gait very handily. I failed to get her breeding but have the impression that she was bred at the Corbitt farm in San Mateo, and is in all probability a Wilkes.

One of the newcomers to the ranks of road drivers is Mr. Williams of Oakland, who purchased the well known chestnut mare Lady G. 2:27 from Mr. Doran some time ago. Mr. Williams drives her to a high wheel cart, which is quite a handicap when speeding against horses hitched to hikes, but Lady G. keeps up with the procession and is generally close to the lead whether going against pacers or trotters.

Mr. E. T. Anderson visits the track regularly and drives two or three promising young trotters. The one in the picture is a two year old bay filly that he has just begun to step along, and she shows well. He calls her Jenny Lind and her nice manners and desire to trot give evidence of considerable natural speed. She should be a frequent brush winner when she grows up.

A great difference is noticeable between the vehicles drawn by horses owned by members of California clubs and those over East. Here nearly every driver sits in a bike cart, and many in high wheeled carts, while over East the four wheeled speed wagon is the vehicle in use. The leading clubs of the East all require that wagons be drawn by horses that compete in the matinee races which, of course, compels every owner to secure a vehicle of that sort. Here in California, however, our clubs have not such a sprinkling of wealthy members as is the rule across the Rockies, and as our road drivers are truly democratic in their tastes, anything in the way of road vehicles goes, and the man with an old high wheeled cart does not object to racing on the road against a person who sits in the latest and lightest bike sulky that is made, neither does the owner of the more expensive vehicle expect to meet only those who are as well equipped as he. The style of hitch and the size of an owner's bank roll cut no figure in brushes on California roads or training tracks.

It looks as though the slow classes, both trotting and pacing, will draw quite a large lot of entries this year in California. I hear of new ones every day and while I cannot say that up to this time there are any Abbots or Alixes among them, there are a lot of trotters that should put in heats from 2:20 to 2:25, which is a good showing for any horse his first year out. If we could have a field of eight or ten trotters start at the Breeders' meeting in the 2:30 class, and split up heats around 2:20, it would cause a loosening up of the old weasel skins and the pool sellers would have more to do than they have for a long time in California. Of course this would be contingent on all the horses being driven to win. There are probably a dozen green trotters being trained in California at the present time whose owners believe that they can win if the heats are not faster than 2:16, and if the heats were in 2:20 or close to it they would back their horses liberally. One good split heat race between the green trotters or pacers, at the opening of the circuit, with the money played in the auctions and mutuels, would bring out many of the old timers for the next meeting. But if the coin is all played in the books, and the favorites do not win, the money is gone from the pockets of the public and a wet blanket is thrown on the meetings that does not dry out during the summer.

Some of the smaller district associations in California are seriously contemplating giving the most of their purses next year for horses owned in the district, and thus try to encourage the breeding, training and racing of horses at home. This is eminently proper. It is very discouraging for the owners of colts and horses trained at the country tracks to be compelled to trot or pace in every race against horses that may be entered from all over the country. There should be a goodly portion of the purses offered by the district associations made for district horses. There should be some generous purses given that are free to all, as they will prove attractive and enable the people to see what outsiders are doing in the way of breeding and training. Races are educational, and lead to the breeding of the best. Purses and stakes for district horses are necessary and I believe that if the district associations would give a larger proportion of their purses for their local horses they would find it would make a greatly increased local interest in their fairs, and it is the local people who furnish the gate receipts.

Mr. Frank H. Burke, who last winter bought two full sisters to Wanda 2:14½ for broodmares, applied to the original breeder for the usual information and certificate to have them registered. This was, much to his astonishment, refused. Mr. Burke wrote to Mr. Steiner explaining the circumstances, and as he was the owner of their sire Eros could give all the data required except actual date of birth. He has just received a letter from the American Trotting Register Association that both mares have been registered in Vol. XVI. I am glad to be able to chronicle these facts. It is indeed unfortunate that there are persons who from a balky disposition are unwilling to grant favors that cost nothing, but it is indeed very fortunate that they are not absolutely necessary to the completion and establishment of true and correct records.

Here is an idea from Detroit: The Driving Club of that city has raised its annual dues from $10 to $25. The extra $15 is for the purpose of securing the use of light speeding wagons for the members of the club. A $300 wagon is an expensive article and there are many enthusiastic road drivers and club members who cannot afford the outlay. The Detroit Club proposes to purchase a number of wagons and to keep them in repair. They will be kept at its track and can be used for speeding or for racing by members. This is an idea that can be adopted by other clubs and associations with profit to all concerned.

International Matinee Contests.

These are the days that the amateur driver and the matinee horse are having their innings. In every city of importance driving clubs have been organized, and this year will in all probability be seen intercity contests arranged on a much greater scale than ever before. The valued organ of the driving clubs, The Speechway and Amateur Reinsman, in its last issue contains an article relating to the future possibility of international contests being a fixture in the near future, writes Ed. Cogswell in Boston Traveler.

This is all that is needed to place matinee sport on the very top round of popularity and would beem the light-harness horse of America more than can be estimated. The results of such events would be watched with breathless interest by the whole civilized world. There will come a time, and at no distant date, when the gentlemen of England, France, Germany, Italy and America will contest in wagon races for challenge trophies as they do now with yachts and in athletics. And why not? The sport of racing with harness horses is of more royal origin than that of yachting, and its adherents included in ancient times the crowned heads of the great empires. Germany, Italy, Austria and France have secured some of our greatest trotting blood, and have been more or less fortunate in crossing it upon their native animals. A few years more and they should be producing as good as we. When that time comes, or when they believe it has arrived, there will be opportunity for demonstrating the superiority of one or the other.

Little wagon driving is done in Europe at present, England and Austria being foremost in this branch of the sport. In England Mr. Walter Winans of Brighton was probably the first to drive an American pneumatic tire wagon. The fashion has spread, however, until it is quite common in and near London. In Vienna, Austria, where they have a gentlemen's driving club, with a membership of 500, a speedway has been built, fashioned after the New York driveway, and its patrons are the famous men and women of that progressive city. Time alone is needed to make wagon racing popular with gentlemen all over the civilized world, and when that time comes international contests will follow.

Horse Gossip from Sacramento.

The horsemen here are all busy and are out early and late getting ready for the Breeders' meeting which will open the circuit here on July 29th. The track is fast and in fine condition.

Sam Hoy of Winters has quite a string; among them Kelly Briggs 2:10½, McNally 2:15 and two or three green ones by his horse Bayswater Wilkes. They are all doing fairly well Sam says.

Ed. Lafferty arrived here from Alameda the other day with a string of nice looking horses. Al. McDonald also came up from the swamp track with Mr. A. G. Gurnett's string. What is it, the gray trotter by Direct out of the dam of Who Is It 2:10½, is the one that attracts the most attention.

Vet Tryon's horses are all in fine fettle. One of his green trotters worked a mile in 2:18½, the last half in 1:07.

Hi Hogboom worked a green trotter in 2:20 last week, and has several others that have an infection of the same affliction.

O. J. Holmes is driving a black pacer that attracts attention, and he worked a mile in 2:23 the other day. Chris Jurgensen worked the Cline horse in the same notch.

Chas. Wheeler from Chico drove Harry Parmalee in 2:20 the last half in 1:08 and Tom Norton's Albert W. colt worked in 2:27.

Mrs. E. W. Callendine's Abdine paced a handy mile in 2:17½, which equals his record. He certainly is going some for this time of the year, as the last half was in 1:05½.

Lou Clark is giving Ouboul 2:22 slow work. John Pender is jogging Captain Jones, one of the grandest looking horses ever seen on this track.

Lessee Martin is putting lots of work on the track and will try and have it lightning fast for the meeting. All the horsemen are greatly pleased with it now.

Sacramento, June 19, 1901.

WILLITA

Tommy Murphy, the well-known shoer of champion race horses, is making twelve sets of shoes for Bonnie Direct 2:05½, which will be shipped to Denver next week. One set has a pair of hind shoes that are made from cutlery steel and weigh but two ounces. Murphy has received many appealing letters from the trainers at Sacramento asking him to come up there and plate their horses, but he is so busy he cannot get away.

The Eastern papers are publishing a statement to the effect that William Cecil gave Who Is It 2:10½ his early training and three year old record of 2:12. This is a mistake. Al. McDonald, the trainer for Mr. A. G. Gurnett's Sulphur Spring farm broke and drove Who Is It up to the time he was taken East by Sam Gamble, and drove him in all his races in California.

Two years ago, when Fanella by Arion 2:07½, dam of the now noted $4000 colt Todd by Bingen 2:06½, was offered at auction, with the youngster at foot, she only sold for $525. She was also carrying a foal by Peter the Great 2:07½, now a yearling, for which, it is said, $1000 was recently offered.

Spokane Interstate Fair.

There is no more enterprising city in the northwest than Spokane, and the association which has been recently organized there to take charge of the Interstate Fair to be held from September 10th to 21st, inclusive, is imbued with the same spirit that has made Spokane so prosperous and progressive. A joint stock company has been organized, with a capital stock of $30,000, all subscribed by the leading citizens and business men of Spokane. This organization has purchased fifty-three acres of land close to the business center of the city, which is reached direct by two steam roads, and the Spokane street railway system, which gives it the best transportation facilities of any fair grounds in the northwest. Spokane is a natural fair and race horse center. It is the metropolis of the great inland empire lying between the Rockies and the Cascades, with a home population of 50,000 and an empire of mining, farming and grazing districts to draw from. With proper management the Interstate Fair cannot fail to succeed, and it is evident that this has already been secured.

The sum of $10,000 has been set aside for the speed program, and liberal premiums are offered in addition for live stock, fruits, and other products of the soil, mining exhibits, and ladies' art, needle work, etc., etc. In short it is proposed to hold a grand fair at Spokane, one that will compare favorably with any held on this Coast.

The race track is now in course of construction and will be completed by July 15th, at which time 150 stalls will be ready for the advance guard of racers that will be trained there. Secretary Bolster writes that the greatest possible care will be taken in the selection of judges for the meeting, and that the association fully realizes that its whole future depends upon its ability to satisfy the public that they are to get clean sport. Assurances have already been given by prominent horsemen from all parts of the Coast that they will race their stables at Spokane, and the country as far east as Minneapolis will be represented. The sixty days' race meeting at Butte and Anaconda will close September 7th, Spokane follows three days later, and the Oregon State Fair will open September 23d, two days after the Spokane meeting closes. This will make a splendid circuit of racing. The program of races to be given at Spokane will be found in our advertising columns, and the attention of horsemen is called to it. All classes are provided for. Entries will close for the harness events July 25th, and the running races will be over night events.

The Challenge Trophy.

With the possible exception of the races between the champions themselves, the most important event to be decided this season is the race for the Boston Challenge Cup, which is now held by the Cleveland Driving Club. This event will undoubtedly become a fixture, as the interest in this form of sport is daily growing and the army of enthusiastic road drivers and amateur reinmen is to-day so large that it at once becomes fully as important as the so-called race-going public. The very bone and sinew of the admirers of the trotter are the men who drive and race for pleasure. It is this element that helps materially to sustain the market, and even though this form of sport is comparatively a new one, that which is furnished by the amateur element is the equal at least of that which is made by the regular racing associations. The Boston Challenge Cup may this season prove a sensational race, for should Boralma be a starter against Lucille and John A. McKerron, as much interest would be aroused as in any race of the season, and we doubt not that time as fast as in any race of the season would be made. Lucille last year could have trotted a mile in 2:06 or better, and Boralma, even though unassisted by the skilled hand of an expert, should at least equal any record that Lucille might make. Pittsburg is sure to have a strong hand, for with Lamp Girl, Pray Tell, Josephine Dixon and Success to draw from, at least one good horse should be forthcoming. Boston will be well represented, even if the club members have to go out and buy a horse to uphold them.

Such a race would be worth going miles to see, and it is to be hoped that each of the three named cracks will start, for it would create tremendous enthusiasm and do much to increase the already great interest in matinee racing. The real sentiment of racing is found when an owner can be a participant, and the best element of the sport is that which is found racing for the love of the sport and not merely for what money can be made. The determination of H. K. Devereux not to start his horse in any class slower than the mile made in last year's event, will more than likely result in his being seen but little in public, and if such should be the case the horse must make his greatest fame as a matinee performer.—Kentucky Stock Farm.

Neernut's Successful Season.

Under date of June 10th, Mr. Geo. W. Ford of Santa Ana writes to the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN that his stallion Neernut had served 68 mares up to that time, and has 20 more booked, and there is not a scrub in the entire lot. "He surely has had the best mares in Southern California," says Mr. Ford, "and his colts will show well with the best for style, size and speed. Everyone here who has a Neernut colt seems to want more for the mares are all bred back again. I find buyers for his colts at fair prices. Although I have not got up to the $10,000 mark yet I hope to in the near future, and at present sell so the buyer can make a thousand or so on the deal in a few weeks, which I hope will induce other buyers to come along as I have plenty of good ones for sale."

Although perfectly sound from the time she was foaled and known to have a good turn of speed, the dam of Boreal 2:15½, sire of Boralma, was never trained and never trotted a mile altogether in her life.

News from the North.

[Portland Rural Spirit.]

Frank Frazier will likely race in Montana this year. T. D. Condon is breeding his mare Ana J. 2:16½ to Zombro 2:11.

Aug. Erickson has bought Mary A. 2:30, and will breed her to Zombro 2:11.

L. C. McCormick has booked about all the mares that Harry McC. can serve this year.

Kittitas Ranger, Alta Norte and Starkey will meet on the morry-go-round at Everett, Wash., in the free for all pace in July.

Sam Casto says that the track at Salem is better than he ever saw it before. "It is so fast that my youngsters don't know how to perform over it."

It begins to look like the Cocur d'Alene-Mosher combination will be a dangerous factor in the trotting division of the two year old stake. Keep your eyes on Dix Alene.

E. R. Clark of Seattle, Wash., has withdrawn his string of harness horses from sale and has sent them to Everett where they will be put into active training for the season's campaign.

Mr. W. F. Watson is thinking of bringing his Lemont mare home from California and racing her this season. She is a green trotter and shows ability to trot better than 2:20 with a little work.

We regret to learn of the death of George Cummins, of Northport, Wash., who was crushed to death between two cars there on April 28th. Mr. Cummins was a young man of 23 years, who had many friends among the horsemen in the Northwest. He returned from Manila about two months ago.

Perhaps the most popular secretary on the Pacific Coast to-day, if left to a vote of the horsemen, is Robt. Leighton, Secretary of the Vancouver, B. C., Jockey Club. Mr. Leighton has worked hard the past few years, and under many difficulties has placed Vancouver in the front rank as a racepoint.

That there will be some hot racing, close finishes and low records made at the Washington State fair this fall, should be the natural results from the big entry list of high class horses in the early closing stakes of $1000 for 2:30 trotters and pacers. Eighteen entries in one and 19 in the other is a record breaker for North Yakima. The liberal entry list received in these stakes offered by the Washington state fair board, has induced them to offer two more $1000 stakes. One is for 2:15 pacers, $1000, the other is for two year olds, $1000, to be divided equally between trotters and pacers.

Toe Weights to Develop Muscle.

Most every race goer knows George Garth, the Alabama trainer, owner and driver. He has campaigned horses over the New England tracks very successfully for the past four seasons, and he is one of the most respected men connected with the horse business. He has been exceptionally successful as a trainer and developer of horses. He has used his head as well as his hands in his methods, and his practical experience is worth something. Here is what he has to say with regard to the use of weights, says the Horse Breeder.

"I know they think it is an idle dream of an old farmer when I say that weight improves a horse's legs. There was Marlon G., narrow-kneed and thin-legged until I got her balanced with plenty of iron, even thirty-four ounces in front. Then her legs developed clean and hard, and she was as game and speedy a mare as you ever saw. I never worked her fast with that much weight, however."

Dbring a recent talk with Isaac Sexton about General 2:14, a trotter that in his hands developed exceptional qualities on the speedway and track, he said: "The first thing I did when I got the gelding was to change his nine-ounce shoes that he wore to sixteen-ounce shoes. In addition to this I put three-ounce weights on each foot and jogged him on the road for some time with this weight on. This had the effect of developing and strengthening the muscles of his fore legs, and more than this, when I got him he was a little bit shaky on his knees, but the weight straightened him up. I never speeded him when he was wearing this heavy iron. When I changed I shifted back to nine-ounce shoes. The first time I went to the track with him he could fly, and the way he speeded astonished the trainers, who had seen him before I got him—not only the speed he showed, but the way he did it. I attributed my success with him very largely to the weight I put on him when I first got him."

British Want More Horses.

A dispatch from New Orleans dated June 16th, says:

British activity in New Orleans, which slackened a month or so ago, has suddenly revived. Orders have been received to keep rushing horses and mules to South Africa, at least through the summer. Within twenty-four hours two special trains with 1200 head, were rushed in from the West on passenger schedule, and eight of the largest transports to be got are steaming here for loads. Up to date, in round numbers 100 transports have taken to South Africa 120,000 head of horses and mules, and to accomplish this more than $25,000,000 has been spent in the United States by Great Britain.

Captain Marshall, who has represented the British Government here since the purchase of American stock was commenced, has been recalled to London for conference with the War Office. He is succeeded by Captain Fenner.

Alameda 2:09½, the mare by Altamont that made such a sensation on the eastern tracks last year, is reported sold to A. N. Brady of New York by her former owner Senator McCarthy.

The Trotter as a Coach Horse.

[Spirit of the West.]

The standard-bred horse as a coach horse and the coach-bred horse as a coach horse is a question that has been discussed to some extent the past year or two by breeders at the live stock association, but it has not been thoroughly discussed by the turf journals. Spirit of the West has in the past advanced the opinion that if America ever establishes a distinct breed of coach horses, the beginning must be made with the American standard-bred trotter. No other breed or type will fill the demand. A coach horse must have style, finish, quality and action. None of the other breeds combine these requisites and breeders who undertake to produce a coach horse that will fill the demands of the times by breeding the various other kinds of coach horses will waste their time and find but little satisfaction in it.

The American standard-bred trotter to-day outsells, outshows and outranks any other breed or type of horse on the face of the earth. He is a pleasure horse as well as a general utility horse and he has behind him a heritage of breeding that surpasses all others.

The following communication from the well-posted horse buyer, Mr. J. D. Fisher of West Liberty, who has furnished as many first-class horses from the Eastern markets the past ten years as any buyer in the West, will serve to show the public what he thinks of the situation. Mr. Fisher is good authority and he knows exactly what he is talking about.

Spirit of the West outdoes all he says and is ready to pour away at the farmers until they realize the difference between a coach horse that is in demand and sells at top price and one that is only a coach horse in name and sells only in the general market for the price of good common horses.

Under the caption, "The Future of the American Coach Horse," Mr. Fisher says: "It seems the scarcity of the American coach horse becomes more alarming as time passes on. It is due to the way the masses are trying to breed these horses."

"That is, the majority are dropping out of what I consider the American coach horse. There is no country that can produce a horse that can compete with the American trotter for a coach horse. To prove this, the recent sales of M. H. Tichenor & Co., of the American trotters in Castle Square Garden, New York, for the fabulous prices, prove conclusively that there is nothing can equal the American trotter for a coach horse. Why is it the farmers are forming syndicates and paying immense sums for the French stallion (the so-called coach horse) in the attempt to breed the American coach horse? Are they misinformed or is it through their ignorance in not knowing how to produce the American coach horse. It is high time the American horseman were awakening to this fact. The horse papers should take this matter up and do all in the power of their press to inform the farmers in regard to proper horse breeding."

"The coach horses of to-day that are bringing the long prices are American bred. Horses from 15.1 to 15.3 and weigh 1000 to 1150 with style, speed, action and conformation are money makers. The best coach horse buyers of to-day are looking for nothing but the American bred geldings and stallions, emasculating the stallion and fitting him up for the coach horse."

"Why is it, when it has been proven definitely that the American trotter brings the money, that the farmers are experimenting on the reproduction of the so-called coach horse? I will sound the note of warning and conclude by saying that one and only way to produce the coach horse is to breed to the American trotter."

Oakley Park Entries.

A big list of entries was received for the Oakley Park races of the Grand Circuit meeting, which opens at Cincinnati September 16th. In the 2:30 class trot, purse $5000, there are 28 nominators, some of which have named two or three horses. The California horses entered are Vic Shellar and Tom Smith, both named by B. O. Van Bokkolem. In the $3000 2:14 class trot the Santa Rosa Stock Farm names Janice, and Chas. Griffith has nominated Roet 2:16½, while Dick Benson of Kansas City has the good California mare Sybil S. by Hambletonian Wilkes. Two or three of the got of Dexter Prince owned in the East are also in this event, which has 19 nominators. The 2:24 pace, purse $3000, has the three California pacers entered, viz: Rajah by Chas. Derby, Thornway by Steinway, and Dr. Boucher's four year old Harry Logan. The number of nominators is 27. In the 2:14 pace, purse $3000, 14 have made nominations, but none of the California stables are represented. In the 2:09 pace, also a $3000 purse, Goshen Jim will try to sustain the reputation of this State. Pussy Willow, another California bred one, is also named. There are 14 nominators in this event.

The American Trainer.

An Eastern turf writer aptly says: "The American trainer is an American product pure and unalloyed. At his best he comes from the trotting turf, which has no comparative in Europe. The trotter was produced and developed in America. His production, development and training required more ability, attention and study than the training of the runner. Running has always been a natural racing action, while trotting scarcely is. The natural action of the trotter had to be improved upon, corrected and developed. To do this the trotting trainer had to become a student of equine anatomy to a greater degree than his running-horse compeer. The trotting turf has been responsible for the great improvement in American shoeing over English methods, toe-weighting, hobbling and checking of trotters showed that Americans had acquired a much wider knowledge of the fast horse than Englishmen. To shoe, bit and gait a horse—things which are hardly done at all in England—required a finer and deeper knowledge of the horse than Englishmen possessed."

Successful Meeting at Denver.

Six thousand people attended the opening of the meeting last Saturday and the telegraphic reports say that large crowds are present every day. The full account of the races during this week have not yet reached us but the telegraphic summaries tell the results. Fred Mulholland, of San Francisco, is acceptably filling the position of presiding judge, and R. J. Haver is doing the starting. On the opening day of the meeting W. G. Durfee won a good race with his horse Charlie, although he did not win. The track was deep in mud and the time made was good considering the circumstances.

On the second day Durfee started Dr. Shorb in the 2:35 class but failed to get inside the money. On Tuesday Dr. Boncher started his pacer Harry Logan, son of Miss Logan 2:06½ in the $1000 purse for the 2:20 class and got second money. Winfield Stratton, a son of Saraway, brother to Chas. Derby, won this race in straight heats. Winfield Stratton got a mark of 2:22½ last year and reduced it to 2:15½ in this race which he won in straight heats. The harness racing on Wednesday was for local trotters and pacers and both races were for trophies, no money prizes being given. The running events have had good fields and the contests have given general satisfaction. The summaries of the races as received by telegraph are as follows:

Contraction of the Feet.

Contraction is thought by many to be an original disease coming from a previously healthy foot, but this is a mistake except in very rare instances, says a writer in the Horseshoers' Journal. It is generally the effect of some other disease, especially when bad. Contraction may accompany navicular disease, corns, founder, sprains of the tendons, ligaments and muscles of the leg or shoulder. Any long-standing lameness of the foot or leg is generally accompanied by contraction from the continual rest the foot gets in being favored every time the horse stops. When standing he always points the affected hoof and rests it until compelled to start again; at the same time the healthy hoof expands on account of getting more than its share of the work, so it is only a question of a short time before the hoofs will become very unequal in size, one smaller than the other. When you observe this condition you may look for chronic lameness. But contraction, to a certain extent, is the inevitable result of shoeing. A colt's foot, before being shod, is large, round and open-heeled, the sole part having the appearance of a large saucer. The cause of the colt's foot being so round and open is that he runs on the turf without shoes, the feet have taken in much moisture, but kept so soft by the sole and frog coming in contact with the earth that they act like a sponge, being compressed when stepped on and expanding as soon as relieved of weight, so that the foot is spread every time the horse steps. Another reason is the hoof being in moisture much of the time, it grows faster and extra fast growth inclines the hoof towards spreading, whereas the slow growth inclines to contraction, and as soon as the colt is shod with a common shoe and put to work on the pavements, the bearing is taken away from the sole and frog and put on the shell of the foot, which produces too much strain on the laminae, thus greatly changing conditions.

Good shoeing will do a great deal towards preventing contraction and keeping the feet in good condition, and bad shoeing will ruin a foot in a very short time. There is no more productive cause than leaving the shoes on six or eight weeks without being reset, for the shoe being nailed to the hoof compels it to grow down in the form prescribed by the shoe, and when it is removed and the hoof pared down to its natural size you will find the heels very much contracted. Another common cause is standing on hard floors, allowing the foot to become all dried up and the shell of the hoof pressing against the laminae stops the circulation of the blood more or less and causes great pain, irritation and lameness. Again, as contraction takes place, the coffin bone being wider at the base than at the summit, as the sole of the foot arches it, forces upward the coffin bone which infringes upon the coronary band and prevents the secretory powers from performing their natural functions. When there is no disease in the foot and contraction comes from bad or neglected shoeing, pare the foot down well, open up all they will bear, rasp off the quarters quite thin, leave the frog as large as possible, then rub in a fly blister to the coronet, smear the quarters with vaseline once a day, and then turn out to pasture on soft ground. If you do not wish to turn the horse out, he may be shod with tips and a rubber pad that will give airing to the sole as well as frog pressure. The foot should be pared about 50 degrees and the tip well rounded at the toe as so as to relieve any strain on the tendons and prevent stumbling, and in three or four months you will have a decent foot. There are several methods of spreading the heels by force, but in the long run they are all impracticable, and cannot be recommended.

Lexington Notes.

[Kentucky Stock Farm.]

John Kelly has five two year olds in his stable, and they are all stepping true. All are by Larabee, and are all fillies but one, a colt out of Lucy Carr 2:14½.

Late reports from Louisville are to the effect that Sister Alice 2:10½ is stepping fast. She is in Ben Kenney's stable. Pauline G., who stopped a sensational trial last year, is showing Trainer Engleman a lot of speed.

Those who have seen Directum Miller, in Roy Miller's stable at Louisville, agree that he is one of the grandest looking colts in training, and from all accounts he is just as good as he looks. All the horses in this stable are in fine shape and doing well.

Trainer Orrin Hickok, the veteran California horseman, came to Lexington Saturday and spent Sunday here. He is looking well and is enjoying splendid health. He is training a good stable at the Cleveland track, and will probably take several from here when he returns.

L. V. Harkness, proprietor of the Walnut Hall Farm, arrived in Lexington on Saturday from San Francisco. The object of his trip here at this time was to see his horses that Ed. Benyon took to Cleveland on Monday. The horses are all in great shape, and Mr. Harkness is highly pleased with them. They will be trained at the Glenville track for several weeks before Mr. Benyon takes them to the races.

On Wednesday of last week John Kelly drove the mare Quoddy Girl 2:21 a mile in 2:13. She was timed by J. L. Tarlton, John D. Creighton and Alexander MacLaren, her owner, and the mile was the fastest of the season to date by either trotter or pacer. Quoddy Girl took her record of 2:24 at Perth, Ont., in 1898. She is by Dominick, dam Lady Norwood by Norwood, and from all appearances is one of the best ever trained at the Lexington track. She was bred by H. C. Harvey of Eureka, Kan.

Geo. W. Leavitt has been offered $6000 for the great two year old, Todd, a $2000 profit. He says: "I fooled Bingen away, and I am not going to make another mistake." Todd shows a 2:10 gait.

HOOF BEATS.

Reet 2:16½ will make his first start at Pekin, Illinois, during the week of July 1st to 6th.

James Thomson sold Little Thorne 2:07½ to a Chicago gentleman last Wednesday for $3500.

Captain Haff 2:27½, brother to Arion 2:07½, is being touted as one of the real fast ones at Rendville.

Tempest 2:19, the daughter of Hawthorne, that made a trip to South America and return, will be bred to Baronet 2:11 this season.

With the exception of two youngsters entered in this year's futurities, none of the horses of the late W. E. Spier will be raced.

Miss Rose, the unbeaten, is entered in $11,000 worth of stakes. H. S. Croy says she races better in September and October than in the hot summer months.

Motanie, the handsome pacer by Chelalis 2:04½, owned by Mr. John Wise of this city, and being trained by Henry Hellman of San Jose, worked a mile in 2:15 last week.

Joe Thayer has been contributing to the different associations for three or four years by entering The Bondsman, who, each year, has not been in condition to start after full payments have been made.

There is a little pacer over at Pleasanton by Direct out of the gray mare Queenie by Dexter Bradford that is a very fast little rascal. Queenie is pacing fast herself this year and worked a mile in 2:18 at Alameda the other day.

Eureka 2:15½ was sold at auction at Philadelphia last week and brought an even thousand dollars. Dr. H. W. Lobb of the Quaker City was the purchaser. At the same sale the mare Ireta, by Ira, dam by Poscora Hayward, sold for $345.

Knap McCarthy visited Empire City Park last Sunday and was pleased with its training outlook. He says Coney and Martha Marshall showed the fastest workouts at Charter Oak Park last week—the former going in 2:16 and the latter in 2:14½.

W. B. Alexander of Du Bois, Pa., has purchased the pacer Princeaway 2:22, by Steynway, from S. J. Schreengost. The horse has shown a mile in 2:10 and has paced a half mile over the Du Bois track in 1:04. Princeaway's dam is Princess, the dam of Derby Princess 2:08½.

The well-known trotting mare Rilma 2:09½ who won the $10,000 M. and M. stake at Detroit in 1897, and who has been extensively engaged in the 2:10 stakes for this season, has gone lame, and W. O. Foote left her at his Texas home when he brought his stable north. In all probability Rilma will never race again.

There is a five year old trotter at the Oakwood Park Stock Farm that is heralded by some who have lately seen him move as a second Azote. William G. Layng was up to the farm recently and reports that Balu is the grandest trotter he ever saw. He says he goes without boots, weights or anything, and can show a quarter in 32 seconds anytime. This gelding is five years old and Mr. Layng states that he worked three heats better than 2:18 last year. He is a chestnut and is by Chas. Derby out of Empress, the dam of King Cadenza 2:15½, by Flaxall.

A practical illustration of the good done by the driving clubs was shown at Toledo, Ohio, recently, after Mr. Z. H. Travis' recent purchase, the handsome bay trotter Sallie Simmons, made her first appearance at a Toledo matinee. Every horseman commented favorably on her breezy looking form, her style, handsome carriage and extreme speed. Geo. H. Ketcham was one of this animal's admirers, and early in the week he set out to try to purchase her for his friend, Louis Winans of Brighton, Eng. A cablegram to that gentleman, describing the mare and naming the price, $1000, brought a quick reply to buy and ship her.

Senator J. W. Bailey of Texas, in conversation with a number of friends, recently said: "I am doing something in the way of breeding trotters that no other man in the United States is doing. I have twelve mares, all of which are standard for not less than four crosses back, and none of which have a drop of Wilkes or Electioneer blood. Now, I am going to breed these mares so as to interlace the Wilkes and Electioneer crosses. I have begun this year by breeding to Charley Williams' stallions, and I'm going to breed on and on each year, but never more than twelve mares, because I am of the opinion that I could not give a greater number proper attention. I am satisfied that I will obtain good results from this system of breeding."

Two Famous Mares and Foals.

Two famous mares have produced foals during this month. Alix 2:03½, still holder of the world's trotting record for mares, has a bay filly by Handspring 2:26½, son of Prodigal. Handspring took his record of 2:26½ as a two year old and is expected to take a very fast record this year. He is owned by the Hon. E. C. Sayles of Woonsocket, R. I., who also owns Alix and her foal. This is Alix's second foal, her first being a three year old by Sable Wilkes 2:18. Nancy Hanks 2:01, trotting queen until dethroned by Alix, has also a nice bay filly by Peter the Great 2:07½. Of all the trotting queens, Nancy Hanks has been the most prolific. This is her fifth foal. She has had two by Arion 2:07½, one by Bingen 2:06½, one by the thoroughbred stallion Meddler, and this one by Peter the Great. She, as well as the trotting sires to which she has produced, and all her foals are owned at Forbes' Farm, Ponkapog, Mass., and if she lives to attain the average equine age she will leave a big family.—Trotter and Pacer.

SULKY NOTES.

Bonnie Direct will be placed in Myron McHenry's string when he reaches Detroit.

The Spokane Inter-State Fair will open September 10th and continue until September 21st.

Chas. Griffith has entered Rect 2:16½ in the 2:14 trot at the Oakley Park meeting, Cincinnati.

Cecil worked Rey Direct a mile in 2:16, last half in 1:07, the day after he arrived at Cleveland.

Some of the horses that were getting fast miles a month ago are getting the firing iron now.

Silver Bow, Jr., the green trotter owned by Isaac Morehouse, is trotting like a future race winner.

Myron McHenry will drive Mr. Mulcahey's mare Algonetta, by Eros, in the M. and M. at Detroit.

Scott McCoy thinks Directum Kelly 2:08½ is good enough to race well and lower his record this year.

Ima Electrite's great speed did not show up in the 2:14 trot at Denver. She was distanced the first heat.

Humboldt Maid 2:13½ and Waldstein Jr. are now in training at Joliet, Ill., Eugene Benson having them in charge.

Horses are working fast at the Alameda track. A trotter went a half in 1:07 there recently and a pacer a mile in 2:15.

There are twenty-six trotters and fifteen pacers with records of 2:15 or better working at the Glenville track at Cleveland.

Six $1000 stakes are open for entries, but they will close July 1st. They are offered for the Breeders Sacramento meeting.

Los Angeles entries close July 1st. Don't be thrown out of the chance of winning some of that good money by failing to enter.

Silkwood 2:07 has made a heavy season at Reading, Kansas, this year. It is said that he has served a hundred mares at $25.

The P. C. T. H. B. A. failed to get a quorum at the members meeting last Wednesday and the old board of directors will hold over.

The records of 35 horses were rejected last year because the track managers failed to send in official reports to the American Trotting Association.

E. J. Trauter, secretary of the Titusville track, now owns Agitato 2:09, and has placed him in a trainer's hands to prepare him for the races this year.

Messrs. Fred Thompson, F. G. O'Kane and J. C. Ohlandt are to act as judges at the Golden Gate Driving Club races at Oakland on the 4th of July.

It is reported that the old time Iowa trainer, John Tilden, has lost his earnings of long years in the sulky through the collapse of a Portland, Or., bank.

W. L. Elkins, who sold Red Cloud to Thomas Lawson, has another crack high-stepper in Lenox, a son of Ora Wilkes 2:11, dam by Daniel Lambert.

Dexter Prince should have a numerous addition to his 2:30 list this season, if a fair proportion of those of his get entered in the Eastern races secure records.

The first mile in 2:10 since the new century opened was made by the pacing mare Effie Powers in a race at Baltimore on June 5th. The mare won a heat in 2:09.

A nice black driving team is advertised for sale in our business columns. Both horses drive single as well as double, are trotters, perfectly sound and well mated.

Contractors for the British army are still buying horses and mules as extensively as ever in the west, notwithstanding reports that the trade had been stopped.

Read the program of the Santa Barbara Trotting Association in our advertising columns. The meeting will be held July 4th and 5th. Entries close next Tuesday.

Jack Roach, the three year old Boreal colt Thomas Lawson has in Pat Ryan's stable at Louisville, is good this spring. He has been a mile in 2:25½ and a quarter in 33 seconds.

Last year the Villago farm stable was shy on pacers. This year Geers has four excellent prospects in Diamond King, Shadow Chimes, the Aristocrat and King Charles.

Nutwood Wilkes 2:16½, has been bred to sixty mares and has a dozen more booked. Among those sent to him lately are Mabel the dam of Directly 2:03½, and a full sister to that great pacer.

Jack Trout has driven Anaconda a mile in 2:10½. This sounds almost too fast, yet Anaconda is getting a slower preparation this year than ever before. Last year he paced a mile in 2:07 in May.

The breeding season will close July 1st. Don't let your mare go by this year without being bred. Horses are rising in value every day, and the three year old of 1904 will just about top the market.

Mr. David Smalley of Haywards, one of our constant readers, writes under date of June 10th, renewing his subscription, and adds that "the horses and colts at the Meek track are showing well. All of the Welcome three year olds, the McKinney three year old and a Direct filly are working inside the standard mark, and some of them dangerously so. My Altamont three year old, for the work he has had, is satisfactory. He is a fine looker and I expect good results in the near future."

It is probable that the Boston candidates for the $1000 challenge cup won by John A. McKerron last year, and which will be competed for this year at Cleveland, will be Boralma, Senator L. and Miss Whitney.

The stallion Sweet Director that won at Baltimore two weeks ago, taking a record of 2:20½, is a six year old by Director 2:17, dam Sweetness by Alcazar, second dam Sweetness 2:21, dam of Sidney 2:19½ and others, by Volunteer.

The Santa Barbara races, which will be held the 4th and 5th of July, are not given by the Agricultural District Association, but by a local club. No fair will be held by the district organization this year, but it will hold one in 1902.

Johnny Quinn is working three or four promising young horses at the Santa Rosa track. He has the horse Black Bart by Robin out of an Anteco mare that is going well and should be quite a trotter. He belongs to Mr. Charlton of Ukiah.

Thirteen California horses have been entered in the early closing events for the big meeting at Memphis. Secretary Murray Howo received an average of over fifty entries to each race. It will be one of the greatest harness meetings ever held.

The time for closing entries to the six $1000 stakes offered by the Breeders Association, and the harness events of the Los Angeles meeting, is drawing nigh. One week from Monday next is the time, July 1st. Have your entry blanks filled out and ready.

Dan McCarthy has transferred 100 head of horses, consisting of runners, trotters and carriage horses, to Captain John Hackett of Oakland to satisfy a mortgage. Captain Hackett intends to dispose of the horses at public auction, the date of sale to be announced later.

Entries to the races to be given by the Golden Gate Park Driving Association races to take place at Oakland July 4th, will close on Tuesday evening next, June 25th. There will be five purses of $150 each. A large number of the members have already made entries.

Ed Geers says: The groom is a very important factor in the success of a racing stable, and any man who learns to care for his horses as he should, and does his work well, deserves just as much credit for the success of a race as does the man who trains and drives the horse.

The Mendocino County District Fair will probably be held the last of September or the first of October, this year. It will be held at Ukiah, where a good half mile track is located. Mr. H. B. Smith of Ukiah informs us that about forty new box stalls are being erected at the track.

Four days of racing at Yreka, beginning July 3d will furnish good sport and many opportunities for racing. There will be purses for both harness horses and runners. It is said a carload of runners will go up there from this city. A San Francisco bookmaker has the betting privilege.

L. A. Davies, 8 N. Clark street, Chicago, president of the Calumet Stock Farm, offers a liberal reward for information leading to the arrest of Harry Lewis, who, while in charge of Roy Wilkes 2:06½ at Rushville, Ind., is claimed to have embezzled several hundred dollars from Mr. Davies' Company.

The Abbot is not stepping like a horse that is all in, as Orrin Hickok dubbed him. He went a mile in 2:13 the other day, the last half in 1:04, and for a horse of his class that is sound this looks as though he is just as good if not better than he ever was in his life as the season is very young yet.

H. Bolster, the Secretary and Manager of the Spokane Inter-State Fair, is putting lots of energy and work into the preliminary arrangements for that exposition which cannot help but be effective. Spokane will have a great exposition in September. $10,000 will be given to the speed program.

Millard Sanders will take Dolly Dillon 2:11½, Janice 2:13½, Venus II 2:11½ and Zarina 2:13½ to the Windsor meeting. He will leave Eula Mac, Funston and Captivity at Cleveland until after the meeting to be held there. Millard worked Dolly Dillon a quarter in 31 seconds and Janice an eighth in 15 seconds one day last week.

Thes. W. Lawson of Boston has just issued a handsome little catalogue, vest-pocket size, of his trotting stable. It contains the names of 38 stallions, mares and geldings, each occupying a page with pedigree tabulated to the third cross. It is one of the most complete and handy reference books ever issued by an owner.

Neva Simmons 2:34½, is entered in $85,000 of stakes. This is probably more money than any harness horse ever trotted for in one season. Baum has not only entered her in the slow classes, but in races like the Transylvania where she will meet the cracks of the 2:12 class. Her first important race will be the M. and M.

Daghestan, the full brother to Georgie B. 2:12½, by Nutwood Wilkes 2:16½, was sold to a Seattle man a short time ago and reports come from there that he is trotting like a whirlwind, having worked a half in 1:05½ recently. Daghestan took a record of 2:29 at Stockton in 1899, as a three year old. He is one of the best gaited trotters ever seen and a very low record is predicted for him if he keeps right.

Jim Thompson sent Goshen Jim a mile in 2:12½, last half in 1:03½, and last quarter in 30½ seconds, at the Glenville track, Cleveland, on Wednesday of last week. The Sportsman says Thompson was pulling the big horse at the finish at that. The California orator also drove Thornway a quarter in 31½ seconds, and Rajah a half in 1:11.

A Colorado bred range horse named Broncho, purchased by the Newark, N. J., Board of Health for $15 six years ago, has outlived its usefulness after having been the direct means of saving many lives and will be retired. Since it was bought the horse has furnished $9000 worth of antitoxin for the use of physicians in curing diphtheria.

Charlie Mac 2:17½, was a contender for every heat in the 2:14 trot won in straight heats by Trilby P. 2:13½ on the opening day of the Denver meeting. The track was so heavy from the rain of the previous day that there was some talk of postponing the harness events. The time, 2:23, 2:18 and 2:20 was considered very good. Charlie Mac was only beaten a nose in the second heat.

Not to be outdone by the American-bred thoroughbreds, which have been winning across the water, the American-bred trotters have been making a clean sweep on the continent. Greenbrino 2:10½, by Woodbrino, was the star performer at the recent Vienna meeting, the contending horses in nearly all his races being Axmere 2:13½, by Axtell, also an American-bred trotter.

Mr. J. A. Jones of Springbrook, Oregon, has bred two mares to Zombro since that horse reached Salem and will probably send two more. One of the mares bred is Daisy Hill by Altamont, dam Bello Prince by Doble 1106. Belle Prince is the dam of four sons with standard records, namely Multonomah 2:26, Pricemont 2:26, Malheur 2:27 and Oneco 2:29½. Each of these sons is a producing sire.

Winnie Wilkes, the pacing daughter of Rey Wilkes and a mare by Cresco has a yearling by Diablo 2:09 that is nearly as tall as she is and acts as though she would be a trotter. She has been entered in the Stanford Stake by her owner Mr. R. P. M. Greeley of Oakland. Winnie Wilkes has been sent to Ed Lafferty at Sacramento to train for the races this year. Rey Wilkes her sire is a son of Mambrino Wilkes.

"The question naturally arises," writes Frank G. Smith in The Horse World, "how fast must a so called green pacer be able to step in order to have a sure thing down the Grand Circuit? Echo answers, twice better than 2:08, and another heat right close to the mark. Twenty years ago a person would have been called a lunatic to have printed a statement like this, but times have changed since the old stars of the turf held the boards."

Steamplough is the name given a big black pacing gelding that is creating a sensation at Honolulu. He recently came into the hands of C. H. Judd to train and it is said paced a couple of workout heats a few weeks thereafter in 2:21 and 2:16½. His pedigree is not given by the Honolulu papers that devote a large space to his "wonderful speed." He was to have started in the races there June 11th, particulars of which will probably reach us by the next steamer.

William Collins of Wellington, Kan., has a horse that is quite a curiosity in its way. It has a well developed mustache that completely covers its upper lip. It is quite a stylish mustache, too, of the straw-berry blonde order. It parts in the middle very nicely and has a regular military curve and twist to it. The horse is a blaze-faced bay of the Indian pony type. The mustache is in the height of its glory in the winter time. When its wearer has to make his living in the summer time it wears off, but just now it is about five inches long.

Frank Dale, the very promising three year old in Johnny Blue's string, won the first heat of his first race at Denver in 2:30½, and as Blue came back to dismount a groom raised a blanket to throw over the horse, at which the colt took fright, reared and fell. He was so badly injured that he had to be withdrawn from the race. Frank Dale is by Chas Derby out of Abanteo 2:17½ and resembles that good horse Owyhoo very much. Blue purchased him from the Oakwood Stock Farm this spring for $600.

P. W. Hodges has three of the got of Nutwood Wilkes 2:16½ in his stable at San Jose, two three year olds and a two year old. Of the three year olds he has worked the stallion T. C. a mile in 2:24, last quarter in 35 seconds, and a sister to Central Girl a mile in 2:28½. Both these trotters are working faster every time they come out, the last named dropping from 2:35 to 2:28½ within a week. The two year old is the pacing brother to Bob Ingersoll 2:14½, and is not being given very much work, but he paces eighths in 18 seconds very handily.

Mr. D. J. Cables of Lima, Ohio, is the owner of the stallion Frank Irvington, a son of Nutwood Wilkes 2:16½, and Nettie G. by Anteco. Mr. Cables writes that Frank Irvington has made a heavy season in the stud this year, but will be put in training for the races this month. He is a line trotter and fast. A daughter of Nettie G. sired by Wilkes Direct 2:22, son of Nutwood Wilkes is being worked at the San Jose track and trotted a mile in 2:21 recently. She belongs to Mr. Baumgartner of the Fredericksburg Brewery and owner of the fast pacer Fredericksburg 2:12.

If a Californian should stop off at Cleveland these days he would feel right at home among the horses, as in addition to a large number of California horses owned in that city, he would find the following in training at the Glenville track: Little Thorne (p) 2:07½, Rey Direct (p) 2:10, Goshen Jim (p) 2:10½, Dolly Dillon 2:11½, Venus II 2:11½, Zarina 2:13½, Janice 2:13½, Peebe Childers 2:10½, Eula Mac 2:17½, Aster 2:12, Our Lucky 2:13½, Bob Ingersoll 2:14½, Lady Walstein 2:15, Algoneta, Funston, Stanton Wilkes, Zephyr, Thornway, Rajah and Harry Madison 2:27½.

THE SADDLE.

Alcedo Won the Suburban.

Twenty thousand people were at the Gravesend track last Saturday to see the Suburban run. It is one of the American classics and at each recurrence recalls the year when Salvator, the swift, captured it and ran the distance in 2:06 4-5. This was eleven years ago, and since then Salvator's time has been beaten a fifth of a second the year Lowlander won, three-fifths of a second when Ramapo came in first, and equalled last year by Kinley Mack. This year Ethelbert was favorite, the odds at post time being Ethelbert, 13 to 10; Alcedo, 4 to 1; Star Bright, 4 to 1; Kamara, 8 to 1; Toddy, 30 to 1; Sidney Lucas, 25 to 1; Watercure, 10 to 1; Blues, 8 to 1; All Gold, 30 to 1; Beau Gallant, 30 to 1; Procession 40 to 1. In the sixth break they were off to a good start, with Watercure in front, Alcedo second and Ethelbert, Star Bright and the rest close up.

On the way to the grand stand they settled into their stride, and as they came to the lower turn Alcedo got to the front, with All Gold second and Ethelbert third. Around the turn and to the half-mile pole on the back stretch there was little shifting of positions, Alcedo still holding the lead by a neck over Blues, who had come up from behind in the mix-up, All Gold falling back to fourth place. There was a pretty race between the leaders up the backstretch and everybody shouted at the streak of blue and white which was shooting by them all on the outside, for Toddy had elected to make his run then, and at the three-quarters pole he had a neck the better of Alcedo, who was a length and a half in front of Blues, he in turn being just clear of Ethelbert, who seemed to be in difficulty and slowing slipping back in the race.

That was not all Toddy could do, for in almost the twinkling of an eye he was in the lead by half a length then an open length in front as they swung around the broad upper turn. Spencer on Alcedo knew Toddy's limit, however, and aided his time. The seven furlong pole was in sight and he called on Alcedo, who responded bravely. One instant he gathered himself, and then in a series of herculean bounds he passed the Keene four year old almost as if he were standing still. It was a tremendous burst of speed and timed so that as they rounded into the last quarter Alcedo was a length to the good over Toddy, who was two lengths in front of the rest of the field, all of whom were dropping back beaten, with the exception of Watercure, on whom Shaw was making a desperate effort. Ethelbert, the pride of Perry Belmont's heart, was beaten, away back in the ruck, and was losing ground with every stride.

At last they were straightened out for home, and it was plain to everybody that, barring accident, the prize was a sure one for Alcedo, and Spencer took a steadying pull on the leader, but kept him well in his stride, so that any possible challenger would find him ready to meet the issue. In the meantime little Smith riding hard with hands and heels, was doing his best to hold Toddy in second place. He almost succeeded, but Shaw had the better horse and Watercure took the second place a few jumps from the wire. In the meantime Alcedo was running along comfortably in front, and when the wire was reached and he had carried off the great race of the year the crowd shouted as loudly as if Ethelbert had been the winner.

The race had a few spectacular features, but it seemed always as if Alcedo had the most speed, and the time 2:05 2-5, the fastest ever made in this great race, might have been less had there been a horse to push the winner. It was an easy victory for J. H. McCormick, who had told his friends that he would surely win. Summary:

The Suburban, one mile and a quarter—Alcedo, 112 (Spencer), 4 to 1 and 8 to 5, won; Watercure, 100 (Shaw), 10 to 1 and 3 to 1, second; Toddy, 100 (L. Smith), 30 to 1 and 10 to 1 third. Time 2:05 2-5. Ethelbert, Sidney Lucas, Star Bright, Beau Gallant, Procession, Kamara, Blues and All Gold also ran.

Rancho del Paso Yearlings Bring High Prices.

The sale of yearlings from the Rancho del Paso farm of M. J. B. Haggin was held in New York beginning June 14th, and concluded on the 19th. The total number of yearlings sold was 201, which brought a total of $233,925 or an average of $1163 per head. The largest prices of the sale were received for the get of St. Gatien, which is the more remarkable as these are his first crop of colts in the United States. A filly by him out of Florette, full sister to the great Firenze, went to H. T. Oxnard for $11,500, and a colt out of Turmoil, the sister to Chaos, brought $13,000. He was purchased by Sidney Paget. St. Gatien was bred by Major Brace in England, was unbeaten as a two year old and three year old. He was beaten but once in his four year form, and twice the following season, thus meeting but three defeats during four years on the turf. He ran a dead heat with Harvester for the Derby, and won many great stakes. He was sold for $70,000 for stud purposes to go to Germany, where he sired many good winners, was taken back to England and finally purchased by Mr. Haggin and brought to this country. He sired the unbeaten Meddler, imported to this country and owned by J. Malcolm Forbes. St. Gatien is by The Rover, son of Blair Athol, and his dam, St. Editha, is by Kingley Valo, out of Lady Alice by Chanticleer. She is the dam also of St. Symphorien, Sylvabelle, St. Alyre and other winners. It is the Agnes family, that of Ormonde, Kendal, imp. Order, imp. Star Ruby, Orme and others. St. Gatien is now twenty years old, having been foaled in 1881.

Paris Grand Prix Won by Cheri.

PARIS, June 16.—The Grand Prix de Paris was won by Cheri. Tibero was second and Lady Killer third.

After two false starts owing to the nervousness of Olympian, whom Henry had much difficulty in mastering, the horses got away in good shape, with Olympian ahead. Olympian maintained the lead for half the distance. Then, as he was taking the incline, the fast pace told upon him and it could be seen that he could not stay for the entire distance. Cheri, the winner, Tibero, who got second place, and Lady Killer, who was third, all passed Olympian coming down the hill into the stretch. Olympian, now hopelessly beaten, fell back and finished next to last. The winner covered the distance in 3:19.

Henry, the American jockey, had four mounts in today's races. In two he rode third and did not get a place in the others. Although Olympian failed to secure the Grand Prix to-day, the Americans here gather much satisfaction from the fact that for the first time in the history of this race the winning horse was ridden by an American jockey. His name is Rigby. The big American contingent present in the paddock to-day lost a considerable sum on Olympian, as well as on Henry's four mounts, as the success of yesterday tempted Americans and a large number of Frenchmen to back him to-day. The correct time of the race was 3:19. The betting in the mutuels on the Grand Prix totaled 1,706,840 francs.

Longchamps presented a brilliant scene during today's racing, and more pretty toilettes were visible than for several years past. The weather was overcast most of the time, but there was no rain and the contest for the Grand Prix was favored by a brief spell of sunshine. President Loubet, accompanied by his wife drove to the race course with the traditional ceremony of a four-horse landau, with outriders and escorted by cuirassiers, King Leopold of Belgium, who is on a special visit to Paris to attend the race, was also present, as were MM. Deschanel and Falieret and most of the Cabinet Ministers. The Count and Countess of Castellane were also present.

The victory of Cheri was popular as he is a French horse, but was a disappointment to a majority of the bettors, who backed Saxon as a certain winner. The betting on the favorite was even. On Cheri it was 14 to 1 against, 30 to 1 against on Tibero, 20 to 1 against on Lady Killer and 14 to 1 against on Olympian. There were no remarkable features in the other races of the day.

Thoroughbred Sale in British Columbia.

[Victoria Colonist, June 16th.]

Mr. Joshua Davies, auctioneer, yesterday conducted a successful sale of thoroughbred stock from the Malwot Stock Farm, North Saanich, at the Victoria Driving Park. That the fame of Vancouver Island horses has spread to that great race horse country, California, is shown by the fact that California horsemen were among the bidders. Frank Carolan, the well-known owner of race horses of San Francisco, purchased two of the youngsters offered, paying $400 for imp. Ero Pyro by Milford, out of Eastern Lily, and $225 for the filly Killease by Little Mid by Elysee. The other lots were sold at a much lower figure, the full list of those offered and the purchasers and prices being as follows:

Bandtail, b c, 1899, by Little Mid-Heartsease, by imp. Kyrle Daly. E. Woodin, $125.
Imp. Ero Pyro, b c, foaled May, 1899, by Milford, son of Saraband and Colleen Bawn, by Salvator (English), dam Eastern Lily, by Speculum, second dam Lily Agnes, dam of Ormonde. Frank Carolan of San Francisco, $400.
Killease, b f, 1899, by Little Mid-Elysee, by Fellow-charm. Frank Carolan, $225.
Wallop, br c, 1899, by Little Mid-imp. Wandillah, by Waterloo. F. A. Barlow, $140.
Worman, ch c, 1897, by Doncaster-imp. Wandillah. W. A. Scott, $140.
Chestnut filly, 1 year, unnamed, by Little Mid from Elysee. Bishop & Clarke for $55.
Chestnut filly, 1 year, by Little Mid from Tripol, a trotting-bred mare. J. Wilson for $75.

American Derby To-Day.

There has been a war against betting inaugurated at Chicago just as everyone who watched the course of events expected there would be. The only course that can run without the bookmakers is the Washington Park Club, which is managed as a club should be, for the sake of the sport instead of for the bookmakers. Secretary Howard says the American Derby will be run to-day whether there is betting or not and the probabilities are that it will be a great race. The indications are that there will be at least a dozen starters of which the following with their weights and jockeys, respectively, are counted as "sure":

Terminus (Coburn).....	122
His Eminence (Odom).....	127
Bonniebert (Bullman).....	127
The Parader (Laudry).....	127
Sadie S. (Stack).....	117
Beau Gallant (J. Daly).....	122
Outlander (Speucer).....	122
Silverdale (J. Woods).....	127
Lady Schorr (J. Miller).....	117
Robert Waddell (Dominick).....	119
Watercolor (F. Littlefield).....	122
Hernando (Winkfield).....	117
Sannazarro (J. Boland).....	122

Among the probable starters are: Operator, 122, J. Matthews; Alfonso, 122, —; Six Shooter, 122, T. Knight.

The Denver Times is printing a form chart each day of the races run at Overland Park. The Denver meeting is a great success, with several thousand attendance daily.

The Broncho.

The scouts and hunters of the west long ago learned the strong trait of instinct in our western bronchos and the more successful of them were accustomed to rely upon their horses to discover Indians or game at a distance at which they themselves could detect no trace of either. As for endurance, too much cannot be said in praise of the American horses descended from the plains animals. They are particularly valuable for use in a rough or wild country, because they are so completely self-reliant. Oats and hay are not necessities for the rango horses. They have picked their living for so many generations back that it has become an instinct with them. If there is grass under the snow they know how to find it. They fully appreciate the sustenance that is to be found in twigs and buds and the bark of young trees and can live where eastern-bred animals would probably starve.

SADDLE NOTES.

Joan Beraud has been sent back from England by Mr. Whitney and will be raced at New York this year.

Los Angeles will have a number of stake events for the runners. They will be announced in a few weeks.

The California-bred horse Olinthus was so badly injured in a steeplechase at Chicago last week that he may not start again for many weeks. He struck one of the obstacles in the race and a leg was very badly hurt.

The Tout—Yer see, boss, if do hoss starts at 15 to 1 you win a hunerd an' fifty wid de ton, an' if he starts at 10 to 1 yer gets a hunerd plunks clean. Seo? The Innocent—Oh, yes, I see perfectly. But what do I get if the horse starts at 1 o'clock exactly.—Exchange.

President Thos. H. Williams of the California Jockey Club was in New York this week and attended the big sale of thoroughbred yearlings at Madison Square Garden. He purchased for $1200 a bay colt by Himyar, dam the famous race mare Ida Pickwick by Mr. Pickwick.

Foxhall Koene, in discussing the advent of the Americans on the English race tracks, said recently: "It has been all for the benefit of the English turf. We have brought good horses over and the handicappers seem to appreciate them so highly that they generally race them at about the top of their handicap. That is a compliment we could sometimes do without. There are more than four hundred American horses in training in England and there will be more next year. American trainers are equal to any, though an Englishman trains my horses. Wishard, who trains Mr. Croker's horses, and Huggins, who trains for Mr. Whitney, cannot be beaten at their work. The English jockeys have learned a lot from ours. You see it daily. Altogether, Americans have improved English racing." Mr. Keene says that, contrary to supposition, the Americans are not heavy bettors on the English turf, but bet a little for sport's sake.

Julian Fleischmann has sold his noted stallion, Halma, by Hanover-Julia C., for $30,000, it is said. The purchaser is reported to be Jean de Reszke, the singer, who is generally recognized as one of the keenest horsemen in the Russian empire. Halma is not only a finely bred horse, but he was a famous racer in his time. He was bred by the late Byron McClelland, in whose color he captured the Phenix Hotel stakes, the Kentucky Derby, the Clark stakes, and the Latonia Derby. Halma was one of the greatest Western Derby winners, standing a bit higher than Ben Brush and on an equal footing with Ornament. Holding his own in the Russian empire may be difficult for Halma, because he will have as a rival the noted English Derby winner, Galtee More, who was bought by the Russian imperial government for $100,000 and sent to Poland to improve the quality of the Russian thoroughbred. Among Halma's first got as two year olds this season are Edward Kelly's Locket, the Fleischmann's Halberdier, and J. G. Follansbee's Somersault. As soon as the sale is confirmed by cable Halma will be shipped.

Doings in Dogdom.

Pine Hill Cocker Kennels, located at San Anselmo, have now on hand some choice young black and red puppies. These youngsters are bred on some of the best Cocker lines, coming from winning bench dogs on both sides.

Woodlawn Kennels will, next week, receive from J. T. Cooney, of Delta, Shasta county, the Bull Terrier bitch Richmond Lassie (Woodcote Venom-Countess) to be served by Ch. Woodcote Wonder. Lassie won first puppies and novice here in 1898.

R. M. Dodge, manager of the Stockdale Kennels, Bakersfield, writes us: "Everything goes on nicely here. I have been very much surprised of late to see so many well grown young quail. The old birds seem to be trying to make up for lost time, as the young chicks are to be seen everywhere. I suppose this is owing to the late rains, plenty of feed and very good cover, much better than for several years."

"The word bloodhound means really a pedigree bred hound," says Mrs. Oliphant, "in the same way that bloodhorse refers to a horse possessed of some particular strain of blood. It in no way means that the dog is thirsting for blood. If my hounds were tracking a lost child the child might cry as they surround it; but its tears would be licked off and an abundance of true affection would be all the child had to fear."

A. L. Klein sold an Irish Terrier dog sired by Ch. Endcliffe Muddle to L. G. Rowell this week. Mr. Rowell also purchased a Fox Terrier dog puppy out of the litter whelped last week by Warren Corinne. This litter was sired by Limefield Roderick. Mr. Rowell will take care of Corinne at his kennels until the puppies are weaned.

Encliffe Lita, a Boston Terrier in Mr. Klein's string, has been turned over to J. F. Gleason, who will keep the bitch until a prospective litter of young Bostons are raised.

It is a very curious fact, which very few people but doctors and oculists know anything about, that the liquid which composes the inside of the ball of your eye is not sluggish and stagnant, but instantly flows slowly forward from behind.

The way this was proved was ingenious. A dog was selected, and into the back of its eye a quantity of yellow prussiate of potash was injected. An hour later the animal was killed, and the eye removed and soaked in a solution of chloride of iron, then hardened in alcohol and examined. Under the microscope it was observed that the front of the eye was colored Prussian blue from the combination of prussiate and the iron, thus proving that the injection had moved forward.

Henry Jarrett, Esq., has offered a $50 cup to be known as the Wellsbourne Cup, for the best American bred black, white and tan Collie dog or bitch, to be competed for annually at New York and Philadelphia, cup to be won four times by same exhibitor before becoming his or her absolute property. Robert A. Murray, Esq., offers a similar cup, similar conditions, to be known as the Henover Cup, for the best sable and white, to be competed for annually at New York and Boston.

Black & Hunter offer a similar cup, conditions not yet decided on, to be known as the Brandane Cup to be competed for annually at Pittsburg and Chicago. Other cups and valuable specials are expected from several of the Collie club's prominent members, and leading exporters in England and Scotland.

Charles Newman knows a good thing in dogs when he sees it. Fitz Luecke of Sacramento, an ardent St. Bernard fancier, called at our sanetum on Wednesday accompanied by a three year old dog, Lester C. This dog is by Alta Millo out of A. F. Muenster's Queen of the Joaquin, she by Reglov ex Empress Juno. Lester C. stands 32 inches high at the shoulder and weighs about 210 pounds—he can stand 20 or 30 pounds more easily. He is not only a very good specimen of the "Holy" breed; but for a big dog is far better than the average, excepting a rather light muzzle, he has a typical Alta Millo head. He has good bone and fair body conformation and for such a large animal stands up splendidly on his legs, his forelegs and feet are good and his hind legs excellent. This dog properly handled will win out over most of the dogs we have here at present. Needless to say Mr. Newman did not waste much time in coming to terms when he found Mr. Luecke was willing to sell.

"Too Much Hickman."

A communication with the above captain in the current number of Man's Best Friend, seems to have been prompted not only by a spirit of chagrin and disappointment but there is also an apparant disclosure of inside affairs anent the May show here that is a humiliating admission that "crow" is a very unpalatable dish. The writer states a few distorted truths and also deliberately misstates certain facts.

The bringing out here of Dr. Kendall's Boston Terrier Meg was for the double purpose of forestalling the secretary's alleged porcine "mug hunting" proclivities and also to induce the Fox Terrier men to make entries. They urged that the year previous the best cup offered at the show was placed for the Boston Terriers (there was but five entries), the secretary knowing well that he could win. Fox Terrier men looked upon this as an unfair and invidious distinction, claiming that Boston Terriers were not, by reason of so few of the breed benchod, entitled to such valuable consideration. However whether their "kiek" was of merit or no, Mr. Hickman undertook to placate them by offering to produce a dog which would change the run of the cards. This was after the premium list had been published. At all events the cup offered by the jockey club was not won by his dog this year, and further, the bitch Encliffe Lita would beat Lady Montez at any show and under any judge in the country. The statement that L. A. Klein's dogs were not in condition is evidently given in a splenetic mood—the dogs were in fit shape all round.

The true story, so we are advised, of the reason for shifting Boston Terriers from Mr. Jarrett to Mr. Lynn is an amusing one and is replete with a spirit of pettyfogging cunning that we readily recognize from personal experience. It seems that Mr. Lynn, who judged gratuitously, was to have judged all terriers, the records of the kennel club will show that, so it is claimed. Mr. Norman informed Mr. Hickman one day that he had received a letter from Mr. H. H. Carlton, requesting that, if possible, Mr. Jarrett should judge Bostons, as he well understood the breed. Norman urged that as he and Carlton were the only breeders of Bostons here that the change should be made. He saw several other members of the bench show committee and reiterated the Carlton story—which the latter gentleman has since, so we are informed, branded as a fabrication emanating entirely from the fertile brain of the secretary. The day after Norman's interview with Hickman the premium list appeared with Mr. Jarrett booked for Bostons. This change was not relished by the other members of the bench show committee. When Mr. Lynn arrived, he simply insisted that the club adhere to the original schedule under which he agreed to judge. He was right and his request was respected. The assertion that there has been "no little comment that Bostons were judged by Mr. Lynn" while they were published as assigned to Mr. Jarrett, is a specious one. What comment, if any, has been made, must naturally have resulted from the juggling detailed above. The reason there was a mix-up in the awards, to some breeds, is as we have stated previously, the judges' books supplied and method of detail in registering awards were faulty and cumbersome. The matter of buying and selling Fox Terriers, intimated by "Frisco," is amusing to say the least, and is tainted with the odor of "you're another."

Kennel Suggestions.

A great deal has been written about the best food for dogs. It is impossible to lay down hard and fast rules which will cover the requirements of all breeds and which can be adhered to systematically without variation. The best means of deciding how much a dog should have as his daily allowance will be to experiment and see how much he will take freely without wasting any. This can be done by giving him a fairly large quantity, more than he will really require, and then remove what he leaves. Do not let this remain, but take it right away until the next meal time. There are so many different foods suitable for dogs that there ought not to be any difficulty in arranging a good variety. Apart from the ordinary dog biscuits, of which there are so many excellent kinds in the market, there is nothing better, it has been claimed, than good oatmeal, which should be thoroughly cooked, and then can be mixed up with suet and boiled rice and tripe, according to circumstances. Two meals a day ought to be quite sufficient—the first being the lighter of the two. Some fanciers believe in giving dogs a good meal to finish up the day with.

We do not believe in horse flesh and other waste products for dogs, as is the practice in some localities. They are apt to generate all sorts of diseases, for it is well known that a horse is rarely slaughtered unless he has contracted some disease, or unless he is suffering from senile decay. The flesh of such animals is certainly not calculated to keep dogs in sound health—in fact a good many cases are on record in which tuberculous and other diseases have undoubtedly been brought about by the dogs having been fed on unsuitable and undesirable food. Liver is very good for dogs, and once a week a meal of that should be given. It has a well known laxative effect, especially if given raw, but most people will prefer to give it well cooked.

The feeding of a dog will have to be measured somewhat according to the amount of work he is called upon to do. For example, raw meat should never be given to a dog tied up in a yard, because it is too stimulating altogether; and in the case of such a dog, it is better to confine the diet to oatmeal and vegetable, with comparatively little meat. Let it be understood that we do not in any shape or form wish to encourage people in keeping dogs tied up. In our opinion, this is a form of cruelty far too freely practiced. It ought to be possible at least once a day to give a dog an opportunity of exercising himself for a short time. Not only so, but we have seen animals tied up week after week and month after month with hardly any opportunity for exercise and kept in this condition until they reach such a state of skin irritation that their lives are a perfect misery; and this is not to be wondered at, for unless a dog is properly groomed or allowed to roll about and groom himself properly, it is impossible for him to keep free from vermin and to remain in a sound condition of health.

Dogs ought not to be allowed to gorge themselves with food. They ought just to have as much as they will eat with an appetite and as soon as they begin to turn the food over and mess with it it should be taken away until the next meal time. If a dog neglects his food and does not seem ready for it and will not be coaxed into feeding, he should be kept under observation for the very simple reason that he is going to be ill. In our own case, if we feel unwell we at once lose appetite; and this in a dog is a very unfavorable sign. Should a dog therefore refuse his food the best thing will be to keep him apart, or under surveillance, until his next meal time. Then if he still refuses do not press it upon him but give him a good dose of medicine, either castor oil or Epsom salts, either of which will answer very well, and then wait for further developments. Epsom salts, however, has upon the smaller breeds and young dogs too drastic an effect, it has been found that sweet oil and syrup of buckthorn is an admirable laxative. A good recipe for a young dog is the following: Castor oil, 3 parts; buckthorn syrup, 2 parts and white poppy syrup, 1 part; this remedy is also an effective vermifuge. The dose, once a day, generally one-half a teaspoonful, depends upon the age and size of the dog. Give for two or three days and watch for improvement in the dogs condition. If it is merely a passing headache or some minor ailment that he is suffering from, your dose of physic will probably have put him right. If, on the other hand, he is developing distemper or any other serious complaint, your treatment will have had the effect of checking any tendency to feverishness and of generally clearing his system, which will be an important step towards arresting the disease in its first stage and dealing with it effectively to a cure.

The food for dogs in bad health or invalid dogs will have to be prepared with extra care and with special regard to cleanliness. Invalid dogs are very sensitive much in the same way as human invalids are, and a great deal of coaxing and management will be needed in the case of a dog suffering from the exhaustion of serious illness in order that he may be persuaded to take suitable food to increase his strength. The poor brute often will feel utterly unable to take anything, and yet it is desirable he should not be allowed to get any weaker, and it may be necessary to force food upon him. This must be done with great care and of necessity the food given will be liquid. As soon as a dog recovering from illness shows signs of a ravenous appetite the reverse must be done, and be must be carefully checked. It is likely that if he is not checked that he will fill himself to repletion and will become worse instead of steadily growing better. Then he must have a limited allowance, which at first can be given frequently, and a gradual return can be effected toward the system of feeding twice daily.

We have not very much faith in artificial beef tea for invalid dogs, believing as we do that a satisfactory nourishment can be gained from beef tea made direct from good lean beef. The meat should be cut up into very fine pieces and should be boiled for at least twenty minutes—that is to say that twenty minutes at least should elapse from the time it begins to boil until the time that you remove it from the fire. Then drain off all the liquid from the meat and again add water sufficient to cover the residue of the meat, and let it boil again for another half hour. The product of the second brewing will not be equal to the first, but it will be better as a drink for the dog than plain water. For invalid dogs arrowroot and such things ought not to be added to thicken such beef tea as we have described the making of, unless it be that dysentery is present and then a little arrowroot to thicken the liquid food will go a long way towards checking such symptoms.

Bones should always be given to young puppies to gnaw. They not only assist dentation, but they keep the teeth in nice clean order—this is the case with older dogs too. They also, if given before food, take away the keen edge of appetite, and thus prevent undue bolting of food, which is undoubtedly injurious to puppies; and, moreover, they make very good playthings. As soon as the puppies get their teeth strong enough they will learn to crush up bones, and Nature intended that the dog should form his diet partly of crushed bones. They tend to stimulate the bowels, and although it is not desirable to give them in any quantity, still the average dog can be trusted pretty well to know what is and what is not good for him. Of course it does not do to give a lot of bones to delicate pet dogs, because their stomachs are not capable of the digestive energy of the larger breeds.

More mischief is done to little pet dogs by giving them nice dainty things to eat than anyone would imagine. They become so habituated to sweets and dainties that they positively refuse ordinary plain food, and often it becomes necessary for them to be sent to the veterinary surgeon, who, like a wise man, instead of wasting good physic upon them, puts them in a dark pen and keeps them there for a day or two on bread and water, which they can either consume or leave alone until hungry. They are then returned to their loving mistress, who praises highly the accomplishments of the eminent surgeon under whose care they have been brought into so much more promising a condition of health.

GUN.

At the Traps.

The San Francisco Gun Club live bird shoot for June will take place at Ingleside to-morrow.

Across the bay, at Alameda Junction, the Empire Gun Club regular monthly shoot will take place.

A feature of the Lincoln Gun Club shoot on July 7th will be a 100 target race, $20 entrance, three moneys, high guns to win. Eleven entries are already in. The race will be an interesting one.

Clarence Nauman's skill has been recognized at the Gun Club, Nolting Hill, London. He has been notified that his shooting position henceforth will be at the 36-yard mark—that is, for certain fixed events; other races do not have an arbitrary handicap.

The other American shooters now in England seem to be achieving great success. W. R. Crosby has won a £100 cup, while other shooters over there just now have carried off large sweepstake purses.

The Olympic Gun Club blue rock shoot last Sunday was a record one for a gold and silver bar distribution. No less than forty-three bars were won on three straight runs of twenty-five breaks and forty straight fifteens. Otto Feudner won three gold bars and seven silver bars, the other winners of silver bars were "Slade" two, Edgar Forster two, Dr. Derby three, C. W. Debenham three, N. H. Neustadter one, A. W. Robertson one, F. W. King and A. M. Shields four each. Feudner now has a string of five gold and twenty-eight silver bars won at the club shoots. The scores made during the day follow:

Class 2—In the shoot-off for first prize Adams broke 7 out of 10, against 6 for Peek. Second prize went to Rust.

Class 4—First prize was won by Just. Chapman and Sharp shot off for second and again tied on 9 out of 10. In the second shoot off at 5 birds Sharp broke 4 to Chapman's 3. Chapman also won third prize from Flohr by 7 to 6.

The club will hold two more shoots, before closing its season, on the first and third Sundays of next month.

The Sacramento Gun Club shoot last Sunday at Eckhardt's grounds, East Park, was well attended by trap shooters. The principal event of the day was a twelve man team shoot between the Sacramento and Oak Park Gun Clubs, in which the former club won by a margin of seven birds. W. H. Eckhardt shot with the Oak Park Club to fill out the team. The scores in this race and a following team race are given below:

Troubles of the Tuna Club. Sportsmanlike and Unsportsmanlike Methods Contrasted.

The erstwhile quiet of the Tuna Club has again been ruptured by that potent producer of piscatorial jangling known as rod specifications, according to E. L. Hedderly, a writer on sporting topics in Southern California. There now seem to be two factions in this body of big fish killers who might well be designated as the "long rods" and the "short rods."

The former party claim that the tuna is entitled to as much consideration as any other fish, and claim it is not sportsmanlike to go after him with a rod like a billiard cue. They say a longer and more springy affair should be used in order to lengthen the time of catching, and the difficulty thereof, alleging the lighter tackle that is used the truer the sportsmanship of the fisherman. The long rods further allege that it is owing to the too general use of these aforesaid billiard cues that the mighty tuna has had a fall taken out of his reputation in being landed in from seven to ten minutes, instead of the usual hour or two, as required by the more sportsmanlike gear.

The present cause of complaint seems to be in regard to weight of rods. It is alleged by that true-blooded sportsman and fishing authority, Prof. Charles F. Holder, that the present weight limit is so low that a rod of 9½ or 10 feet would necessarily be too weak to stand the strains incident to tuna fishing. He would rather see the short club-like rods barred, and only the longer ones allowed.

The weight limit was made for purposes of furthering sportsmanship. At least that is what the clique in the Tuna Club who had it passed claim. As a matter of fact, a 6½-foot rod could be made inside the stated weight and yet so stiff and powerful a fish could not break it. So the claim fails utterly. It prevents the use of the sportsmanlike long rods and forces the use of the short, stiff affairs, anything but sportsmaulike.

A few weeks ago this same faction barred a certain drag on the score that it was unsportsmanlike, and any one could catch fish with it. This drag is the invention of Francis J. Rabbeth, the well known rifle-man and angler, known to sporting readers as J. Francis. It is a patent handle to fit on in place of the usual multiplying reel balance handle. In principle it is a sort of friction clutch. In use the fisherman winds in constantly. If the fish runs and pulls hard enough the spool revolves, its resistance being governed by the tension of set screws in the drag. As soon as the fish slackens the clutch again operates and line is taken in. The contention that any one can catch a fish with this machine is supported by the fact that a one-armed man caught a tuna with one of these drags last year.

Here is an inconsistency. The club bars the drag and alleges it is unsportsmaulike. It forces the use of a billiard cue rod, which is fully as unsportsmanlike. The two do not look well together.

The question is raised whether this action represents the Tuna club as a unit or as the opinion of a comparatively small fraction that is making regulations to suit itself. If the drag was to have been barred, it was as unsportsmanlike last year as this.

Some time ago the Tuna club had a fight with the California Fish Company over invasions of Avalon bay after sardines. At the same time a number of wharf fishermen had filed a petition asking the supervisors to pass a 1000-foot limit to shore seining, the idea being to keep net fishermen that distance away from the sides of the wharves. The Tuna club, represented by General Barrett, Professor Holder and Frank V. Rider joined issue with the shore fishermen. The fish company compromised with the Tuna club, and that organization withdrew from the fight. Shortly afterward the supervisors received a petition signed by Frank V. Rider, for the Tuna club, protesting against the passage of a 1000-foot ordinance to shore seining because it would keep the tuna fishers from getting any bait. The request was then sealed to 250 feet.

Professor Holder, an enthusiastic and leading Tuna club member, never heard of this counter petition against the shore fishermen. Many of the other members have not. This looks as if the clique that handled this matter is somewhat peculiar in its manner of taking the club's name in vain.

Anglers are commonly supposed to constitute a sort of fraternity, and what interests one class of them concerns almost equally another. So it is highly probable that the action thus accredited to the Tuna club as a whole was the work of a comparatively small clique.

It is stated that several boats are engaged in dipping up shad with scoopnets, in violation of the laws, says the Sacramento Record-Union, where the city's sewerage empties into the river, and that the fish are being peddled around the city by men and boys at the rate of three for ten cents. The fish are lean and as they are feeding on the sewerage it is not probable that citizens are aware of the fact that they are buying that kind of fish. The shad that are running up the river are clean run and fresh from salt water, and are in different condition.

In this city at the ferry slips, where some of San Francisco's largest sewers enter the bay, rock cod, so called, are caught daily and sold by itinerant fish peddlers, principally to commuters living across the bay. This practice has prevailed for a long time. Frequently the catch of fish is quite large.

A Bottle of Bait.

Say! This is th' time 't th' birds is all singin' an' music is ringin' where fish is a-bittin' an' nature's indulgin' in eadence entrance, where sunbeams is dancin' an' gaily invitin'. Th' hook an' th' rod's growin' in rusty an' wishin' t' go off a-fishin' where clear waters swishin' tell tales of delight in a cool mountain stream, where th' hacks o' th' trout glimmer, shimmer an' gleam. So get down your hooks, f'r we're all goin' out where th' chances are good f'r a fifty-pound trout; we'll stan' in th' water an' east till they bite ef we don't get a nibble from mornin' till night. In the shallows where ripples are busily ripplin', where fish is a-swimmin' an' kickin' an' slippin', we'll fish with all patience, an' stan' by an' wait, an' wait, an' wait, an' wait, upheld by th' cheer in our bottle o' bait—in our com-fortin', quietin' bottle o' bait—in th' bottle o' fishermen's bait—bait—bait.

The foregoing piscatorial idyll, which we found in the Denver Times, brings to mind a tradition concerning the potent influence of an angler in giving to thirsty humanity a liquid since famed in music and song as "Brown October Ale." In regard to the origin of bottled beer or ale quite a controversy has been recently indulged in, but according to the most authentic sources the true story is the following:

In the middle of the sixteenth century Alexander Nowell, D. D., was head master of Westminster school, a prebendary of the abbey, and the possessor of a charming country residence named Redhall, situated near Clithero, Lancashire, whither he was wont to retire during the holidays. Now, Dr. Nowell was a staunch Protestant; so, when Edward VI died and Queen Mary succeeded to the throne, he thought it prudent to forsake the cloisters of Westminster for Redhall Park, having a very shrewd suspicion that if he did not trouble might befall. The doctor was an enthusiastic and export angler, and, thanks to the well-stocked trout streams running through his Lancashire demesne, he had every opportunity of indulging in his favorite pursuit.

One fine May morning, then, saw Nowell preparing his rod and tackle, and, as it promised to be a scorching hot day, he, before starting out, took the precaution of filling a large stone bottle with home-brewed ale. The sun rose higher and higher in the heavens, the fisherman got warmer and warmer, and the stone bottle became more and more of an incumbrance. He, therefore, determined to leave the bottle in a safe place until he felt ready to enjoy its refreshment, and what could be more suitable for the purpose than the hollow of an old pollard tree overhanging the water, ensconced in which the stream would gently lave the bottom of the jar and keep the contents fresh and cool. Hardly had this been done when he heard a voice calling his name, and, looking around, saw one of his servants, his features agitated with terror.

"They've come, sir! They've come!" the man cried. "Who has come?" asked the amazed doctor. "The soldiers of Bloody Mary, sir. They are searching high and low for you! They are ransacking your chests, and one varlet has a piece of paper bearing a great seal and the Queen's name on it!"

"Has he?" grimly replied Nowell, and without further ado—forgetful of his fish, forgetful of his stone bottle—he tucked up his cassock and fled across the meadows. After some days of perilous wandering Nowell reached Chester safely, where an old Westminster boy named Francis Bowyer, a merchant of the city, received him into his house, and eventually smuggled him to the Continent in one of his own trading vessels.

Six years had elapsed; Queen Mary was dead, Queen Elizabeth was on the throne, and Nowell was back in Lancashire. Once again a hot May morning saw him setting forth to fish, but this time, fortunately, neglecting to take with him a bottle of ale. As the day waxed hotter Nowell became both tired and thirsty. He dropped his rod, and his thoughts drifted back to that eventful May morning six years ago and then to the stone bottle which he had so carefully stowed away in the hollow of the pollard tree. Was the bottle still there? he wondered. He wandered down the stream until he picked out that particular root, and, kneeling down, thrust in an arm. Out came the bottle, apparently none the worse for its long sojourn. Nowell was very thirsty; the icy coolness of the stone was most tantalizing. Of course the contents were undrinkable, thought he; still he was very thirsty—just one cautious sip. The cork, swollen and damp with age, was extracted, and the bottle lifted to the lips. Ye gods and little fishes! What was this heavenly nectar he was tasting? Nowell threw back his head and took a long, deep draught.

Could anything be more delicious than this amber ale, mellowed by time and cooled to a nicety? What were the vines of Rhineland, which he had thought so excellent during his exile in Gormany, as compared with this delectable fluid?

That same night Dr. Nowell summoned his whole household in solemn conclave. Every empty jar and bottle that could be found was filled with honest English ale, corked and then consigned to the cellars. The doctor had "discovered" bottled beer; but for some years it was a stillroom secret of Redhall Park, until at last the discovery was given to the world, and the popularity of the now beverage was speedily established.

Fish as a food of the brain worker must be consigned to the limbo of vanities, though certain forms of fish are the cheapest of all foods, notably the bloater. Oysters and turtle soups are frauds. It would take 14 oysters to equal the nourishment of one egg and 223 to provide the same amount of nutriment contained in a pound of beef. Salt fish, especially salt fat fish, is the most valuable food for the poorer classes, and whole races in the south of Europe live on the Newfoundland cod. Canned salmon we see at 18 cents a pound is no more expensive than cod at 6 cents. Millions of people live on it, and the North American settler who is not well provided with cash finds it a good substitute and change from flesh meat at times. Frogs' legs are not of high nutritive value, which need not surprise us. Turtle soup from the chemist's point of view is not worth a tenth of the price paid for it.

A number of black sea bass have been taken recently at Catalina Island. On Wednesday, June 12th, D. F. Schenck of New York had the pleasure of landing one weighing 350 pounds, which took 44 minutes to bring to gaff. Two others were brought in the same day, one weighing 280 and the other 250 pounds. Several others of smaller size have been caught.

Gen. A. W. Barrett, president of the Tuna Club, arrived the first of last week for the fishing season.

The first tuna of this season was brought into Avalon on the afternoon of the 14th inst. by the launch Mildred. Mr. Schenck hooked the fish, but injured his hands, and was forced to relinquish the rod to Boatman Harry Elms, thus losing his right to score the fish under Tuna club regulations.

The fish put up a tremendous fight for its size. The scales showed it to weigh 148 pounds, which is not over large for a tuna, but all big fish anglers know it is the middle-sized fish, fish from the spring run that do the hardest fighting. The larger ones are often lazy, and do not know the game of the smaller ones.

Schenck and Elms together were two hours and 35 minutes in landing the fish, which showed game from the time it struck until Schenck gaffed it.

Tom S. Mannig had a tuna fast for an hour and a half, but sprained his wrist, and was unable to handle it. Schenck brought in a 195-pound black sea bass on the same day also, his fifth for the season. C. L. Conover of Kansas City also took a bass of 220 pounds.

This relieves the tuna fishermen a great deal. The unprecedented lateness of the tuna in arriving has caused a great deal of anxiety, and the Tuna club's banquet, scheduled for June 15th, supposedly the "middle of the tuna season," would have probably fallen through but for the lucky strikes of yesterday.

As tuna and sea bass fishing is the principal attraction of Avalon, it may readily be seen how much the non-appearance of the big mackerel meant to the boatmen who derive their principal revenue from conducting anglers to the tuna grounds. The bass are not nearly as profitable a fish, nor are they as difficult to capture, weight for weight, as the more active tuna.

The warm weather should daily improve the fly-fishing conditions of the Upper Sacramento and also the Truckee.

Among the anglers who have left the city recently and this week are Col. Keliehor and W. Ashland, who pin their faith on the Truckee at Verdi. Horace Smyth and A. B. Finch are en route to Big Meadows. W. A. Cooper and Mrs. Cooper are reported to have been getting plenty of nice trout. Mr. Cooper is an expert spoon angler. He caught, it is reported, a five pound salmon one day this week on a spoon.

Dr. Gunn and R. Isenbrouck caught 105 trout fishing in San Gregorio and the Purissima last Sunday. The fish averaged over seven inches. A brown hackle with a red body was the best fly used.

Reports from the streams in the Yosemite valley are that the season is still backward. The valley was stocked with trout several years ago by the Fish Commissioners and the results were most satisfactory, the fish having thriven and increased plentifully. One drawback to the valley streams as an ideal resort for the angler is the fact that the Indians are persistent and systematic takers of trout all summer, the fish are sold to campers in the valley and also sent to outside parties.

To-day a party under the leadership of W. J. Street, and composed of some twenty ladies and gentlemen, members of the Camera Club, will start for the valley. Mr. Street is an expert with both fly-rod and camera.

The Spring Valley Water Company have notified Deputy Game Warden A. S. McDougall of Pleasanton and also the U. S. Fish Commissioner that the Company will put a concrete fish ladder in their dam near Sunol as soon as the water falls sufficiently to allow them to proceed. This is a matter which has already been delayed too long, says the Pleasanton Times, and as a consequence fishing in the creek which flows through Niles Canyon is very poor this year. In fact there are practically no fish in that stream, as they were unable to get up this year. It is hoped the matter will not be longer neglected, for this used to be one of the best streams for fishing in former years on the Coast.

The new structure for hatching salmon spawn on Mill creek in Tehama county has been finished, and now the trays and boxes are being put in position. This is the largest of the hatcheries in the State and probably will turn out from fifteen to twenty millions of young fish this fall. This structure is located two miles from Tehama.

Salmon fishing in Monterey Bay is reported to be good at present; the fish are feeding on the sardines, which are now plentiful. O. W. Jackson will try a two or three weeks' spell of salmon fishing.

Black bass are reported to be very plentiful in Putah creek, near Davisville. The bass are said, happily, to be displacing the pestiferous carp in that stream.

THE FARM.

Sound Advice from Secretary Wilson.

WASHINGTON, June 12.—Hon. James Wilson, the Secretary of Agriculture, has often been called the business end of the McKinley Administration. No man in the Cabinet possesses finer analytical ability upon domestic questions than does he. Wherever he goes he is sure to bring back with him some terse and valuable conclusions regarding the business opportunities of the country through which he has traveled. About a year ago he made an extended trip through the Puget Sound country, and his trip with the President through California has, therefore, given him a view of the entire Pacific Coast.

Mr. Wilson to-day talked about San Francisco and California. He is enthusiastic about San Francisco, and he believes that the State may be made a magnificent domain far surpassing its present standing.

"As to San Francisco," said Mr. Wilson, "I am sure that it is bound to grow with the other cities of the Coast. That is going to be a commercial coast. It will all develop. San Francisco to-day has a great lead in the race for commerce—she has always had a great lead. With her splendid harbor, with her enterprise, she will keep the lead. I see no reason why she should not. But the people there must not forget that Seattle is no mean competitor, and although they have the lead now, it can be held only by united effort and enterprise. I think that San Francisco ought to grow as rapidly as any city in the United States in the next ten years, and she ought, with the opportunities which are hers to-day, to far outstrip most of our cities. A new world has been opened to her, and all that her business men have got to do is to lay hold upon the things that are placed before them to make the city a giant in the world of commerce and business.

"When we come to the consideration of the State of California I shall have to say some things that will make your people mad. It is to-day what Californians claim it to be—the greatest State in the Union. It presents the greatest opportunity to its people—and I am talking now about the people of the soil, who are the people upon which all states must finally depend for their prosperity. I hold to the theory that the soil is the source of all wealth, and whoever wastes the soil wastes the real foundation of the wealth of the State. In the matter of soil, of climate, California is the peer of any State, and in no state in the Union, in no country on the earth, I suppose, is the opportunity offered by the soil being wasted at the rate it is being wasted in California. Why is it that the State of California educates none of its young men in the art of getting what is in the soil out of it? From this department to-day men are in California studying the forests the water supply, the grasses, the depletion of the soil, the fruit trees the insect pests and all such things that must be studied if the soil is to be tilled profitably. The people of California know that these things must be studied, and the people demand that they be studied. The Legislature of the State wants them studied, and the president of your university most enthusiastically wants them studied, and yet the State of California educates nobody to study them.

"If everybody is in favor of it, why is the thing not done?" Mr. Wilson was asked.

"Now, I don't want to go into that question very much," he replied. "The power to do these things rests with the Regents and they don't do them. That is all that I can say about it. But the State of California needs an agricultural college, well equipped. It needs it above everything else that I know of. Maybe I am saying too much about California's private business, but I hold that if we people here in the East and in the Middle West educate young men in our agricultural colleges to go to the coast and do the work for the people there, we have a right to speak out about it.

"California has got a peculiar people, above the average in intelligence. It is not a poor man's country. Wealthy men of education go out there and take money along with them. This makes a high average of intellectuality. They are a generous people, a hospitable people, a patriotic people but they do nothing on earth for agricultural education, which is the very thing that they need most to develop their State outside of the cities and to keep the State where it belongs—in the very front rank of American civilization, progress and prosperity."

Secretary Wilson told about going from San Francisco to Berkeley to attend the graduation exercises. He found over there a large number of young men being graduated, and in the whole crowd there was just one girl who had been studying agricultural subjects. Mr. Wilson asked to meet the girl, found she was from the State of Kansas and that she was anxious to complete her agricultural education by a post-graduate course at Washington. Upon the spot he told her that she could have a position here that would pay her expenses while she was taking the course and she accepted it, and will be in Washington in the fall. Mr. Wilson declares that he is having letters all the time from people who want to get young men skilled in the science of agriculture, and who are willing to pay $1500 or $1600 a year for such men. He can't find any such men out of a job anywhere, but he can find plenty of young doctors and lawyers and dentists who are looking for jobs at as low a salary as $900 a year, and can't get them at that.—*S. Some Practical Ideas.

Mr. Thos. J. Thompson, manager of the Minnesota butter factory writes as follows about cows and milk:

Up to a date there have been found and described over two hundred different types of bacteria that live and develop very readily in milk. Not all of them have a good effect on the milk. In fact it would be better if they could be kept entirely out, and the right kind be planted and sown at will, according to the use we want to make of the milk; but that is difficult—in fact, impossible in daily practice. The milk, as it is secreted from the glands in the udder of the cow, is pure (sterile), provided the cow is healthy; but under the process of milking it cannot reach the bottom of the milk pail before it is liable to be inoculated with scores of bacteria. Experiments have been made where perfectly pure milk has been obtained. Such milk will keep sweet and fresh as long as wanted if it is well sealed. That cannot be done with the entire milking of one cow, not to speak of the whole herd, but effective precautions can be taken so as to get as few bacteria into the milk as possible. At certain times of the day the air in a dairy building is just teeming with bacteria. In manure and bedding can always be found an immense amount of them, and also in the fodder. Therefore, when feeding the cows and cleaning out the stalls a multitude of bacteria are raised, and fly around in the air, consequently the milking ought never to be done at that time of the day.

During milking it ought to be as quiet in the milking shed as possible. A quick-tempered man is not a good milker because he will kick the cow if she does not mind him. That is objectionable, not only for bacteriological reasons, but it seems to have a bad effect on the milk, and the cow does not yield as much as she would if better treated; kind treatment has a good effect upon cows. It is very important how milking is performed. The milker ought not to go at his work with dirty hands and dirty clothes, and the udder and flanks of the cow ought to be cleaned before milking, so that no dirt nor hair will fall into the milk-pail. Some when reading this will shake their heads, and think that butter makers are too particular; but, on the contrary, it is simply impossible to be too particular. Investigations have been made which show that if the cow has been milked at six o'clock in the afternoon, and just one bacterium has happened to drop into the milk, the creamery will next day receive about 16,000,000 bacteria originated from this one, if there have not been taken any special precautions by cooling and aerating the milk. Now the fact is that not only one but many bacteria get into the milk as soon as it is drawn from the cow. There may be over 100 bacteria riding on the smallest hair that drops into the milk-pail. Therefore it is not very encouraging for the butter maker to receive milk, on top of which are floating hair and straw, etc., and at the bottom of the milk-can to find a black coating of something else. Not even with the utmost care is it possible to avoid bacteria from falling into the milk, but the bad effect of this can be avoided to a certain extent by taking good care of it.

Strain the milk outside of the milking shed, at a place where there is fresh air; and a very good idea it is to aerate the milk. That can be done simply by pouring it from one pail to another several times, and then immediately after milking, cool the milk down about fifty degrees Fahrenheit, if possible, and stir it thoroughly several times with a long-handled dipper while cooling. Avoid letting dirt and bad air get into the milk. Don't keep it in the milking shed. In this way you will be able to bring good milk to the creamery, and your butter maker can produce butter that will bring the highest market price the year round. If not, then you had better discharge him and get a man that can. We often hear farmers say: "It does not help that I take so good care of the milk, for my neighbors don't." In reply to this, I have to say that it does help a good deal, and you have the satisfaction of knowing that you have done your duty.

Keep Up the Hay and Grass on Stock.

It is a mistake to make the change from hay to grass too sudden. The transition should be easy. This is particularly true if animals have not been kept in good, strong, vigorous condition through the winter, and the spring should be wet.

The first grass of the spring, as an exchange well says, is at best immature and watery, and it takes a large amount of it to supply a small amount of nutriment. It is nearly all water. Animals taken from dry feed and put entirely onto this grass will have their systems thoroughly flushed out. This process carries out of the tissue more or less of the nutriment stored therein, and as there is frequently not enough in the grass obtained to maintain the animal, there is consequently great loss. If the animal is not in a vigorous condition, it may succumb to these devitalizing effects.

Too much haste makes great waste when it comes to turning stock to grass unless you supplement the pasture by continuing the hay and grain feed for some time just the same as though no grass was being consumed. Many seem to think that as soon as the animal can get a bite of grass that all further hay and grain feeding is superfluous. Right there is where they are mistaken. As above stated the grass contains very little nourishment as compared to the hay and grain they have been getting, and it is a big change to make all at once. It would be very much the same to take a man from a nutritious fare of bread, butter, vegetables, meat, etc., and put him onto a ration of very thin soup.

Better results will be obtained by letting the pasture get well started. Even then the grain ration should be continued for some days and removed gradually. The hay should be continued as long as the animals care for it. This will tend to check the flushing due to the young grass. —Goodall's Farmer.

Sheep should never be kept beyond the age of thrift and vigor; feed and care given to younger stock will bring better returns.

Dear Sir: I have used your Elixir for the past ten years, in the diluted form for a leg and body wash. I consider it the best wash for keeping horses from sore legs. Horses done up with this wash are much less liable to take cold than when done up with witch hazel or any other wash I ever used.

Treatment for Milk Fever.

Mr. Obediah Brown of Rhode Island, who has a reputation as a breeder of fancy cattle in that State, and who has been among the larger exhibitors at the New England fairs and at State fairs in other States, tells how he has successfully treated cows attacked by milk fever. His reputation is such that we republish his directions in his own words, and all the more willingly because we know that the remedies he prescribes are adapted to reduce fever and relieve pain. He says:

"My experience has been confined to my herd and to some of my neighbors' cows. My treatment is with laudanum and spirits of sweet nitre. When the cow is first taken, I give an ounce of laudanum and nitre in a pint of blood-warm water, sweetened with molasses.

"Shake up together in a quart bottle, hold up the cow's head, slip the neck of the bottle in the side of her mouth, between the grinders and front teeth, and let the liquid run down her throat. If this does not relieve her she will bloat slightly and appear uneasy. In three or four hours give one-half ounce more of laudanum and nitre. Repeat this dose as often as she becomes uneasy, or in three or four hours. If this does not relieve the cow increase the quantity until the medicine masters the disease.

"One of my cows had milk fever three years in succession. The ordinary dose did not relieve her. I gave two ounces of laudanum and two of nitre at one dose. It had the desired effect, and relieved her so that in a few hours she was on her feet eating hay.

"I have never known a cow with physic to recover from milk fever; with the above treatment I have never lost a cow."

Special University Dairy Course.

The University of California proposes to offer a special dairy course during the fall of 1901, beginning early in October and continuing for eight or ten weeks. The course will be especially designed for persons who wish to prepare themselves to manage and operate creameries, skimming stations, cheese factories and such ranch dairies as use modern dairy machinery. The instruction given will consist of practical work in operating dairy machinery, in butter and cheese making and in testing milk for fat and adulterations. Lectures and recitations will also be given on milk and its various products, breeds of dairy cattle and principles of breeding animals, feeding animals, dairy chemistry, dairy bacteriology, and veterinary science. An announcement giving detailed information in regard to the Dairy School will be issued about August first. This announcement will be mailed free to all requesting it upon addressing the College of Agriculture, Berkeley, California.

The Warren live stock company of Cheyenne is the biggest wool growing enterprise to be found in northern Colorado and southern Wyoming. Its holdings in sheep run nearly to one hundred thousand from which the company derives a princely income. The company is now shearing 60,000 sheep at its Meadow Springs ranch in Weld county. The total clip will amount to nearly 500,000 pounds. This grade of wool is now worth 10 cents a pound at the ranch. The company is now engaged in transporting wool to the railroad.

First Week at Denver.

The summaries of the first week of the Denver meeting have been received and show that while the California horses have done nothing phenomenal they have managed to win a fair share of the money hung up by the Overland Park association. All reports of the meeting are agreed that it is by a long way the best managed and most successful race meeting ever held in Denver, and the large attendance proves the popularity of the sport in the Colorado metropolis. The running events seem to be the most popular with the betting element and the bookmakers have taken in large sums of money on the majority of these races, most of which they have kept. The names of the runners competing are familiar to California race goers, and while few high-class thoroughbreds have been racing there, the game is so popular that there is talk of a running meeting to be held in the fall just prior to the opening of the winter racing season in San Francisco, the idea being that some of the Eastern owners will stop off on their way to the Coast if good purses are offered. As the majority of the BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN'S readers are most interested in the harness races we shall devote the larger space of our report of the Denver meeting to those events.

On the opening day, Saturday June 15th, there were two harness races, the 2:09 pace and 2:14 trot. In the first event there were four starters, Raymond M., Lottie Smart, Aelse and Tombstone. The track was muddy from a heavy rain of the previous day, and fast time was out of the question. In the first heat Lottie Smart got away in the lead and kept there until the wire was reached in 2:16. She was then made the favorite, but broke badly in the next heat and her driver saw the red flag waved in his face, Raymond M. taking the heat and the next two easily enough, not having to pace faster than 2:20 to beat Aelse and Tombstone.

The 2:14 trot had four starters, the fast mare Trilby P. 2:13½ winning in straight heats. The California horse Charlie Mac 2:17½ was the contender in every heat and was only beaten a nose the second heat in 2:18, which was as good as 2:14 over a dry track. As Charley Mac was not more than a length behind in the last heat, and lost the first heat by a head, he went a good race. He was not very steady in either heat of the race, but showed lots of speed.

On Monday, the 17th, the 2:14 pace and 2:35 trot were on the program. The first was won by Shecam 2:14½, a nine year old gelding bred by the late Dr. Hicks of Sacramento, and sired by Durfee 11,256, dam Lady Preempter by Prompter. There were five heats in this race, Shecam winning the first, fourth and fifth. The fastest heat was the second won by Schermerhorn in 2:14½, but he was distanced in the third.

Louise Jefferson was the good one in the trot and showed her quality by winning in three straight heats, the fastest of which was 2:20½. Two California horses were in the race, but they finished outside the money. They were Dr. Shorb by McKinney and Moffit by Sable Wilkes. It was the first time out for both.

Twelve horses faced the starter in the 2:20 pace on Tuesday, California furnishing two in Dr. Boucher's Harry Logan and Will Durfee's Floretta Belle. The good colt Winfield Stratton was favorite and won easily in three straight heats. Harry Logan was second in the two heats and got second money. He was steady and showed well for the first race in which he ever started. He will not show a low mark if he keeps right. Floretta Belle could do no better than fifth in any heat and got no money.

In the three year old trot the big bay colt Frank Dale by Chas. Derby out of Abanteo 2:17½ was favorite and won the first heat in 2:30½. As Blue was returning to dismount, the colt reared and fell over backward. He was cut loose from his harness and when he got to his feet staggered about and fell the second time. He finally was able to get up and walk to his stall, but was withdrawn from the race. This colt was purchased for Ed Gaylord by Blue this spring at Oakwood Park Farm. As he won the first heat very easily and was not pushed to his speed any part of the mile, it was at first thought that the fall was the cause of his illness, but the veterinary is of the opinion that he had a sort of paralytic stroke which caused him to rear and fall. After Frank Dale was withdrawn the race went to Goodness Gracious, a filly by McVere.

Wednesday was advertised as Gentlemen's Riding and Driving Club Day and the harness events were both for gentlemen drivers. Mr. Gaylord won the race for three minute horses with Joe Ives, the horse belonging to the President of the Colorado Springs Driving Club. Mr. Gaylord showed his master reinsurance in this event, as Ives could not have won except by the very best of handling.

Driver Johnson, who won the 2:27 class pace on Thursday with Arline B., was fined $50 by Judge Mulholland for laying up the first heat. Outside of this there were no sensational features until the next race, when driver Smith got the same dose for laying up a heat with Gendora.

On Friday another of Saraway's get proved a winner, and a McKinney took a record of 2:16½ in a third heat. Vioway won the two-year-old pace in 2:54½ and 2:49½ very handily.

Louise Jefferson, the winner of the 2:35 trot on Monday, repeated her victory by taking the 2:27 trot Friday, but Will Durfee's good McKinney colt Dr. Shorb made her trot to do it, and was a close second in the first two heats, won the next two, but lost the fifth to her. Vic Shellar started in this race, but was distanced in the second heat. The first two heats of the race went to the Jefferson mare by the closest kind of a finish. There was a prevailing idea that there was not a green one in the country that could make Louise go her limit coming into the stretch, and this is where a mistake was made, as Dr. Shorb could. In the first heat the bunch got away well, but going around the first turn Louise broke badly and let the field go a long way ahead of her on the back stretch. Vic Shellar, in the lead, broke badly when pushed, and as they came into the stretch Louise Jefferson was again in the lead with Dr. Shorb hanging on. As they came down Shorb moved up into the lead rapidly and had the heat won, but broke going under the wire and the judges gave it to Jefferson.

The second heat of the race was almost a duplicate of the first, and the real race came in the stretch between Louise Jefferson and Dr. Shorb. This time the doctor had more ground to make up and could not get in the lead, but he came at such a furious pace that both broke as they came under the wire, but the heat was given to Louise Jefferson by a nose.

Louise Jefferson did not get such a lead in the third heat, and the result was that Dr. Shorb pulled away from her in great shape coming down the stretch and won easily. The doctor took the fourth heat the same way. Louise got off well and was traveling magnificently until the three-quarter pole was reached. This pole cast a shadow across the track, and the mare jumped the shadow, lost her stride and, before she could get it again, Dr. Shorb was by her and won the heat. In the last heat of the race Loomis took the mare around the shadow after getting her off with a good lead, and she landed the heat and race without much trouble.

The race that drew the crowd (and there were nearly ten thousand people present), was the special pace between Lottie Smart 2:09½, Raymond M. 2:08½ and Bonnie Direct 2:05½. They scored five times before they got away in the first heat, Bonnie Direct acting badly and going to a break often.

As soon as they got the word Lottie Smart shot away from her rivals as though they were standing still. The great Colorado-bred mare reached the quarter post in an even thirty seconds, which is a two-minute clip, and was in the lead at that point, with Bonnie Direct a length ahead of Raymond M. This was a surprise, but all were on the alert to see the Direct horse commence to go after Lottie in the back stretch. Never did a pacer go truer than Lottie Smart along the backstretch, and the great Direct, famous the country over, could not close up a foot. They swept past the half and three-quarter poles in the same order, and a great burst of speed from Bonnie was looked for in the stretch, but it did not materialize. They passed under the wire in the same order that they held as they shot by the quarter post.

The second heat was a poorer horse race than the first. As they came down for the third time they were given the word and again Lottie made one of those famous starts and was away with a good lead at the quarter, with Raymond M. a length away and Bonnie Direct hopelessly out of the race. As they went down the back stretch Cassidy made a bid for the race and commenced to urge the great Raymond; but the pace was too fast, and the big one, in trying to respond, was carried off his feet, and when he caught again, which was the next instant, Lottie Smart, working like a perfect piece of machinery, was six lengths away and opening up space at a wonderful rate. Raymond started out again, but the chase was hopeless, and Lottie finished with a good lead.

Bonnie Direct was in no condition to race fast heats and Bert Webster asked permission to withdraw him, which was granted. This left the last heat between Raymond and Lottie. They got away easily, and again Lottie carried the big black to the quarter post at a fearful rate and commenced right there to open up space. All down the back stretch the daylight streak grew wider. From two lengths it widened to four, to eight and to ten as they came into the stretch. Lottie passed under the wire with a gait that made it look as though she could keep up forever, and Raymond was very tired. The race was not well contested, but it was full of interest at that. The time of the heats was 2:12½, 2:11½, the best time made on the Overland track this year.

Saturday was a California day and the first day in all the harness races went to California horses. Stamboullette and Toggles went for a purse of $500, and the Stamboul horse beat the Strathway gelding in three straight heats, trotting the first in 2:11½, the fastest mile ever trotted on the Denver track. Toggles was so lame that he nodded and Clark only started him so as not to disappoint the tremendous crowd that was present to see the champions. He was not driven hard any part of the race, yet the first heat was better than 2:12 and Stamboullette won swinging. The son of Stamboul got off in the lead each heat and stepped away ahead of the lame Toggles to the finish each time. In the second heat Toggles hung on pretty well through the back stretch and the great horses showed some of their magnificent speed as they came down under the wire. Toggles moved to the front in grand shape, but Stamboullette was equal to the occasion, and with a little urging commenced to pull away again. The third heat was almost a repetition of the second.

Det Bigelow won a great race with his Diablo mare Tags 2:13. There were three other starters—Aelse 2:10½, E. S. 2:11½ and Shecam 2:14½. In the first heat E. S. shot away in the lead at the start and was around the first turn before the others got going. The Denver horse took the heat in a manner that led to the rumor that it would be three straight, but the tip was wrong. In the next heat Tags went out with the word and won as she pleased. As the four horses passed under the wire for the third heat Tags stumbled and fell and by the accident lost at least ten lengths. Bigelow took his time with the mare, and as soon as she was well settled started out in a systematic manner to overhaul the bunch, and as she passed the horses one at a time the cheering among the spectators was great. The last one was passed in the stretch and the gallant mare received a great ovation as she passed under the wire and when she was driven back to the stand.

The two-year-old trot was an easy one for Ed. Gaylord's bay filly Confianza by James Madison, which John Blue selected for him at the Oakwood Park Farm a few months ago. Thoro was a field of eight starters in this race, but Confianza won as she pleased in 2:43 and 2:41½. She is a large, handsome filly, trotted both heats without a skip and outclassed her field completely.

The first week of the meeting has been most successful from every point of view, and the attendance has far exceeded that of any previous meeting held at Denver. To Mr. Gaylord and Secretary Schuekman are due great credit for placing the sport of racing on such an excellent footing in Colorado. The starting by Richard Havey has been very good, and the judges, with Fred Mulholland as the presiding official, have given excellent satisfaction.

Following will be found the summaries of the harness events for the first week. The results of the running races are on page 7:

Ketcham's Opinion of Cresceus.

Georgia H. Ketcham, owner of the champion trotting stallion Cresceus 2:04, recently talked interestingly about the great horse that is to meet The Abbott 2:03½, in a battle royal for the championship of the trotting turf at Brighton Beach less than two months hence.

"Cresceus never before pleased me as much as he does this season," said Mr. Ketcham. "He is feeling like a fighting cock and just wants to run away on a trot. I let him step his first mile below 2:20 just before I left Cleveland. It was trotted in 2:17, the last half in 1:04½, and Cresceus was actually going within himself at the finish. I believe his record will be 2:02 or better before the end of the season, provided he has the good luck to get a good day and track when he starts to beat the record."

Mr. Ketcham says Cresceus has only three engagements to race this season and at present there are no other engagements in sight. These races are at Brighton Beach in August, in Boston in September and at Lexington in October. He will meet The Abbott here, Boralma and Charley Herr at Boston, and Charley Herr at Lexington. If he can win all three races his earnings for the season will foot up something like $35,000. Between his engagements at New York and Boston, Cresceus will probably make an attempt to beat his own record and that of The Abbott. Mr. Ketcham says he likes the Glens Falls track for such a trial of speed, but as the grand circuit meeting there is scheduled for the same dates as the meeting in New York some other course must be chosen.

Although the Detroit Driving Club has offered a purse of $2500 for a free-for-all trotting race at the grand circuit meeting next month, it is not probable that Cresceus will start in a race until he meets The Abbott at Brighton Beach on August 15th. Mr. Ketcham says he will stay his horse up for the contests by working him alongside a running horse.

Answers to Correspondents.

J. S., San Mateo, asks: Could you kindly tell me how fast the mare Cora, by Buccancer, owned by the late Mr. Corhitt, was driven by the late John Goldsmith? Also how many she has in the list. By doing so you will settle a dispute.

Ans.—Cora, by Buccancer, has a record of 2:44 as a two year old. She made this record at Marysville, September 7, 1883. In 1884 she went lame and was put to breeding. We do not know how fast Goldsmith ever worked her, as that is not a matter of record. She is the dam of Golita 2:27½ and Guyon 2:24½. She is also the granddam of Mary Belle 2:22½ and Sidonio 2:28½.

Don't miss making entries for the Los Angeles meeting. It will be one of the best ever held on the Coast.

[Portland Rural Spirit.]

The new track for the Spokane fair and race meeting is to be completed by July 15th.

A. W. Geisy has bred his Pricemont mare to Harry McC. She has a foal by Roy Day.

Lou Childs is working Thomas S. Griffith's mare, Kate Cogswell, by Hambletonian Wilkes.

Beulah, full sister to Chehalis, has foaled a fine big colt by Erect, full brother to Direct 2:05½. She has been bred back to him.

J. W. Tilden will race at Everett at their July meeting. His three year old pacer, Nellie Coovort, and his trotter, Package, have worked miles in 2:21 over the Vancouver, Wash., track, and his two year old trotter Hattie Holly, has made the circle in 2:40.

Hon. D. A. McAlister of La Grando has bought Delpho 13954 and will place him at the head of his stud on Willow Grove farm. Delpho is a high bred stallion and should make a good cross on the Lemont mares, for which purpose he will be used.

John Sawyer will arrive at Salem this week with his stable of horses from Pleasanton, Cal. He has Pathmark 2:17½, Kinmont and Altaho, both green trotters; Harry Hurst, a green pacer; Lady Guy and Chief Seattle, three year old trotters, and McAlropa, a two year old trotter.

Mt. C. X. Larrabee of Fairhaven, Wash., was in Portland this week on his way to his Southern Oregon mines. Mr. Larrabee has just returned from his big horse ranch in Montana, and reports a big crop of colts this year. He says eighty-five per cent of the mares he bred last year proved to be in foal, and so far he has not lost a single colt out of the ninety or more foals. The three carloads of drivers shipped East from Mr. Larrabee's farm have nearly all been sold at advanced prices, and the trade which Mr. Larrabee has been so long building up is now proving to be quite profitable, for people East have learned to look forward to the coming of the Montana horses every spring.

A correspondent writes to the Rural Spirit as follows from Everett:

Meteor 2:17½, has established himself along the countryside in this part of Puget Sound country as a sire second to none. He has now upwards of twenty foals, from six weeks down to that many days old, and everyone is a type of the grandson of old Commodore Belmont. Most all are breeding back to him and also many new ones. Miller says if they keep on he won't have a chance to let the "little horse" hear the bell ring this year. Miller is also working some outside horses. He has Knoxmere, a grandson of Electioneer, that is improving every workout. He is the property of Mr. Ward of Mt. Vernen, Wash.

Another is a three year old by a son of Almont Medium, a trotter with a nice way of going, and is the property of Mr. Rogers the popular landlord, of Bothel, Wash.

Another is the bay pacing mare Bonnie Jean belonging to the McGhie Bros. She is going nice and steady and looks as though she would be a factor in her class when the bell rings. Another that Miller likes pretty well is the sorrel mare Dela A. 2:47½, by Metropolitan out of Nelly Russell, by Belfounder 62. It looks as though she was going to keep step with her dam and show them that "old folks" can step some. She is now almost as old as her dam was when she obtained her standard mark, and Dela is now faster than ever. It is safe to say she will step inside the list the first time she is turned around.

A late arrival at Miller's stable is the pacer Buford 2:11½. He is big and strong but short of work, and probably will not be started before fall.

William Riley has arrived at the track with E. R. Clark's Kittitas Ranger 2:11½ and Chehalis Maid, by Chehalis.

Trainer Johnson has in his charge Doc Wright 2:26½ a green pacing gelding belonging to Dr. Wainright, a green two year old by Major Seattle and a couple of runners.

There are several runners quartered at the track, among them being Red Spinner, Indigo, Lima Long, Imperial, Mollie Jewell, all told being from 12 to 15 head.

The 2:15 pace advertised by the association has been changed to a free for all, and the 2:17 pace to a 2:25 class. Report has it that there will be good fields of horses for every event for the July meeting.

Notes from Santa Barbara.

There is considerable life at the Santa Barbara track at present, and I was surprised to find pacers there working below 2:25, with only a month's handling.

Our trotters are coming more slowly, but are doing pretty well at that, though I am doubtful of there being enough to fill the free-for-all in our Fourth of July program. Runners are plentiful and showing lots of speed. My horse Almonada is at Hueneme in the care of Henry Delaney, and in his skilful hands I can safely say he will not be a disgrace to his Electioneer and Nutwood ancestors either as a producer or a performer on the track. The first of his got, a colt out of Veronica, a large sorrel, 15.3 hands, began his work three weeks ago and is now showing his quarters in 38 seconds with ease and without any crowding. He will not be campaigned this season, but I predict that as a four year old he will make them trot to lead him to the wire.

I believe our races to be held on the Fourth will be successful, and the forerunner of a good program of races later in the season. D. F. OGLESBY.

Santa Barbara, June 21, 1901.

A. H. Merrill, of Danvers, Mass., the well-known Eastern starting judge, will give the word at the Grand Circuit meeting at Providence, Columbus and Glens Falls.

Cleveland Track Notes.

[American Sportsman, June 20th.]

William Cecil worked Rey Direct 2:10 a mile in 2:14 Monday.

James Thompson has purchased a green pacing mare, Mabel Star. She has stepped a mile in 2:15.

Hetty G. 2:05½ paced a mile Wednesday in 2:15 without the hopples, negotiating the last half in 1:05.

Before being shipped to Chicago Rightwood, Ellert, Aggie Medium and Rockley Boy were stepped miles in 2:17 by "Doc" Tanner.

Trainer Durfee of California, now at the Denver meeting, has written Secretary Giles saying he will come to Cleveland early in July.

Mr. H. K. Devereux's mare, Peko, who has the honor of trotting the fastest mile of the year in a race, was bred to John A. McKerron Wednesday.

Lafe Shafer has been breeding Zephyr (the three year old purchased by J. C. McKinney of C. A. Winship for $9000) quarters in 32 seconds. The filly will not be raced until 1902.

Jim Thompson, now at Glenville with his fast string of California horses, should be able to take a slice of the money with Thornway in the Oakley stake for 2:24 pacers at the Cincinnati Grand Circuit meeting.

Mendoello, the two year old filly by Mendocino, purchased by Mr. E. L. Leighton at the blue ribbon sale, has been sent to Mr. Leighton's farm on the lake shore. She is entered in $62,000 of stakes in 1902 when Mr. Leighton expects to race her.

Orrin Hickok says the report that Charley Herr was a trifle "off" is erroneous. Before leaving Lexington Mr. Hickok saw him trot a quarter in 31 seconds as smoothly as any one could ask for. He also saw Quoddy Girl, an M. and M. candidate, step miles in 2:16 and 2:15½.

Millard Sanders gave Dolly Dillon 2:11½ and Janice 2:13½ some fast work Wednesday, Dolly Dillon stepping along in 2:40, 2:25, 2:16 and 2:14, the last half of the last mile in 1:05. This is the fastest mile trotted on the Glenville track this season. Janice was given four heats in 2:40, 2:30, 2:17 and 2:16½, the last half of the last mile being in 1:06½.

Mr. A. W. Bruner of Los Angeles, who has been at the Glenville track with Harry Madison 2:27½, an M. and M. candidate, Stanton Wilkes and Our Lucky 2:13½ for several weeks, will drive the trio himself in their engagements down the Grand Circuit, starting in at Detroit. Up to this date Mr. Bruner has not asked Harry Madison to step faster than 2:40.

John Hussey, the Patchen Wilkes Farm trainer, is expected from Louisville this week. He will bring a string of twelve, some of which will be placed in the hands of Orrin Hickok, the veteran reinsman, to campaign. Mr. Hickok arrived Monday from Louisville, where he saw The Abbott step a mile in 2:13. Among the horses which Hussey will bring are Axtellion 2:25½ by Axtell and a sister to Beuzetta 2:06½ by Onward.

William Cecil, the colored reinsman who broke, trained and drove John A. McKerron to his turf record of 2:12½, is of the opinion that the champion matinee trotting stallion is capable of reducing his matinee record of 2:09 at least two seconds. Cecil also thinks that Bob Ingersoll 2:14½ by Nutwood Wilkes, sire of John A. McKerron, will prove just as fast as the latter. "I never handled two as sensible trotters as those two," said Cecil Saturday. "Their dispositions are just alike and as for speed, I think it is a toss-up as to which is the fastest." Bob Ingersoll is entered in the Hotel Cadillac, Transylvania and other rich stakes.

Large vs. Small Horses.

There was once quite a prejudice against large horses, as wear and tear race horses. Many a time have I heard the remark "too large to make a good campaigner; he will pound himself all to pieces when he gets to going real fast," when some fast horse was under consideration. Joe Patchen has shown that among pacers size is no bar to campaigning qualities, and I am inclined to think Cresceus will prove the same regarding trotters. Horsemen generally have not regarded Cresceus as a very large horse, and many will be surprised to learn that the chestnut stallion now stands 16 hands and a half high, and weighs almost 1200 pounds. In spite of his growthiness, Cresceus has been raced severely ever since he made his wonderful campaign, as a three year old, and I don't believe any horse ever took a record of 2:05 or better with a sounder or better set of legs than Cresceus has. There have been many good little horses but Cresceus and Joe Patchen show that it is possible to have size in a race horse without endangering his chances as a campaigner.

Horse Breeding in Mexico.

The Mexican government is preparing to take decided steps to improve the breed of horses in that country. By a law which has just been passed President Diaz is empowered to enter into contracts with persons who will establish horse breeding farms. On its side the government offers freedom from taxes for terms of five to fifteen years, a suspension of the import duties on all stock and on all materials which may be needed in the construction of buildings or for the maintenance of the farm. It offers to buy fine stock and distribute it among the farms, this stock to be paid for by the breeders in horses which they may raise and which shall be suited for army purposes. On their part the breeders are required to invest at least $100,000 in their farms, to give a guarantee for the performance of their contracts and to submit to an official inspection, the expenses of which are to be met by them. The contracts with the breeders are to run from five to fifteen years, according to the amount of money invested in the farms.

SPRINKLING WITH OIL was begun a few weeks ago on some of the drives in Golden Gate Park and has aroused quite a storm of opposition in certain quarters. The strongest objection comes from the stablemen, who claim that the oil rots rubber tires, fouls the harness and vehicles and spoils light colored buggy robes, etc. They also claim that it ruins the paint on vehicles and is hard to wash from the legs of horses. On the other hand, the numerous road riders who drive over the oiled roads are highly pleased with them in the majority of instances. The writer has interviewed a dozen or more regular road riders and has not yet found one who objects to the oil coating of the Park roads. In fact, all were unanimous that it is a good thing and hoped that it would be extended to all the drives but the speedway, and some thought it could be used to advantage there. The oil keeps down the dust, which is surely a great blessing; it makes an excellent footing for horses, helps their feet, and retards the wear of shoes. The oil laden dirt that is thrown from the feet of a horse at speed may stain light fabrics, but the oiled roads are not intended for fast travel. A horse jogging a ten-mile-an-hour gait will not throw enough dirt to annoy anyone. Those who desire to drive fast have the speedway open to them. From a cursory investigation of the subject we are inclined to the opinion that coating the park roads with oil is a good thing, and will have to hear more serious objections than those already raised before we condemn it. The only things that mar a ride through our beautiful Golden Gate Park are the wind and the dust. The former is disagreeably strong but a portion of the summer season, and is not so bad then if freed from the dust which accompanies it. As the oil effectively lays the dust the breezes will not be disagreeable, and the pleasures of the ride will be increased.

START OFF RIGHT this year by making as many entries as possible in the six $1000 stakes offered by the Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeders Association, to be trotted and paced at Sacramento from July 30th to August 3d. If there was ever a time in the history of the State when a big entry list should be received by this association it is now. There are no horses with phenomenal speed at the trot or pace in sight. The "real good things" have all been taken across the mountains to try for the big purses of the Grand Circuit. What is lacking in speed at home, however, is made up in numbers and there are enough horses in training in California to fill every purse advertised with a big list of entries and make the racing of 1901 memorable for the number of closely contested heats. The California circuit will not be a large one, and those who desire to race at all should start in with the Breeders meeting and enter at all the principal ones advertised. The surest and best way to add value to a horse is to race him to win as often as possible and to give him a low mark. The "good ones" that were held back last year to keep from getting a record so that they might enter the slow classes this year and win a fortune for their owners, are in nine out of ten instances on the retired list. They can be found in the hospitals, the pastures and on the roads where speed is not necessary, but their names are not met with in the big entry lists that have been published up to date. Did it injure the chances of Dolly Dillon, Janice, Goshen Jim, Alouetta, Phebe Childers, Key Direct, Bob Ingersoll and the other fast ones that are now entered on the Grand Circuit, when their owners raced them through California last year and earned low records for them? Not in the least. There are big purses and plenty of them hung up for all classes over the East every year. A horse that has a low mark has greater earning capacity than one without a record and will sell for a vastly greater sum. Would The Roman have sold for $5000 had he not trotted a public trial in 2:12½? We wot not. The days of the cute trainer who is afraid of a record are past. The only way to earn money with a harness horse is to race him to win and to as low a record as possible. The Breeders' Association offers six generous stakes and will offer ten or a dozen more. The better these six fill, the more generous in amount will be those to come. The meeting is to be held at Sacramento, beginning July 30th. The track there is now in perfect shape and will be kept exclusively for the trotters and pacers until after this meeting. It costs nothing for stall rent and the accommodations are first class in every way. The meeting will be a success and every training stable in the State should be represented. Entries close next Monday, July 1st. Make as many entries as you can. Start the limited circuit this year with a boom, and it will be successful all through. Harness horses are increasing in value and those who own them should show their faith in the business by helping to keep those values up. Big entry lists are great aids. See that your blanks are filled out and mailed in time.

THIRTEEN DAYS OF RACING at the Los Angeles meeting will enable the directors to so arrange the program that the races in which the same horses are entered will be placed far enough apart to enable them to start in all of them. It will be noticed by referring to the Los Angeles advertisement in this issue that the classes are close together in many instances, there being but two seconds difference in the pacing classes from the 2:09 to the 2:17 classes, while the fastest trotting classes are the free for all and the 2:10, 2:12, 2:14 and 2:15. Owners need not hesitate to enter in as many of these races as they think they have a chance to win money, as the directors will take particular pains to arrange the program to accommodate those who have entered and there need be no fear that less than four days will intervene between any two classes in which a horse may be named. The Los Angeles meeting will be one of the best ever held in California, and as the date is set for the later part of September and early part of October, California owners will not have to compete against the crackerjacks that have won through the eastern grand circuit as has been the case in former years. Entries to the splendid lot of purses offered by Los Angeles will close Monday next, July 1st. Fill out your blanks and mail them in time. Make the entry list a big one.

FIFTY HEAD OF HORSES from the Oakwood Park Stock Farm will be sold by auction at the Occidental Horse Exchange in this city June 11th. There are some royally bred and fine looking animals in this lot. Catalogues will be out next Monday and further particulars of the horses will be given in our next issue. See ad this week.

THE PRIVILEGES for the Breeders meeting at Sacramento will be let to the highest bidders. Bids will be open July 15th. See advertisement.

IN THE EARLY NINETIES Spokane was one of the best race horse centers of the Pacific Northwest. The annual meeting attracted thousands of visitors from the surrounding mining and agricultural districts. The best stables from all of the Pacific Coast States were represented here. Unbusinesslike methods however soon changed all this and for the past five years the lovers of this greatest of all sport have been compelled to look to baseball and other side issues to satisfy their sporting proclivities. Thousands of people in the mire, in the orchard, on the range and at the counting house in the districts tributary to Spokane are hungry for some real live clean sport. It is the purpose of the Spokane Interstate Fair to satisfy this longing at its meeting, September 10th to 21st inclusive, at which $10,000 in purses will be given for nine days' racing.

A MEETING of the Board of Directors of the State Agricultural Society will be held to-day at Sacramento. A Secretary will probably be selected to succeed Peter J. Shields, who resigned last January before taking his seat as Superior Judge of Sacramento county.

Our Pictures.

There are some very promising youngsters among the horses pictured on our front page to-day. The Dictatus filly driven by Clarence Day is a five year old chestnut pacer that has had the hopples on but six or eight times and paced a mile in 2:40 with them last Sunday in a manner that looked like a jog for her. She was rather mixed gaited so Mr. Day concluded to hopple her. She acts as if she would soon learn to go without them and beat 2:25 away off.

The high-headed black colt hitched to the high-wheeled gig is an Altamont three year old owned by Mr. A. O. Gott, secretary of the Alameda Driving Club. Mr. Gott broke and has always driven him.

Lady Falrose 2:23, which occupies the center of the page is one of the most promising pacers in California. She has such an easy, nice way of going, wears hardly anything but a harness and shows so much speed that a mark of 2:10 or better is considered within her reach. She is owned by Mr. F. W. Miller of San Francisco, who will probably race her this year on the circuit.

Frank Dale is the three year old by Chas. Derby that John Blue took to Denver. He won the first heat of his first race in 2:30½ and had the race at his mercy, but on returning to weigh reared and fell and was badly hurt. His dam is Abanteec 2:17½ by Anteco. He is owned by Ed. Gaylord of Denver.

Number 5 in the group is a three year old colt by Altamont, dam Saturn by San Diego. This colt is being trained at Alameda by H. R. Ward and is showing great promise. He is not only a good looking colt but has a great deal of natural speed and it need surprise no one to see him get a low mark this year. His owner is Under Sheriff Daly of Napa, who purchased the colt at the closing out sale of the late H. W. Crabb's Tokalon Stock Farm horses.

The fact that no boots were used on the old-time trotters does not prove that they did not sometimes bump their knees and cut their quarters. The fewer boots a fast horse needs the better. It is much more humane, however, to guard against accident and painful injury by protecting horses with boots even when they do not need them, than to cause them to suffer from injuries received through neglect of providing such protection. The pure-gaited kind that never hit themselves are the desirable ones to breed for and raise, but gentlemen who protect their roadsters with easy-fitting, pliable boots are entitled to much more respect than those who speed without boots horses that sometimes hit themselves.—American Horse Breeder.

Sue, the brown mare by Athadon, which C. E. Clark of Fresno campaigned unsuccessfully in California in 1899, won at Denver Tuesday of this week in three straight heats, defeating Commonwealth, Dr. Shorb 2:16½ and Emblematic. Sue showed great speed in her races two years ago in California but was very unsteady and did not win a heat out of five or six starts. Her heats at Denver Thursday were in 2:19½, 2:20½ and 2:19½.

The well known stallion Jerome Turner 2:15½ died suddenly at Sherman, Texas, June 3d. He was foaled in 1789 and was one of the best known horses in the country. He got his record in 1896 at St. Louis. His list of standard performers consists of but four horses, but all have records below 2:15.

During the past four or five years nearly every McKinney colt and filly that has been born is a trotter. We know of but two or three young pacers by McKinney in training, but there are enough young trotters by him to make up a racing program.

American Derby Won by Robert Waddell.

The fastest American Derby ever run was won by Robert Waddell, a gelding by Aloha, ridden by jockey Bullman and owned by "Virginia" Bradley. Thirty thousand people saw the race at Washington Park, Chicago, and when the time 2:33 4-5 was hung out there was great cheering. Terminus by Blazes was second and the Parader was third.

It was 3:50 o'clock when the horses came out of the paddock to parade before the stand. In two minutes they were at the post. They got away eleven minutes later after one false break. Sanazarro showed first a neck ahead of Six Shooter. Bonnbirt was third, Beau Gallant fourth, The Parader fifth, Terminus sixth, Robert Waddell seventh, Silverdale eighth, Sadie S. ninth and His Eminence last.

Rounding the turn the positions were not altered much, except that Piggott took The Parader into the lead to set the pace. That may have been the colt's undoing. Passing the stand for the first time, the field was well in hand, with the Parader a length ahead of Robert Waddell, which had dropped into second position without any jostling or crowding. Waddell was about two lengths ahead of Sadie S. Bonnbirt was fourth and running easily. Terminus was fifth two lengths ahead of Silverdale. Six Shooter was a neck in front of Sanazarro, which was a length ahead of Beau Gallant. His Eminence was still last.

Turning into the back stretch, The Parader had increased his lead to three lengths, while Waddell hung on nicely, two lengths ahead of Bonnbirt. Sadie S. and the others behind appeared to be rated according to orders.

At the half-pole The Parader still held his lead of two lengths and Waddell was still in second place, running kindly, while Terminus had moved into third place. The pace began to tell at the far turn and The Parader's lead was cut down by the truer running Waddell, which, answering to Bullman's call, increased the daylight between himself and Terminus to four lengths.

Straightening out for the drive in the stretch the horses gave an inkling of the final result of the race. "The Parader is beaten!" came from the throats of thousands. "Bullman is going after him!" as Waddell passed the crack Eastern colt, and Bullman never had any doubt of his victory. The Parader was two lengths before Terminus, with the tired or sulky Bonnbirt fourth, three lengths ahead of His Eminence, on which Odom was making one of his whirlwind finishes. The remainder of the field was beaten off.

Down to the wire and under it flashed the winner, Robert Waddell, still full of running, a length ahead of Terminus, which just snatched second place from The Parader by a neck. The Parader was five lengths ahead of Bonnbirt and the remainder of the field straggled under the wire just ahead of the surging crowd that broke into the infield and over the fences to greet the equine hero and his popular jockey, Bullman.

The time, 2:33 4-5, is the record for this race. The fractional time by eighths was as follows: :13, :25 2-5, :38 1-5, :49 2-5, :1:02 3-5, :1:15 2-5, :1:28, :1:41, :1:54, :2:06 2-5, :2:19 and :2:33 4-5.

The winner's share of the purse was $19,000; Terminus won $3000 and The Parader $2000.

Will Hold a Great Meeting.

The Spokane Interstate Fair is the natural outgrowth of the Fruit Fairs which have during the past seven years done so much to advertise the Pacific Northwest and the city of Spokane in particular.

The management has purchased the necessary land convenient to the business center and is now equipping same with a first class race track, a grand stand to seat 2500 guests, a modern and commodious exhibition building and ample stabling for hundreds of head of live stock, including horses, cattle, sheep and swine.

The Royal Italian Band, now playing at Willow Grove Park, Penn., one of the greatest if not the greatest musical organizations on this continent, has been secured at a cost of $5500.

The Spokane Art League have taken entire control of the fine arts department, including art, needle work and floriculture, and for which liberal prizes will be awarded.

The Spokane Interstate Fair is a $30,000 joint stock corporation and is controlled by the leading business men of Spokane, who will conduct the fair on the strict business principles which have during the past seven years made such a success of the fruit fairs, which have laid the foundation for this new venture. All premiums and purses will be paid as soon as the decision may be given.

The Spokane Interstate Fair has set aside $20,000 in purses to cover nine days' racing. This fair, which is the successor to the fruit fairs which have done so much to advertise Spokane, starts out with new grounds, new track, new exhibition buildings, grand stand. In fact, everything new. It is backed by a $30,000 corporation which has just been organized by the leading business men of Spokane. All purses and premiums will be paid as soon as decision may be rendered.

H. BOLSTER,
Secretary and Manager, Spokane, Wash.

A Blessing to All.

Dr. B. J. Kendall Co., Enosburg Falls, Vt.

Dear Sirs—After using your Kendall's Spavin Cure and Kendall's Blister we find them the best we ever used. We have cured spavin with it when all other remedies failed. It is good for all you claim and more. We keep it on hand and wish every suffering man and beast had the opportunity of using it. We believe it is a blessing to all that use it.

Respectfully,

C. E. King and J. E. Bailey.

W. C. Whitney has purchased Nasturtium, the two year old colt by Watercress-Marguerite, from A. L. Aste. The reported price is $50,000.

Excessive Scoring.

The subject of scoring has been dealt with so repeatedly of late that there is just a bare possibility of an improvement in this tiresome feature during the present racing season. To the regular, who is interested in every movement of the horses, this is not as objectionable as it is to the average race-goer, and as yet no radical stops have been taken to eliminate from the sport of racing one of its most objectionable features. The reason must be that the regular has never raised his voice against it.

As long as the flying start is in vogue, and doubtless this system will always be used, scoring will be necessary, but not excessive scoring, which is absolutely a useless waste of time and energy. When one stops to consider the folly of allowing the field to score down at will once or twice for no other purpose than to warm up the horses, it becomes surprising. Just why the horses should not be warmed up before turning at the distance would be hard to explain, for the spectators care nothing about seeing them in their preparatory work. When once the field turns together, and it should never be allowed to turn any other way, the object of the drivers should be to get away as soon as possible. And yet this is not their object, for in nine scores out of ten some one driver and sometimes several intentionally delay the start or else they cause its delay through their inability to get into their proper places, or through not having properly educated their horses. The great speed at which the horses are made to score and the frequent attempts before the word is given, necessitate the expenditure of an enormous amount of energy which could be used to advantage after the race was on. Many a good horse is ruined by the incessant scoring, and the fact that before the season is half over many trotters and pacers either go wrong or become stale, is attributable to the practice of scoring eight or ten times before each heat. It is adding insult to injury to force a horse to score at a two-minute gait repeatedly before each heat and then race six or seven heats of a race. The strain that the American trotter is put to is too great, and it is a rare one indeed that keeps his best form from Detroit to Lexington.

In most races the scoring attached to each heat takes as much out of the horse as the heat itself; in fact, the pulling up so repeatedly is more injurious than trotting the full mile. Whenever associations employ none but the very best starters and empower them with the proper authority then will a starter be able to make the drivers get away without delay. Whenever a starter can punish driver's severely for not being in their proper places and also punish them for bringing uneducated horses to the wire, his authority will be in keeping with the responsibilities of his position.—Hawley in Kentucky Stock Farm.

HOOF BEATS.

P. W. Hodges has got together a big string of horses at San Jose. He is working about sixteen head.

Farmer Bunch will be out this year with a string of trotters and hopes to win a few purses if they don't go too fast for him. He has nine head that he is working at present at San Jose.

William Welch is training two promising horses at San Jose. One is a trotter by Chas. Derby out of a mare by Nutwood. The other is the pacer Jim Marshall by Diablo out of a Button mare.

General Smith 2:17½, by Don Lowell, has again been placed in the hands of J. Shaner at Oakland, who will try and get him in shape for the races this year. Gen. Smith was out on the ankle years ago by a barbed wire and it causes him to go lame at times. Shaner put him in shape last year, however, and his record made at Stockton shows that he has speed.

Mr. Henry Scott of San Jose has a bay stallion by McKinney that he calls Scott McKinney. He is out of Primrose by Sidney, second dam by Privateer. He has bred this horse to twenty-five mares this season. Scott McKinney is a three year old and can show a 2:20 gait. Mr. Scott thinks he is second to no horse but McKinney and is not a bad second at that. The dam of Scott McKinney was bred to Owyhee this year.

The first new performer for Chimos this year is the bay Stallion Baron Chimes, that won a five-heat race at New Hamburg, Ont., trotting the third heat in 2:29½. He is a royally-bred stallion, being by Chimes, out of Mayetta by Baron Wilkes 2:18; second dam Augustino by Pancoast 2:21½; third dam Augusta, by Bollfounder, and fourth dam Dolly Mills, dam of Orange Girl 2:20, etc., by American Star. He is a five year old and was bred by Harry Wobb of Toronto.

Fulfilling His Promise.

Dr. Boucher's colt, Harry Logan, won the 2:40 pace at Denver on Thursday in three straight heats, the time being 2:12½, 2:12½ and 2:15½. Four others started, but the son of Miss Logan 2:06½ did not have to stretch his neck to win. It is a rather risky thing to go East with but one horse, and that a green one, and the Doctor took a big risk when he entered this colt all through the Grand Circuit, as should he go wrong there will be about two thousand dollars worth of orphaned money charged up against the colt. As Harry Logan got second money in his first start, and won his second at Denver, showing his ability to put in three heats in fast time, the outlook is certainly pretty bright for his winning a fair sum when he gets into the fast company he will meet from Detroit to Memphis. If he stays right his mark will be very close to that of his dam by the time he returns home.

Sandy Smith Writes From Cleveland.

GLENNVILLE, Ohio, June 19, 1901.

BREEDER AND SPORTSMAN—Having a few spare moments I will send you a few horse notes from this, the most popular training ground for the American trotter in the United States. Nearly every stable and stall is occupied. There was an open-air horse show here last week. They had the first matinee here on Monday, and the races commenced over at Rockport yesterday, which means that there will be about three weeks of harness racing right around Cleveland at the half-mile tracks.

All the California horses here are doing well and going good. Mr. Thompson has been the fastest mile of any one here with Goshen Jim. He worked in 2:10, last half in 1:02.

Mr. Sanders' horses are all doing well, but he is going slow with them yet, with the exception of Venus II, who worked a mile in 2:17, last half in 1:02, and she did it very nicely. She is the most improved of any of the horses that came over the mountains, for she has taken on flesh along with her work and is going pure-gaited now.

My horse, Funston, has taken on fifty pounds since coming here and feels and acts like a two-year-old, but I haven't done much with him yet, as the weather has been very bad until the last few days. It seemed like it never would quit raining.

I saw Cresceus work a mile in 2:14 yesterday with his head pulled off, and that was the fastest work done by any of the celebrities here, and you know there are quite a few of that class stabled at this track.

It looks to us here as if Vance Nuckols was getting a little the worst of the deal in the Arch W. case.

Little Thorne 2:07½ was sold to Mr. Grimes of Chicago by Mr. Thompson and leaves for the Windy City to-night. He will be used as a matinee horse, and will probably be raced around the half-mile rings. Mr. Grimes paid $2500 and another horse for the Hawthorne pacer. In haste, SANDY SMITH

Will Race on the Fourth.

The program of racing arranged by the Golden Gate Park Driving Association for its matinee on the Fourth of July will attract a large crowd to the Oakland track, where the races are to be held. The events will be best two in three, and in most instances the purses will be $150 each. The following races are scheduled:

2:20 class—G. L. Swett, Steve; J. Doran, Firado; J. M. Eva, Ethel H.; H. F. Patrick, Denny Healy; C. E. Parks, Imp; I. B. Dalziel, Menlo Belle.

2:40 class—Dan Leiginger, Lady Rowena; Dr. A. McLaughlin, A. B. P.; B. Croner, Bondy C.; F. Gomet, Lafayette.

Green class—J. W. McDonald Jr., Campaigner; M. M. Donnelly, Pious; J. W. Bonney, Joe Bonney; H. B. Slocum, Tempest; Dr. Lainer, Lieutenant Hobson; I. B. Dalziel, Belle.

Free for all—H. H. Miller, Lady Falrose; Dan Mixer, Sable La Grande; D. Roberts, Al Gregor; W. Van Keuren, Mattie B.; A. Schwartz, Jeffe.

Special—H. H. Dunlap's King Cadenza and Richardson's Edna R.

Match race—H. W. Meek, Creere; George Gray, Irwin.

No admission will be charged and all are invited to attend. Racing will begin at 1:30 P. M.

Debts of Horse Show.

Attorney Sidney M. Ehrman has recently begun suit against certain shareholders of the San Francisco and San Mateo Agricultural Society, the successor to the San Francisco Horse Show Association, to collect $8090 claimed by creditors to have been left unpaid after the failure of the horse show and agricultural display at Tanforan a few months ago.

Henry Crocker and George A. Newhall, who were the main promoters of the Tanforan plan, paid up their pro rata without dispute, and their names do not appear on the list of debtors, but among those to be sued are R. F. Morrow, Charles H. Crocker, E. W. Hopkins, C. R. Walter, A. E. Buckman, E. E. Ames, William Alvord, William Landers, J. B. Stokes, Joseph Donohoe, Peter Donahue and others.

The persons to be sued object to payment of what is computed to be their share of the loss on the grounds that they had severed their connection with the corporation before the debts were contracted and that they were opposed to the mixing of the horse show interests with the agricultural and milk cows displays of the community. Among the claimants against the company are Frank Carolan, cash prizes for polo ponies; Santa Rosa Stock Farm, prizes for young heifers and bulls, $350; Peter D. Martin, prizes won tournaments, $155.

Less Use for Horses and Transports.

SEATTLE (Wash.), June 26.—The apparent cessation of active hostilities in the Philippines has determined the Government to cease the purchase of horses for use by the Army in those islands. The horse corral at Fort Lawton is empty, and Quartermaster Ruhlen announced to-day that no more purchases would be made in Eastern Washington.

The announcement was accompanied by the statement that the transports Kintuck and Paklin, the last of the animal ships under charter to the Government would be released on their arrival here, which is expected to take place in the course of the next few weeks.

SULKY NOTES.

Entries close Monday next.

For the Breeders and Los Angeles meetings.

McKinney's first new performer for the year is the trotter Dr. Shorb 2:16½.

Searchlight is in splendid shape this year to equal his record and perhaps lower it.

There are forty-four nominations to the $5000 2:30 trot of the Oakley Park Association.

The Walnut Hall campaigning stable will race only at Oakley and Lexington this season.

Lou Star is now training a string of horses at Honolulu, and will drive in the races there.

The owners of Lizzie F. 2:24½ by Direct are trying to purchase a nomination in the M. & M.

Spekane entries will close July 25th. There will be nine days racing there. See advertisement.

Millard Sanders will start Venus II. 2:11½, Janice 2:13½, Zarina 2:13½ and Dolly Dillon 2:11½ at Windsor, Ont.

John Pender has gone back to Portland with his handsome and grandly bred stallion, Captain Jones by McKinney.

Josephine Yeung, dam of Joe Patchen 2:01½, recently foaled a sister to that great horse at Patchen Wilkes Farm, Lexington, Ky.

They say that Joe Patchen is in splendid form, and is taking very kindly to his work over the half-mile track at Goshen, N. Y.

Allerton 2:09½, Axtell 2:12, Chimes and Highwood 2:21½, were all represented by two 2:10 trotters before or by the time they were 13 years old.

J. M. Nelsen worked the gray mare Queenie by Dexter Bradford a mile in 2:14 at the Alameda track last Saturday, and she did it very nicely.

Anaconda is flying this year. He worked a mile in 2:06½ at Dover, New Hampshire, two weeks ago. The last half was in 1:02½ and last quarter in 30½ seconds.

Waseo 2:17½, by Edgemark, is said to be able to go in 2:10, and may be selected as one of the Boston horses to go after the challenge cup. He has been timed a mile in 2:12.

Chas. Durfee has taken Miss Jessie 2:13½ up again and will probably race her this year. She was bred to McKinney this spring and has been running at pasture until a few days ago.

The Directors of the Fourth Agricultural District, comprising the counties of Senoma and Marin, will meet at Santa Rosa to-day to discuss the matter of holding a fair this fall.

The Visalia track is one of the few tracks in California where there are no horses in training this year. If it were kept in order there would probably be quite a number worked there.

Waldo J. walked over in the free for all pace at Honolulu on Kamehame day. He paced the mile in 2:13, coming the last half in 1:05. It is thought that he could have equaled his record that day.

Vic Shellar is not making much of a showing in Denver when the good work he did at the San Jose track this spring is considered. He has failed to win a heat and was behind the flag once last week.

The well known trainer Walter Palmer of Ottawa, Ill., is rejoicing over the arrival of a bay colt by Chimes, dam Hazel Simmons, by Simmons 2:28; granddam Hazel Nutwood, dam of Fancy Wilton 2:18½, by Nutwood 2:18½.

This is pretty rich rich breeding: A colt sired by Bingen, 2:06½, dam Naron, by Arion 2:07½; second dam Nancy Hanks 2:04. Bingen is a five year old champion, Arion champion stallion to high wheel sulky at two years, etc.

Andy McDowell, who is training for J. H. Bronson at the Charter Oak track, has his string in good shape, it is said. He stepped Martha Marshall in 2:12 during the record week in June, and a few days later sent Coney a mile in 2:10.

A man down in San Diego who wanted to dock the tail of a horse he owned, took the animal across the State line into Mexico and cut off the caudal appendage. He did this to avoid the law passed by the last Legislature, prohibiting docking.

The free for all pace is to come off at Denver to-day, together with the free for all trot and the 2:10 trot. There are great fields in all these races. The "Hololulu horse" is named in the pace, but a report has reached here that he has gone wrong.

At the first matinee of the season held by the Cleveland Driving Club the mare Pekko, driven by that master reinsman Mr. H. K. Devoreux, won her race in 2:14½, and Valentine, also driven by Mr. Devoreux was second in 2:24½. Valentine is by Boodle.

There is some talk among the trainers at the Lexington track in favor of holding a series of matinee races during the summer. Friday afternoon of each week was suggested as the date, and June 28th was spoken of as the inaugural day of the sport.

The only Diablo to start in any of the regular events at Denver was Tags, and Bigelow drove her to an easy victory last Saturday, two of the heats being exactly in her former mark, 2:13. She should win Bigelow quite a sum before he brings her back to California.

A movement has been started in Kentucky to petition the next Legislature to pass a bill, based on the Percy-Gray bill in the State of New York, to regulate racing in that State. The proposed bill is said to contain a provision allowing 30 days' racing on each course.

I. Mulholland, who is at Sacramento with his string of horses, worked Osito 2:13½ a mile in 2:17 one day this week. The McKinney stallion did it very handily and looks good enough to equal his record several times during the year and might drop a few seconds below it.

Make every entry you possibly can in the six $1000 purses offered by the Breeders' Association, entries to which will close next Monday. If these purses fill well, the additional purses to be advertised next week will be larger and more numerous than they will be otherwise.

At Denver last Monday in the 2:17 trot Listerine won the first heat in 2:15½, but was distanced in the fourth. Duddy Egmont won the second, fourth and fifth heats and the race. His best time was 2:16½. Ed Widship took the third heat in 2:19½. Charlie Mac got third money.

Lerd Golden is about the best bred trotter that ever won a championship ribbon in heavy harness. His sire was Pendennis, son of Swigert, and his dam was Victoria (dam of Victoria McGregor 2:19½, Victoria Wilkes 2:19½ and Victress 2:28½), by Dictator, the sire of Jay Eye See 2:10.

The horse Winfield Stratton that has paced to a record of 2:15½ and won all his starts at Denver is by Saraway, full brother to Chas. Derby. The Steinway family is visiting the speed of the founder upon the children even unto the third and fourth generations, and it will go further and increase as it goes.

Twenty-six nominations have been made for the 2:14 class trot and twenty-nine for the 2:20 class pace at Memphis. Both these races are to be decided by the new Memphis system, originated by Murray Howe, and the big list in each shows that horsemen are willing to try an innovation that looks feasible on paper.

Too many trainers try to make speed too fast with a promising colt or filly, every day wanting the youngster to go a little faster, says Columbus. In this way they may make speed, but never a good race animal. Developed muscle must go hand in hand with developed speed if a good race animal is the object aimed at.

Too little stress is laid on the dam's side of the house. When a famous matron like old Dolly by Mambrino Chief produces a trio, rather a quartet, like Director 2:17, Czarino 2:21, Therndale 2:22½ and Onward 2:25½, and each by a different sire, it but shows the all-important part the dams play in breeding animals of to-day.

1901 should be a star year for two-year-olds, according to the reports that come from the tracks where the youngsters are being prepared for the campaign. They are certainly doing some wonderful work, but it will take something a little more than wonderful to disturb Arion's mark of 2:10½ or Direct's pacing record of 2:07½.

J. H. Thayer of Lexington, Ky., has had the misfortune to lose by death from pneumonia, his promising two year old brown colt by Baron Wilkes, dam Fanny Swope 2:19½ by Florida, second dam Roan Fanny, dam of five in 2:30, by Mambrino King. The colt was a remarkable fast one for his age, and his death is a serious loss to Mr. Thayer.

Wayboy, the Strathway gelding that was sold to Honolulu parties some time ago, won a race there June 11th in 2:18. Some steps should be taken to get the records of the Hawaiian meetings into the Year Book. A large number of well-bred horses have been shipped from here to Hawaii and the marks made by them should be matters of record.

While the pneumatic wagon, with its light draft, easy riding qualities and convenience of access, has plainly come to stay, leading builders say there is no longer any possibility that it will entirely supersede the solid tire vehicle, except, perhaps, for speedway driving. An interesting demand for wagons of the latter design is reported everywhere this year.

Dr. Shorb, the McKinney colt that took a record of 2:16½ and won second money in the 2:35 trot won by Louise Jefferson at Denver last week, was again second to that mare last Wednesday in the 2:25 trot. The dam of Dr. Shorb is also the dam of the pacer Bernard that took a record of 2:16 at Colusa last year. She is by a horse called Hiatogue we believe, owned in Southern California.

Monbells has not yet been sent to C. A. Durfee at San Jose, but the Palo Alto people have arranged to send him, together with Nazote the full brother to Azote. They desire both these horses to have records. Monbells is by Mendocino out of Beautiful Bells and is her last foal. He was foaled May 18, 1897. Nazote is a large horse, 16.2½ hands high, and was foaled February 23d, 1894.

Oscar Duke of Conejo, Cal., writes us that he has bred eight of his thoroughbred mares to Strathway 2:19, the sire of Toggles. He states that he does not expect to get any record breakers, but believes he can breed the fillies that result to stallions like Diablo, McKinney and other good producers, and get foals that will make his small farm noted. He adds that he is very proud of the thoroughbred foals, now yearlings, that he has by Montana. Things are looking up in his locality and he recently sold a sorrel mare five years old and untried by imp. Mariner for $200.

Henry Helman has a string of ten trotters and pacers at the San Jose track. He has the pacer Motanic by Chehalis, a two year old by Boodle, a four year old by Sable Wilkes, the pacers Myrtha Whips 2:10½ and Wild Nutling 2:11½ and several others. He is also working Ratatat 2:20½ and another one for Mr. Williams of Montana.

Mr. M. K. Severance writes the B. & S. from Arrowhead that he has a green pacer at the farm which he will probably campaign this year, and may have a green trotter or two. His great mare Labelle that took a record of 2:16 as a two year old has a yearling colt by Direct Heir which is showing up well in the paddock, and if lot trotting amounts to anything will have as much speed as its dam.

Old Arena 2:11½ by Aleutara, that made his record some five years ago, is now a pacer and being entered in the stakes out in the western country. The late J. W. Knox, of Nutwood fame, won good races in 1894 with Arena trotting, and John Goldsmith, who drove him in some of his stake engagements, considered him quite nearly a 2:08 trotter. He went wrong and has been at the stud several seasons at Kalamazoo.

The Los Angeles Driving Club will hold an afternoon of matinee racing to-day. The feature of the program is the free for all pace in which the colors of the champion matinee pacer of the Pacific Coast, Primrose 2:12, will be fought for by Dr. Well's Cœur de Lion and L. J. Felton's Montecito Boy 2:15. Mr. Potter will drive Primrose and if she is in condition she should retain her prestige, as she is fast and game, and steady as a clock.

A gentleman who seems to know what he is talking about, says that Cresceus would now have just as fast a record as The Abbot if it had not been for an error on the part of the man who drove Cresceus' prompter when that horse took his record of 2:04 at Cleveland. The driver in question called the time to Ketcham at the half mile pole, and he made a mistake of one second, calling it 1:01½ instead of 1:02½, as he should have done. It was faster than Mr. Ketcham wanted to go, and he took the stallion back.

Says the American Horse Breeder of Boston: Trainer James Golden has stepped some of the California youngsters that he bought at the recent Cleveland sale quarters in 35 seconds, and says that with good weather and no accidents he can drive the two-year-old full sister of Idolita an eighth in 15 seconds. She is as beautifully gaited and rapid going a pacer as any man can ask. The highly bred trotting three-year-old gelding Rowellan is as level headed a trotter as the best of the intensely trotting-bred ones. All his California colts have improved wonderfully during the past ten days.

When in 1894 Directly paced to a two year old record of 2:07½ at Galesburg, he gave his sire Direct 2:05½, the honor of being the first stallion in the 2:10 list to produce a 2:10 performer. Later in the same season Lockheart took rank with him, being the sire of La Belle 2:09. Now there are twenty-one 2:10 stallions that are 2:10 sires; Direct's number has been increased to three, and includes a trotter, and the only other stallion with as many is Allerton, which, by the way, is the only 2:10 trotter with two trotters in the 2:10 list, Atlantic King, Hal Dillard and Roy Wilkes are the sires of two each. The only 2:10 trotting stallions which have sired 2:10 speed are Allerton and Arion.—Boston Courier.

It is not so long ago when there were but two or three sires holding 2:10 or better records that were represented in the same select circle by one or more of their get. Now there are no less than twenty-one stallions with records of 2:10 or faster that are sires of 2:10 or better speed. Direct 2:05½ is the sire of three in the 2:10 list; Allerton 2:09½ has also three, two of them trotters. Allerton is the only 2:10 trotting sire with two trotters to his credit in the 2:10 list. Direct's three are made up of two pacers and one trotter. Atlantic King, Roy Wilkes and Hal Dillard are the sires of two 2:10 performers each. Star Pointer 1:59½, John R. Gentry 2:00½ and Direct 2:05½, each in his day champion pacing stallion, are all sires of 2:10 performers. Moquette, trotting mark 2:10, is the sire of a 2:10 pacer and Kentucky Star 2:08½, pacing, is the sire of Bay Star 2:08, trotting.

Mr. George Ketcham was at the Glenville track Friday and drove Cresceus a mile in 2:17, the last quarter in 32 seconds, the last eighth being in 14½ seconds, not very bad for a horse only out of the stud a month. The fastest Tim Murnane has driven the champion stallion is a mile in 2:20. Murnane has also driven Crescent Route, a three-year-old by Cresceus, a mile in 2:32, the last quarter in 34 seconds, and Cresceus, a two-year-old filly by Cresceus, a quarter in 42 seconds. When Murnane had Cresceus out working Monday, Scott McCoy was on the track with Directum Kelly 2:08½, champion trotting stallion of 1899. The two finally came together, Directum Kelly holding his own until Murnane stepped Cresceus a quarter in 31 seconds. It was too hot a pace for the son of Direct and he died away, several lengths from the wire.—Cleveland Sportsman.

A prominent veterinarian proposes a new solution of iodine which he prefers to the official tincture, as follows: Iodine, 20 grammes; alcohol, 40 grammes; ether, 40 grammes. This is a 20 percent solution of iodine in equal parts of alcohol and ether. The point made for the use of this solution in preference to the official tincture is that it dries as rapidly as it is applied on the skin, and is of such strength that but one or two coats need be applied. On account of the alcohol in the official tincture the iodine is spread over a larger area of the skin than is necessary, and it is usually impossible to prevent drops of it from running down the part for some distance and staining it. Because of the rapid evaporation of the alcohol and ether mixture made by the formula here quoted it has no tendency to spread. Horsemen who use this remedy quite frequently will be interested in this new solution.

THE SADDLE.

Results at Denver.

The results of the running races at the Denver meeting from June 20th, the date of our last report, up to June 26th, are here given. There is a very large attendance at the Overland Park every day and betting has been lively ever since the meeting opened. The success of the racing will no doubt lead to a two weeks running meeting being given under the same management in the fall, just prior to the opening of the season in California.

Rough Riding in Races.

[N. Y. Spirit of the Times.]

Early in the season attention was drawn to the matter of rough riding, and deliberately unfair tactics which were being indulged in by several of the jockeys riding in the vicinity of the metropolis, and the apparent result was that one or two of the worst were badly shaken up by the authorities. It does not seem, however, to have had a lasting effect. Seldom at a metropolitan meeting has there been so much crowding, jostling, roughing and utter lack of what may be termed "race courtesy" as at the Brooklyn meeting, now closed. Of course no one expects a jockey to be a Chesterfield or a Beau Brummel, but in the past, that is to say until the last year or two, there has been a certain amount of decency and consideration among the leading boys, and an equivalent small proportion of deliberate and intentional foul riding. To-day such fair behavior seems to have well nigh vanished, except in isolated cases, but when one looks back through the list of fouls claimed, dismissed and allowed, there is a curious continuity in the names of those concerned, which should point a strong index finger to very nearly the root of the evil.

A glance at last season will show that at least three of the leading boys had no claim made against them; that an exceedingly heavy percentage of their claims was allowed, and that their work for the entire season was consistent and fairly regular in its tenor. On the other hand, it will be found that those boys against whom fouls were claimed time and again, the majority being allowed, had records which did not take them into the front percentage ranks, and in which appeared astounding runs of losing mounts, three and four times as great as those of the better boys quoted above.

Any one who closely watches each race can plainly see that round the turns, and down the stretch, the majority of boys are working on the principle of "the devil take the hindmost," and are strenuous apostles of the great "Get there, Eli." division. It is the trend of the time, unfortunately, that the modern generation is too rushed, too busy, for empty courtesies, but in the case of the jockeys, where such tactics involve important factors of gain or loss, far beyond the mere value of the stake, race or event, and its natural speculation, the offenders should surely be dealt with summarily. Not by fine, which in many cases amounts to nothing, but by suspension which cuts down clear to the bone and marrow, and is felt and remembered.

It would be idle to attempt to make specific charges, and practically impossible to prove them, but every experienced racing man with normal eyesight knows just exactly what is alluded to, and will endorse the proposed remedy.

As a sprinter Voter, the imported chestnut horse by Friar's Balsam, is certainly a fast one. He picked up 133 pounds in the Coney Island Handicap last week and ran the distance in 1:12 2-5, which equals the time made by Waltzer with 105 pounds up in 1895.

America on the British Turf.

The recent victories of American owners, trainers, jockeys and horses on the running tracks of England have attracted the attention of all Americans who are at all interested in horses, and the following article from the New York Sun will be read with interest by all such:

The racing over the Downs at Epsom during the past week has been of special interest to the citizens of the United States whether they have an acute or mild interest in the racing of running thoroughbreds. The winner of the Derby was an English-bred horse, to be sure, but he was owned by a Yankee and ridden by a Yankee. In the Oaks, run on Friday, the Americans had everything pretty much their own way. The results in these two important events on the English turf made the blood of thousands of Americans course a bit quicker, not because of their own special and particular interest in horse racing, but because Americans were at the fore in them. The American flag waves no less smartly over a foreign race track after an American victory than in a foreign sea after the triumph of our arms.

The racing at Epsom, however, had interest primarily for the horsemen. To the thoughtful among these the Derby and the Oaks must offer subjects for interesting reflection. So far as the Derby is concerned, it is undoubtedly true that the best horse won. But because he was born and bred on the other side and only leased for the occasion by Mr. Whitney, it is probably true that a great majority of Americans would have been much better pleased had the race been won either by Mr. Whitney's Prince Charles or by Mr. Keene's Olympian. Both of these are American-bred horses, and had either one turned up the winner there would have been real cause for Yankee jubilation.

When it is remembered, though, how the race was run, you might be pardoned for concluding that the real hero of this year's Derby was the American-bred Olympian, half-brother to Cap and Bells, and son of the American-bred Domino, which was the son of the American-bred Himyar. We learn from the story of the race cabled from the other side, that Olympian was first away at the flag-fall and made the running for a little over a mile. For that distance he was, in truth, the whirlwind son of his whirlwind sire. It was the Domino style of racing, descended from sire to sons like Commando and Olympian, and to daughters like Cap and Bells. Volodyovski, so some of the reports of the race stated, was never made to travel so fast in his life before. The Yankee was setting a heart-breaking pace and the Britisher must follow or take a beating. When the race was over, and the time was hung up, it was known that a new Derby record was made and there was much British enthusiasm over the greatness of Volodyovski. But it was an American horse that really lowered that record, and the fact should be understood.

For some time racing men have been doubtful about the stamina of the get of Domino and there may be some who will point to Olympian's performance in the Derby as a justification of this doubt. It may be said that Olympian's running was characteristic of his sire—that he ran a mile with the speed of the wind and then collapsed. It is true that Domino was not invincible over a distance of ground, and it seems to be true that Olympian has no great liking for a long journey, but Olympian is only one of the progeny of Domino, and a very formidable son at that. How about others of the Domino get? Two days after Olympian forced Volodyovski to break the Derby record, Cap and Bells ran the Derby course of about a mile and a half, and won the Oaks with such ridiculous ease that her nearest competitor was six lengths behind. Her time was 2:44 2-5, or 3 3-5 seconds slower than the time in which Volodyovski ran practically the same distance. Who shall say that if Domino's daughter had have been harder pressed she would not have equaled and, perhaps, lowered Volodyovski's record? And what shall be said of Domino's greatest son, Commando, who is "burning up" the American tracks, has run a mile faster than any three year old than anybody hereabouts has ever heard of, and has been able to retain his speed and go as far as he has been asked to go, a distance a little short of one and a half miles?

When, however, the performance of American thoroughbreds in England are recalled, not only during the present year but in years past, it does seem to be true that the English thoroughbred has better staying qualities than the horse of American breeding. With the exception of the victories of Mr. Keene's Foxhall and Mr. Lorillard's Iroquois, years ago, and the one winning this year of Mr. Lorillard's David Garrick, our horses have shown to better advantages on the English tracks in the shorter races. Mr. Whitney's Prince Charles was regarded as one of the best two year olds here last year. Mr. Whitney's Kilmarnock was regarded by a man last year as the best three year old in the United States. When Prince Charles was asked to go the Derby distance and win, he made a poor response. In the few races that Kilmarnock has run this year in England, he has shown little evidence of his last year's form.

Many reasons may be advanced for the inability of our horses when running on foreign tracks to go a distance. It may be, for instance, that Prince Charles is not as good a three year old as he was a two year old. It may be that Kilmarnock would not have been the horse he was last year under any circumstances. But this is a fact: For several years American owners of thoroughbreds have discouraged distance racing. They have protested to racing associations against races as long as or longer than a mile and a half. The result has been that our horses have been trained for performances of the touch-and-go style. Then, too, American horses are not used to carrying the weight imposed upon English horses. When American owners conclude that distance racing is worth their while, and that ability to carry weight at any age and from any distance is an evidence of stamina, there may be more American winners of the English Derby and the Oaks.

How the "Darby" Was Run.

The London Sportsman's description of the Derby was as follows: "Weighed out to time, the paddock was crowded, and all were on view except Osboch, who was saddled away, by permission of the stewards. Ruskin led the parade, followed by St. Maciou, and then came H. R. H., Handicapper, Cottage, Sang Bleu, Pietermaritzburg, Doricles, Royal Rouge, Revenue, Ian, Veles, Royal George, Orchid, Olympian, Lord Bobs, Tantalus, Claqueur, Veronese, Floriform, Prince Charles II., Volodyovski, Wargrave and William the Third. Assembled at the post, there was a tedious wait, chiefly caused by the obstinate Orchid, who repeatedly declined to go near the gate. At last, after over half an hour's delay, the barrier went up, and quickest away was Olympian, followed by Claqueur, Osboch and Lord Bobs, whilst Doricles went on next, in advance of Veles, Revenue, H. R. H., Ruskin, Veronese, Royal Rouge, these being in front of Volodyovski. Crossing the road Olympian still held a clear lead of Lord Bobs, Orchid, Revenue, Pietermaritzburg, Osboch, William the Third, Prince Charles II., Handicapper, Ruskin and Veles. So they raced to the straight, where Olympian was still showing the way to Prince Charles II., whilst Volodyovski was following in his wake, with Revenue next, in front of William the Third. Well below the Bell the leader collapsed, and Volodyovski dashed to the front, followed by William the Third. The latter struggled on hard, but Volodyovski, putting in some good work up the hill, secured Mr. W. C. Whitney his first Derby by three parts of a length; four lengths between second and third. Floriform, a head away, was placed fourth, Olympian was fifth, Osboch sixth, Doricles seventh, Prince Charles II. eighth, Sang Bleu ninth, Pietermaritzburg tenth, H. R. H. eleventh, Ian twelfth, Royal George thirteenth and Orchid last. Time, by Benson's chronograph, 2 minutes 40 and 4-5 seconds. Value of the stakes $4,950."

SADDLE NOTES.

The record for a mile was lowered at Sheephead Bay on Saturday last when Brigadier won the handicap from a high class field in 1:37 4-5. The previous record for a mile on a circular track was made by Voter last year at Brighton Beach, when he ran the distance in 1:38. Brigadier is by imp. Rayon d'Or, out of imp. St. Bridget by St. Simon. He is a bay gelding four years old.

A number of race horses in training, the property of Charles Littlefield Jr., were sold at auction last Wednesday in the Fasig-Tipton Company's paddock at Sheephead Bay previous to the day's racing. Water Color, black colt by imp. Watercress—Sabrina, was the star of the sale and was knocked down for the good price of $23,000. Sidney Paget and M. Thayerman were prominent bidders, but he finally went to D. C. Johnson.

The Rancho del Paso has lost one of its most valuable thoroughbred stallions, St. Andrew, which died on Saturday from the effects of a rupture. Every effort was made by the veterinarians to save the horse's life, but without avail. St. Andrew was one of the leading sires of the Haggin breeding farm, and his progeny sold for high prices at the sale of yearlings in New York last week. The horse was valued at about $25,000. He was the sire of Articulate, Santello, Gotobed, St. Rica, St. Cassimer and many other good ones.

Horses are peculiar pieces of property. This is demonstrated particularly in the case of Watercolor. Watercolor was either injured or taken sick when a youngster during his trip from California to New York. He was so poorly off that he was not even led into the ring for sale, but passed over to Littlefield to do the best that he could with him. It was believed that he would pass up to horse heaven at a very early stage. To the New Jersey farmer went Watercolor, and, instead of dying, began to improve under Littlefield's care. It is an old story how he was introduced as a two year old, winning race after race, and voted the handsomest and most gentlemanly youngster of the year. Practically a gift horse, for Mackey did not want to ship him back to California, he is now valued at $23,000.

Peach Blossom-Clipper W. Race Is On.

An interesting feature and side issue at the Manitoba Field Trials to be run in September, at Carman, Man., will be a match race between W. W. Van Arsdale's English Setter bitch Peach Blossom (Count Gladstone IV.—Peach Mark) and Dr. C. E. Wilson's English Setter dog Clipper W. (Marie's Sport-Isabella Maid). Peach Blossom won second in the Derby and first in the All Age at Coronado last January. Clipper W. was unplaced. He had previously won second in both the Derby and All Age at the Pacific North Western Trials at Whidby Island, near Seattle, last fall.

The conditions of the race are for a purse of $250, $50 to be deposited with Mr. Eric Hamber, secretary of the Manitoba Field Trials Club, upon signature of articles of agreement. The match to take place sometime during the running of the Manitoba trials under the rules and conditions governing that meeting. If both dogs should be entered in the All Age stake the merits of the dogs are to be judged during the running of that stake. If it should happen that neither dog will be placed or if for any reason the judges at the trials should refuse to officiate or determine the respective merits of the dogs, the principals or their representatives shall each select a judge, and these two gentlemen will select a third and the three gentlemen so selected will judge the race. If neither dog is entered in the All Age the dogs will run a heat of two hours' duration, during the Manitoba trials, which heat is to commence not earlier than four o'clock P. M. Should Peach Blossom be in season, it will be optional with Dr. Wilson to run his dog or not.

Dr. Wilson has this week written a gentleman in this city that Clipper W. is all right and will be sent East in the near future. He will forward the signed articles of agreement and a check for $50 to Mr. Hamber next week. He has notified the other side to go ahead with their preparations for the race and remarks that he has no ill feeling in the matter and hopes the best dog may win.

Peach Blossom will be entered in the Manitoba All Age and will shortly be sent East in charge of Mr. Chas. Babcock, Mr. Van Arsdale's handler. The trial last January was her initial field trial performance. The general impression among those who were present at Coronado at the time is that she will win.

The history of the difference of opinion respecting the two dogs matched is a story that does not reflect any credit upon the parties who originally fomented a feeling of distrust and misplaced confidence in the breasts of sportsmen who unfortunately were not present when their dogs ran at Coronado. In the first place all the daily press reports of the Coronado trials were written by the same individual or his coadjutor in misrepresentation. The reports furnished the Eastern sporting press were by the same pen which framed the Examiner and Chronicle reports published in this city, which were biased in the extreme. These reports were, we believe, supplemented by personal letters to owners and also communications to a weekly published in this city. There was never any newspaper controversy at all regarding the trials, but instead, there was a series of deliberate misrepresentations systematically published, concerning also another dog, as well as Dr. Wilson's, and for what purpose we do not know, except possibly to acquire an influence that was not founded on merit. These unscrupulous statements were not only a reflection upon the integrity of the judges, particularly Mr. Johnson, but unfortunately created a feeling among divers readers, if subsequent inquiry was any criterion, that Clipper W. had been thrown down and favoritism shown. So callous and unfair were the motives that prompted the reports referred to, that when Mr. Johnson forwarded a letter for publication the communication was so distorted and garbled as to make it ridiculous and destroy the meaning of the key sentence.

That Dr. Wilson's feelings were aroused is shown by his letter published in an Eastern sportsman's journal and by his resignation from the Pacific Coast Field Trials Club. The proposition to run this race did not originate at Coronado but came from Dr. Wilson. Mr. Johnson, upon being advised of Dr. Wilson's dissatisfaction, immediately proposed, if he could have the use of Mr. Van Arsdale's dog, to run a race for $1000 or any part of it. Dr. Wilson has accepted the challenge for $250 a side.

The consensus of opinion is that Clipper W. will have a hard chance to win, not that he is not a dog of quality and merit, but he is against a better dog. Furthermore, knowing sportsmen claim that another dog that ran at Coronado and was not placed, would probably beat Clipper.

In the whole matter our sympathies are with Dr. Wilson who has shown himself to be an enthusiastic sportsman, but we sincerely believe has been imposed upon in an uncalled for manner.

Bench Show for Oakland.

A dog show will be one of the features of the combined poultry, pigeon, rabbit and cat exhibit at Oakland in December. For three years past the dog show has been under the auspices of the California Collie Club, with P. K. L. rules prevailing. This year we are advised the show will be run under A. K. C. rules. Mr. John Bradshaw will have entire supervision of the bench show exhibit. Mr. Bradshaw will no doubt have success in bringing the venture to a practical and satisfactory issue, his abilities and experience are sufficient to enable him to take charge of a show of greater magnitude. Present indications are that at least 200 dogs are guaranteed for this show. An innovation in judging will be introduced. Fanciers of local reputation and now among the Coast ranks of dogdom will go over the various breeds in the ring. Already speculation is rife as to a probable selection of judges. Among the list of eligibles, have been mentioned Norman J. Stewart for Collies and pet dogs, Chas. R. Harker and Jos. Cutten, St. Bernards and Mastiffs, J. F. Gleason, Bull Terriers, Dominick Shannon, Fox Terriers, Greyhounds and all terriers but Irish and Bostons. W. Chute, English Setters and Pointers. Notwithstanding the alleged dissatisfaction it is claimed Mr. Lynn's judging created at our recent show, the gentleman will be invited to judge all terriers should his services be available during the time of the show. The encouragement already shown the projectors of the show tends to the possibility of the exhibition being a three-point show.

Derby Entries for Next January.

The entry of Derby candidates for the Pacific Coast trials next January promises to be a good one. Among the probable entries will be 5 or 6 from Stockdale Kennels, Dr. Wilson mentions 4, W. B. Coutts will have 3 or 4, Albert Betz 2, Geo. D. Potter, Wallace, Idaho, 2 or 3, John Schumacher and Henry M. Keller 1 each, also entries from other Los Angeles sportsmen. From San Diego, Mr. Babcock and Mr. Naylor will possibly each send an entry. Chas. N. Post of Sacramento, it is reported, has a promising young dog to enter. The list will possibly exceed in numbers that of last year. The entries will close on Monday, as most of the nominations are kept back until the last day, the following partial list up to the 25th, will be largely augmented:

Doings in Dogdom.

The following good story is vouched for by a prominent Eastern fancier sojourning on the Coast at present. The gentleman just mentioned recently paid a few days' visit to a certain congenial spirit well known in Coast dogdom circles and who is pleasantly located under his own "vine and fig tree" not over 100 miles distant from San Jose. During his visit who should bob up serenely but Deputy Fish Commissioner Harry T. Payne. The Eastern visitor had never met Payne, but knew him by reputation. Before Payne had a chance to unload, the Easterner made a bet with his host that he would keep Payne from monopolizing the conversation, with Countess Noble fairy tales, for a period of six hours. Singular to say he won his bet. He kept the breeder of the most wonderful setter that ever lived, away from his pot canine theme from 4:30 until 11:15 P. M. However he did it, we can't for the life of us divine. But Payne then had his innings and closed up at 1:30 A. M., when he found that both of his victims were sound asleep.

The plea is urged by a local fancier that home bred dogs should receive more recognition at the hands of bench show committees and specialty clubs than has heretofore prevailed. In the past the cream of the awards has been captured by high priced imported dogs. Our friend argues that anyone with the necessary funds can go to the ends of the earth for the best that can be bought. In the ensuing competitions the hard-working and painstaking breeder is pushed to the wall, which is a discouragement to the fancy. Not everyone can breed a crackerjack, but while giving due reward to a good one, from anywhere, that particular element should not overshadow the home bred and good ones.

At the Traps.

The Union Gun Club live bird shoot to-morrow is the scheduled event for Ingleside. The program comprises a club shoot at 12 birds, handicap 26 to 33 yards. Entrance $3. Side pool entrance $2, three moneys, class shooting. Two six bird races are also listed, entrance $1.50. High guns to win in one race and class shooting to prevail in the other.

A 100 bird race, $20 entrance, will be a feature of the Lincoln Gun Club shoot on July 7th. A fair number of entries have already been received.

The blue rock shooting men are well pleased with the action of Mr. Phil B. Bekeart in putting up an expensive and beautifully worked silver cup to be shot for under perpetual challenge conditions. The initial shoot will take place on July 14th. The entrance fee will be the price of birds. The winner is subject to a challenge at any time, the shooter or shooters wishing to contest for the cup will accompany their defi with a deposit of $5. The name of each successive winner of the trophy will be engraved on the cup. This prize cup will doubtless prove the sought for honor in many a hot blue rock shooting contest.

The proposed trap shooting tournament at Buffalo under the auspices of the Pan-American Exposition, has been officially declared off, writes Elmer E. Shaner. He has received a telegram from S. D. Clarke, secretary of the Bureau of Sports, stating that it will be impossible to hold the shoot.

At Burlingame on July 4th the club members will hold a live bird shoot. The principal event of the day is the cup race at 20 pigeons. This contest has been shot up twice previously. Mr. Fred Tallant and Mr. W. H. Howard have each won the cup. Final ownership will rest with the shooter who wins the trophy three times. The race Thursday will be an interesting one.

The Empire Gun Club at Alameda Point Sunday was fairly well attended by club members and visitors. The feature of the day's shooting was the clever work of W. G. Cullen in the Sweeney record medal race. This race is a distance handicap affair. For each five targets smashed the shooter is set back two yards until the twenty-yard slat is reached, doubles or two targets sprung at the same time, are then trapped for the shooter, who, after breaking each five pair, will have to get back an additional two yards. These conditions have so far resulted in handicapping most shooters who entered this race out of record scores until Cullen's shooting Sunday, which, under the circumstances, was very skillful. He broke five clay pigeons from both the sixteen and eighteen-yard pegs, five pairs from the twenty-yard mark and four pair straight and one of the fifth pair, missing his second target, shooting from the twenty-two-yard score, thus making a run of twenty-five straight. This record was the best score of the day and is now the high score in this particular event. C. W. Debenham of Oakland broke fifteen out of a possible twenty in the Allen handicap trophy race, shooting at ten singles and five pairs shooting from the eighteen-yard mark. Pool and practice shooting at ten, fifteen and twenty-five targets thrown from the maugatrap device also engaged the attention of about a dozen shooters during the forenoon.

In several other events the scores were as follows:

Twenty-five bird race—Reed 23, Juster 20, Jeffreys 10, Hanna 8, Robertson 22, Chestnut 22, King 17, Allen 16, Wetmore 20, Brown 15, Mincke 13, Hauer 22, Peltier 17, Anderson 14, Debenham 20.

Ten bird race—Peltier 5, Knick 6, Baird 6, Jeffreys 4, Wetmore 8, Debenham 10, Reed 8, Robertson 8, Roman 7, Hauer 9, Hanno 9, Cullen 10, Allen 8, Chestnut 10, King 10, Anderson 5, Juster 8, Bennett 7, Brown 8.

Several pool and practice shoots concluded the day's sport.

Strong, lively pigeons at the Ingleside trap shooting grounds last Sunday baffled the skill of the shooting experts in grassing birds at the shoot of the San Francisco Gun Club. In the club match at 15 pigeons not a single shooter scored straight. Several times during the day a shooter left the score after having fired both barrels at a bird and feeling confident that the pigeon was properly killed, having seen the bird drop apparently dead to the ground, and would then have the chagrin of losing the bird, which revived in time to escape the dog's efforts to retrieve. In a 15-bird pool race, after the club event, Otto Feudner and George H. T. Jackson made the only straight 15-bird scores during the day. An 8 and 6 bird pool race followed. A number of the club members resorted to the blue-rock section of the Ingleside grounds for practice shooting at inanimate targets after shooting up their scores at live birds. The scores were:

Members of the Sacramento Gun Club were out last Sunday doing some practice work for the tournament next month. The club's medal contest also took place. The sport opened with a match at 10 bluerocks, in which Palm scored 7, Brown 5, Mitchell 6, Beardsley 6, Leazer 7 and Trumpler 6. Next came the medal shoot at 25 bluerocks, Black shooting in class 1 and Beardsley in class 2. The results were:

The Capital City Gun Club held its regular shoot on the 23d inst. The club has found it necessary to increase the facilities of the grounds, and Sunday another set of five traps were kept in almost steady operation. Several new faces were present, and some of the new shooters made good scores for beginners. Much interest is being taken in the tournament to come off on the 14th and 15th of July. To accommodate the sportsmen, and in order that they may familiarize themselves with the grounds and conditions, a preliminary shoot, under the rules to govern on that occasion, will be held on July 7th.

The events shot off were as follows: Match at 15 bluerocks—Newbert 12, Frazee 12, Gusto 14, Vetter 12, Just 14, Griffin 7, Adams 10, Kindberg 12, Weldon 10, Black 12, Favero 7, Blair 11.

Wolf Hunting in India.

The rains had broken and big game shooting in the hills was over, and as there was nothing better to do I sent my shikari out into the plains to try and arrange for me to get some wolves I heard were about, so writes an English sportsman in recounting the following adventures. After a week or so I received a post card saying that six wolves were at L, so next morning, taking my carbine with me, I started and rode some twenty-five miles and very unpleasant it was as it rained hard, and all the nullahs were rushing torrents and difficult to cross. Arrived at L, I enquired where my shikari was, and after a while found him in a mistri's house in the workshop of which he had arranged for me to put up. An hour before dark the shikari proposed a start and off we went with only my carbine, as my double rifle had not yet arrived. He took me about half a mile to some nullahs, and then we lay down behind some long grass and watched a piece of high ground to which the man said six wolves came every evening, and in a few minutes they began to arrive singly and in pairs until six had come and were playing together some ninety yards away. I was trying to make up my mind which one to shoot at when another wolf, the biggest I have ever seen, arrived and sat down about 120 yards off.

Partly with the desire to get the big one and partly to watch them, I refrained from shooting until about dusk when all the wolves solemnly got off their haunches and walked off in different directions, the big one passing me at about 80 yards off. I fired and missed and then as they rushed in all directions I knocked a small one over some 50 yards off.

The next morning we walked miles and saw several wolves, but shot nothing but a nilghai bull, till nearing home there was suddenly a great hulabaloo and a wolf dashed past some eighty yards off with a crowd of men and dogs behind him. I let drive with my rifle, broke a hind leg, then ran homo, got my pony and a spear and started in pursuit; the wolf had a long start, but the noise guided me, and presently I spotted the wolf about half a mile away and I settled down to ride in earnest. Several times I caught him, but the pony did not like the looks of his teeth, and the ground was rough and hoavy; three times we swam swollen rivers until at last the wolf now utterly done kept to one of the streams sometimes swimming, sometimes running, and I splashed along behind, at last he turned up a creek and on my coming to the mouth I saw him standing in the water unable to climb the banks and blocked in by myself and pony I jumped off, and went cautiously towards him, and as he came at me I ran the spear through him. He seized the solid bamboo in his teeth and snapped it like match wood, then snapped at my leg pulling away a piece of my puttie as I jumped back, and before he could renew his attack I brought the lead end of the half of the spear I still had down on his head and killed him.

I then dragged him to the nullah and found a slopo and hauled him up and laid him by the nearest tree and then led my jaded nag to the nearest village, and enquired where I was. I had ridden seven miles and had a long walk home with a chamar carrying my wolf. Having got dry and had a meal I sent the skins with the shikari to the Kucheari for him to get his reward, and I went home on an ekka. So ended a rather curious experience.

The Fly-Casters.

The first of the series of five class contests of the San Francisco Fly-Casting Club took place Saturday and Sunday at Stow lake. It will be seen that bait-casting has now been taken up. J. B. Kerniff was high rod on Sunday but the scores made are susceptible of much improvement; we venture to say that an increase of sixty per cent in this event is not an exaggerated idea of the known abilities of some of the gentlemen who wet a line in the lake. In the other events the majority of the contestants show an increase in skill. This year quite a few new fly-casters are noticed in the list of sportsmen present.

On the following page will be found an interesting tabulation of the preparatory classification work performed during the first five meetings this season. The schedule of percentages defining the class to which each fly-caster belongs is based on the following standards: Championship class, distance, 102½ feet and over; accuracy, 90 per cent and over; delicacy, 82 per cent and over. First class, distance, over 90 and under 102½ feet; accuracy, 83 and under 90 per cent; delicacy, 77 and 82 per cent inclusive. Second class, distance, under 90 feet; accuracy, under 83 per cent; delicacy, under 77 per cent, in which latter division there is at present no representation.

The scores made in contest number six of the class series appear below:

THE FARM.

Wastes on the Farm.

Millions of dollars' worth of material are wasted annually on the farms of this country, is a statement made by some authority. In the aggregate I suppose there is an enormous amount of waste in every industry, and farming is no exception to the rule. There are farmers to-day who avoid waste on their farms fully as much as the wide-awake manufacturer or producer in other lines. On the other hand, there are plenty who fail to realize that they are wasting good material, although the process is going on daily under their very noses. Everything is a waste that is not put to its best and highest use. Thus cornstalks burned in the field is a distinct waste if there is any possible way to convert them into food for cattle. Sometimes it is a decided waste simply because the farmer is too stupid to see that his best plan is to raise more cattle to eat the stalks, and less corn. Again it may be a great waste to attempt to raise only one farm crop when the uncertainties of selling the produce at a fair profit are great, especially if there are other crops which could be raised satisfactorily.

Sometimes one of the greatest wastes on the farm comes from the failure to spend money for needed improvements. The soil that is not in fit condition for raising a certain crop to the highest perfection is actually wasted when sown with seed which it cannot possibly do the best by. The waste comes in at such times because of lack of foresight or because the farmer is unwilling to spend the extra amount of money. Now, we can waste soil and crops. We can also waste time, machinery and labor. All of these are important factors and they must be studied separately and individually. The successful merchant studies the market, labor, cost of production and the wear and tear of machinery and waste of capital. So the farmer must, to avoid leaks and wastes, look to it that the highest efficiency is obtained from every dollar of capital he has invested. Progressive farmers of to-day are doing this, and they are rapidly becoming the best business men in the country. The man who can take a run-down farm and build it up and make a good living from it through good farming is a shrewd business man not to be overlooked in this age of strenuous living.

Success in the Dairy Business.

The French minister of agriculture has recently sent a special commission to make an inquiry into the cause of the great increase in sales in England of the dairy products of Denmark, an increase which has been accompanied by a very material falling off in the English sales of French dairy products. In the past ten years Denmark has increased her sales of dairy products in the English market from, approximately, $40,000,000 a year to $60,000,000 a year, while during the same time the dairy products of France into England have fallen off between thirty and forty per cent. The French commissioner evidently made a careful study of the subject in northern France, in Denmark and in England, and the conclusions which he reaches are of great value to all of those interested in supplying dairy products to either a home or a foreign market. It seems from the report that the Danish success and the French failure are due to the fact that the commodities of the former are of a high grade of excellence and can always be depended upon, while those of the latter are sometimes good and sometimes the reverse, with no regularity in quality that can be depended upon.

This French investigator found that the Danish farmers of the present generation are better educated, both in general and especially in whatever concerns their own life and work, than any other agricultural population in the world, not even excepting those of the United States. They have learned the great value in the eyes of the consumers of perfect cleanliness and honest production, and hence their dairy establishments are models of care and neatness. In the matter of eggs the system has been carried to such a degree of exactness that there is a private mark put on each egg, which allows the Danish exporter, when complaints are made by the English merchant, to bring home the fault to the particular farmer, who has to bear the loss of any inferior product which he may have sold. Again, the uniformity of production has been closely attended to, so that the butter of a particular maker is always of the same standard. The Danish shippers have perfected the system of making shipments under artificially cold conditions, thus insuring the arrival of their wares in the English market under good conditions.

In these various particulars the French commissioner found that the Norman farmers and shippers were seriously deficient. The same care and cleanliness were not evinced in the dairy buildings. There was no uniformity in the standard of production, and it frequently happened that in consequence of the absence of artificial refrigeration the products arrived in the English market in poor condition. The French agriculturists have the advantage over the Danish, afforded by their relative nearness to the English market, but this advantage has been much more than offset by the superior skill which the Danes have shown. This is an experience which might be studied with great advantage by the dairy farmers of this country, even by those whose business it is to supply the great centers of population.

When the Hogs First Came Over.

According to historical records, says the New York Farmer, the first swine in America were brought from Spain by Christopher Columbus on his second voyage, in 1493, and landed at Hispaniola. The London Company introduced the hog into Virginia in 1609, when 600 swine were set free. These became "wild" and multiplied so rapidly that the people of Jamestown had to build palisades to keep them out of that settlement. They ate everything. These were the ancestors of the "razor-back" hogs of the Southern States of to-day.

Improvements of breeds began when George Washington received a pair of blooded pigs from the Duke of Bedford. Washington left these pigs in the care of English farmers who brought them over and he sold them. They were called the Bedford or Woburn breed, and in some places were called the Parkinson breed. They had deep, round bodies, thin hair, short legs, and their color was white, broken with dark blue or ashy spots.

They spread through Maryland, Virginia, Delaware and Pennsylvania. They were hardy, vigorous, prolific and easily kept. They ranged in weight from 300 pounds at the age of a year, to 700 pounds at the age of twenty months.

Hogs in those days were much coarser in every way than they are now. No class of live stock has been more improved than hogs and the various breeds are now nearly perfect by improvement and good feeding.

The milk from heifers is neither so liberal in quantity nor so rich as that from older cows. A heifer is not matured, and what is required for growth is so much taken from what might otherwise go to milk production. With good feed and care the possibilities of a heifer may be developed so that if she is capable of eating and digesting a liberal quantity of food a fair proportion may go to the milk pail. After her second calf the real value of a cow as a dairy animal should begin to show.

Salt and ashes aid digestion in swine.

Sheep Notes.

Sheep husbandry will always be regarded as one of the great industries which are at once an incident and a leading factor in the prosperity of every civilized country.

Grain when used in reasonable quantities is all right, but many a good lamb's growth has been ruined and many a mature sheep killed through ignorance of the proper use of same.

Admitting that fat sheep are the most tempting to butchers and dealers, the man who owns the sheep is the man who should determine when he should sell and what he should sell.

Don't for a moment think of breeding from a ram deficient back of the shoulder. We get a very large per cent of lambs defective at that point even when sired by symmetrical animals.

Be very careful in selecting your lambs for exhibition purposes. Don't select those with the least flaw behind the shoulder. Some shepherds will tell you that a lamb that is slack behind the shoulder will fill up there as he grows. Observant shepherds do not take this view however.

The flock of sheep will not only pay for themselves directly in their wool and mutton, but they will indirectly benefit the land and crops. They are inestimable value in the clover and grass pastures, and even in the orchard where their little feet will press down the grass roots so the soil will cling better to them.

The man who labors to improve the sheep and its fleece, so as to better fit it to meet the requirements of mankind, is of the most beneficial character, for it means cheap food and clothing for the masses, and of the best quality. While, therefore, the breeder is striving to better his own condition, he is conferring a lasting benefit upon the country at large.

George Washington kept sheep at all times on his farm, and gave special care to improvement of breeds, and the Clays of Kentucky have been famous shepherds for a hundred years. Many of the greatest men in all ages have been breeders of sheep, from the shepherds of ancient Judea down to the present time, and it has required a knowledge of breeding, combined with the care, labor and practical skill necessary to make sheep profitable, to overcome the deteriorating effects of neglect and secure improvement of breeds and the building of better breeds.

Rations for the Cow.

It is the time right now to hedge against that common sight in August of a bunch of dairy cows standing fighting flies on some knoll in a bare and brown pasture, shrinking in their milk yield day by day. It is probably true that cows are far better fed in winter on the average dairy farm than they are in summer, save for a matter of six weeks or two months in May and June. Some sort of a silage crop must be had to tide the cows over the dry midsummer period, and probably nothing is more easily provided or will give better results than sweet corn so planted that it may be cut and liberally fed during such period. While not a perfect milk ration, it still can be so easily furnished by the average dairyman that there is no excuse for not having it.

Preserving Eggs With Water Glass.

A subscriber asks for information regarding water glass as a preservative for eggs. The substance is known to chemists as sodium silicate. It can be obtained from druggists, who, if they do not have it in stock, can obtain it from their wholesale houses.

We repeat what was published in these columns a year ago:

Of twenty German methods of preserving eggs the three which proved the most effective are coating the eggs with vaseline, preserving them in lime water and preserving them in water glass. There is a drawback to the water glass method; the shell easily bursts in boiling water. This, however, may be prevented by piercing the shell with a strong needle. This objection having been conceded, the water glass method heads the list, as varnishing the eggs with vaseline takes a great deal of time, and treating them with lime water is apt to give them a disagreeable odor. In most packed eggs the yolk, sooner or later, begins to settle on one side and the egg at once begins to depreciate. This does not happen when water glass is used, and the egg retains a surprising freshness. In one test it was found that a 10 per cent solution of water glass preserved the eggs so effectually that at the end of three and a half months eggs that were packed on August 1st appeared perfectly fresh. A gallon of water glass, which will cost fifty cents, will make enough solution to preserve fifty dozen eggs.

TRY IT.

Swine Notes.

A clean place for swine is a prime necessity.

There are many good plants for swine pasture.

One litter a year is enough for the young sow.

Lice rarely infect hogs that have plenty of sulphur.

The boar should not be of big, long extremities and small body.

The cleaner the feed and the feeding places the better the pork made.

A healthy hog's stomach is as regular as clockwork in demanding food.

The pig will give a better return for the food consumed than any other animal.

In the keeping of swine a degree of cleanliness is always attended with profit.

Stick to the Jersey cattle and Duroc Jersey swine and you will win out O. K.

A good pasture of a few acres will prove the best paying acres on the farm.

Young pigs cannot do well when they are forced to sleep in wet and cold beds.

Every swine breeder should have ample pasture for the pigs, with abundant clean water.

So many of the diseases of the pigs are contagious that it is a safe plan to separate a sick pig out the first time it is noticed.

Hogs are nearer self-sustaining, and will do more foraging than any animal, and there is less labor in preparing food for them.

Give the sows plenty of exercise before farrowing and feed so their bowels will be free and their systems in a lax, cool condition.

All the time filthy conditions should be eradicated and good sanitation provided if you would have your herd in good, healthy condition.

The hog that stands square and strong upon his feet should always be chosen for a breeder, in preference to a gaunt, weak-kneed animal.

Try giving the little pigs sifted ground oats and middlings, moistened to a crumbly state. Give only a little at a time, never allowing it to become sour in the trough.

The United States Supreme Court passed upon an oleomargarine case from Philadelphia. The appellants had been convicted of selling oleomargarine not marked and branded as required by the State law. They had appealed from the circuit court to the court of appeals in vain, the latter court affirming the original judgment. The case was then taken to the Supreme Court to determine the constitutionality of the law, the appellants attacking it on the ground that it was more a pure food law than a revenue law and thus an infringement upon the police powers of the state. The Supreme Court regarded this plea as not well taken and dismissed it, consequently the judgment of the lower court stands and the law in the case is approved as constitutional. This must be regarded as an important victory for pure food and for honest business methods. There can be no doubt that unwillingness to mark oleomargarine as such is inspired by a desire to have it passed off as butter. Goods must be sold under some name and if the true name is withheld the obvious presumption is that a false name is to be used, or implied or at any rate that customers are to be encouraged or permitted to accept them for what they are not. On no principle of ethics can it be regarded as a hardship to require the truth that is at issue. Whether oleomargarine is or is not a healthful article of food, or is or is not as good as butter and whether the manufacture and sale of it are or are not public benefits, are other questions entirely apart from the principle of truth.

The poultry publishing business has become one of the leading enterprises of the country. There are nearly one hundred poultry journals printed in the United States, and there are many very able papers devoted to this particular industry. There seems to be a clash between the practical and the fancy poultry press, a condition which should not exist. The practical poultry press does not believe in scrub stock, but advocates the breeding of the best poultry and the improvement of stock more for utility in meat and egg production than the particular marking for feathers, combs, ear lobes, etc. As the breeding of thoroughbred poultry advances this theory will prevail.

Scaly legs is a very common trouble with fowls in our dry climate but it can be easily cured with an application of kerosene oil. This remedy is injurious if not properly used. When applied in the evening the fumes of it may cause injury to the poultry at night. The dipping should be done in the morning which will give the kerosene time in which to evaporate. Clean roosting quarters and not allowing the fowls to roost over their droppings week after week will greatly aid in preventing the appearance of the disease.

When mating up your pens, keep in mind the inevitable law of reproduction, "Like begets like." Select carefully and use only or as nearly as possible birds of the type you desire in the offspring. Close and careful breeding is the only scientific breeding. Haphazard matings and compensation matings made to utilize as many specimens as possible in the breeding pens have no place in the yards of the truly progressive breeder.

The Department of Agriculture has issued an interesting bulletin on the important insects which prey on growing wheat.
